VOL. 73. No. 318. PART ONE ST. LOUIS, SUNDAY MORNING, JULY 17, 1921. * Pages 1—12 PRICE TEN CENTS

CITY TO BORROW $3,000,000 TO PAY RUNNING EXPENSE FOR SIX MONTHS

Comptroller Informs Clearing House of Necessity to Make Loans for Payrolls and Other Obligations Until Taxes Begin to Come In.

6 PER CENT INTEREST RATE IS PROBABLE

Municipal Deposits in the Banks Draw 2¾ Per Cent—$2,500,000 Is Owing to the Sinking and Water Funds.

Comptroller Nolte yesterday announced that city finances had reached a point where the city must arrange to borrow money from the banks, in order to meet its payroll and other obligations until taxes are paid next December. The Post-Dispatch made known May 20, on authority of Deputy Comptroller Gunn, that this step would be necessary by the middle of July.

The Comptroller yesterday consulted Edward B. Pryor, president of the State National Bink, in his capacity as president of the St. Louis Clearing House Association. He set forth the city's needs, and he said later that he believed an understanding would be reached.

Comptroller's Formal Request.

Pryor asked that the Comptroller submit the request in a formal way, and Nolte returned to his office and dictated this letter:

"Mr. E. B. Pryor, President St. Louis Clearing House Association:

"Dear Sir—This is to advise you that it will become necessary for the City of St. Louis to borrow money within the next 20 or 30 days to pay its current obligations, and wish you would kindly present to your association the arranging of a loan to the city pending the collection of the 1921 taxes. We estimate we will need, from time to time, about $3,000,000, to be borrowed as needed.

"We estimate 90 per cent of the tax levy of about $14,000,000, will be paid during December next, and it will be possible to cancel our obligation in full during that month.

"Section 2, Article 15, of the Charter says the Comptroller may, with the approval of the Board of Estimates and Apportionment, and with or without any ordinance or other authority of appropriation therefor, effect temporary loans to pay debts, judgments and liabilities of the city or to meet any such emergency.

"At about period above mentioned, that is in about 20 or 30 days, our treasury will be practically depleted, and in order that the city may continue its activities and meet its payrolls and other current expenses, the city is forced to make this temporary loan.

"We trust this application will receive favorable consideration and on such terms as circumstances will warrant, leaving manner of execution of notes, etc., in your hands.

"Awaiting your prompt reply, I beg to remain,

"Very truly yours,
"LOUIS NOLTE,
"Comptroller"

Interest of 6 Per Cent Likely.

The Comptroller said he did not believe it would be necessary to pay more than 6 per cent interest on the money obtained from banks. He said Pryor remarked to him that it might not be possible for the banks to make a lower rate than 6 per cent, in view of the rate charged by the Federal Reserve Bank.

When the city deposits its current revenues and sinking fund with the banks, it gets a rate of interest not higher than 2¾ per cent. These deposits are made the first of the year, and most of the money thus deposited has now been withdrawn and expended. The rate of 2¾ per cent was fixed by the banks last December, 14 banks making uniform bid, and was ½ of one per cent higher that the rate which prevailed in the previous year. The law provides that not more than $1,000,000 of city funds shall be deposited in one bank, and it has been the city's practice to apportion $500,000 to each bank.

The Treasurer's balance Friday, of money in banks to the city's credit, was $1,400,720.24. The Comptroller said this was practically all sinking fund and waterworks money.

The city, in past years, has followed the plan of borrowing from the sinking fund in midsummer, and repaying the money after the tax

APARTMENT HOUSE JANITOR POSTS THE WEATHER FORECASTS

Man, Who Year Ago Began Giving Tenants Time by Wireless, Now Puts Bulletins on Pole.

George A. Baker, janitor of the Botanical apartments at 2336 Tower Grove avenue, who more than a year ago began giving tenants correct time by wireless twice each day, has extended his service to weather forecasts.

At 10 a. m. each day Baker gets the United States Weather Bureau forecast for the following day either by radiophone from St. Louis University or wireless telegraph from the Chain of Rocks station of the Air Mail Service. He writes out the bulletins and posts them within a frame on a telephone pole at the corner of Botanical and Tower Grove avenues.

When the Illinois Watch Co. at Springfield, Ill., makes its time observation each day at noon, gongs in the hall of the apartment of which Baker is janitor begin to ring. They repeat their ringing each night at 9 o'clock when the Federal Government station at Arlington, Va., begins to send out the time.

ATTEMPT TO STANDARDIZE AUTO SIGNALS TO BE MADE

National Safety Council Plans to Call Conference of All Civic Bodies Interested.

An effort to standardize the signals by which automobile drivers notify those behind of their intentions to turn, slow down or stop, will be made by the local division of the National Safety Council, the secretary of which, Carl Smith, yesterday sent a letter to Lee Fuller, chairman of the Traffic Committee, asking that a conference meeting of all civic bodies interested in the matter be called.

Among these, he suggested that representatives be present from the Police Department, the Automobile clubs of St. Louis and Missouri, and the Street Department. It is the plan to have the conference agree upon a specific set of signals, and then have this set made a part of the city traffic ordinance.

At present, the ordinance only provide that drivers must give warning "with signal or voice," with the result that a variety of signals are in use, or, as is even more often the case, one signal serves several purposes.

DANGER FROM WOOD ALCOHOL EMPHASIZED IN CIRCULAR

Warning Issued Following Application for Pension From Man Blinded by Drinking Liquor.

The application of a young blind man for a State pension, and his statement that his condition was the result of drinking a highball made of wood alcohol nine months ago, while he was employed as a waiter at a country club, yesterday caused the Missouri Commission for the Blind to issue a circular warning against the perils of wood alcohol.

Calling attention of craftsmen to the fact that breathing the fumes causes blindness as well as the drinking of the liquor, the circular cautions them to be wary in handling it. Fumes from stoves or lamps using it for fuel also are dangerous, it adds.

The young man who applied for State aid said his misfortune had rendered him unable to support himself.

WIFE QUESTIONED AFTER HUSBAND IS MURDERED IN HOME

Sheriffs and Posses Virtually Abandon Hunt for Slayer of Farmer Near St. Joseph, Mo.

WAS KILLED WITH OWN SHOT GUN

Woman Admits She Recently Paid Insurance Premium on Husband's Life—Says Negroes Did Shooting.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

ST. JOSEPH, Mo., July 16—After an all day search by sheriffs and farmers posses of the south end of Buchanan County, the man-hunt for the murderer of George Myers, a young farmer living near Rushville, sixteen miles south of St. Joseph, was virtually abandoned tonight. The wife of Myers, who went to the home of her sister in Atchison, Kans., soon after the killing, was grilled throughout the afternoon by sheriff William H. Kueker of St. Joseph and Chief of Police W. C. Linville of Atchison, and they excused her upon her promise that she would attend the coroner's inquest here next Wednesday.

Myers, who lived with his wife and three children, aged two, three and five years, respectively, in a sparsely settled hill district, with their nearest neighbor a mile distant, was slain with his own shotgun early today. Mrs. Myers says that the crime was committed by two negroes, who, following the shooting, set fire to the house, but the blaze was extinguished before much headway was made.

Woman's Story of Shooting.

Soon after 1 o'clock, Mrs. Myers says, two men appeared at their home and forced her to take their children and get outside, telling her they were going to kill her husband and burn the house. She says there was a scuffle between the murderers and their victim, and then one of the assassins shot the farmer "in the head."

Mrs. Myers, in her night gown, and barefooted, went to the home of John Hyde, their nearest neighbor, and aroused him, and Hyde and several other neighbors proceeded to the Myers place. They found Myers lying on the floor dead and saw where the bedding had been partially burned. On the floor near the body was Myers' 16-gauge shotgun. The load entered his left breast and ranged downward, severing the main artery leading to the heart.

The authorities say Myers must have been lying down or stooping when he received the death wound.

An undertaker was summoned from St. Joseph and the farmer's body was brought here before daylight. Soon after the body was removed Mrs. Myers returned to the house, dressed herself and children and entered a motor car which had been driven from Atchison by her sister, Mrs. Roy Highfill.

Taken From Sister's Home.

Sheriff Kueker followed the women to Atchison and Mrs. Myers was taken from her sister's home to the police station, where she was held all day.

Mrs. Myers insisted throughout the long examination that she had told all she knew about the murder. She said she believed the assassins meant to rob Myers, but said she secreted in her dress $145, all the money her husband had in the house. She was quite calm. She admitted that she and her husband had quarreled at times, but said they had not had any trouble last night. She said that several days ago she had paid the premium on a $2,000 insurance policy on the life of her husband which he had decided to let lapse.

Myers was a renter and had lived on the lonely farm on the Missouri River bluffs two years, having removed to it from a farm near Atchison. He was 27 years old and his wife is 24. She told the Sheriff Myers had been jealous of a farm hand he had employed, but she insisted that he had no cause to be.

LEAVES HIS MONEY WITH POLICE

Man, on Way Home After 39 Years, Deposits $175 While He Sees City.

A man from western Kansas sauntered into Central Police Station last night and annonced that he was C. W. Morris, on his way to Hopkinsville, Ky., for a visit home after an absence of 39 years.

Having heard a good deal of crime waves, he desired to observe the fundamentals of Safety First, at least, and leave some money with the police for safekeeping, stating that he wanted to see the town and have enough money to continue his journey in case he got "knicked by a slicker." He left $175 with the police, which he said he would call for Monday.

IRISH SETTLEMENT PROGRESS CLOSELY GUARDED SECRET

De Valera's Proposals and Nature of Craig's Conversations With Premier Are Withheld.

HOPEFUL FEELING PREVAILS GENERALLY

Meeting With Premier Probably Tomorrow With Prediction of a Round Table Conference for Tuesday.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, July 16.—Eamonn de Valera's proposal and the nature of Sir James Craig's conversations with Premier Lloyd George remain closely guarded secrets. There was no conference between the British Prime Minister and the Irish republican leader today. De Valera will visit Lloyd George probably Monday afternoon and in some quarters it is predicted that a round table conference may be held Tuesday. This, however, is only indicative of the hopeful feeling generally prevailing regarding the progress of the negotiations for an Irish settlement.

The Sinn Fein delegates were joined this evening by Desmond Fitzgerald, Sinn Fein Minister of Propaganda, who has just been released from an internment camp. The delegates will remain in London for the week-end, exchanging visits with Irish sympathizers. The party motored to the outskirts of London this afternoon and took tea at St. Anthony's Hospital at Sutton, where a son of the Lord Mayor of Dublin is resident surgeon.

Three members of the Ulster Cabinet, H. M. Polock, E. A. Archdale and U. M. Andrews, together with the secretary, Col. Spender, also arrived in London this afternoon and joined the Marquis of Londonderry, who holds the post of Minister of Education in North Ireland. They conferred with the Ulster Premier tonight in preparation for the meeting of Sir James Craig with Premier Lloyd George after the latter's return from Chequers Court Monday.

In a message to a war memorial meeting at Castle Dawson, Londonderry County today, Sir James declared that the British empire would never be weakened by an act of his. Those who had made the supreme sacrifice, added the Ulster Premier, "trusted us to give nothing away and their trust will never be betrayed."

Fifteen are engaged at Soissons under the direction of Prof. Beuhen of Princeton University, 18 are at Rheims, in charge of Prof. Donald Tarpley, of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, and 17 are at Verdun, their work being supervised by Prof. Henry Moreau of Columbia University.

RECOGNIZES HIS STOLEN FORD

John Schwankhaus Hails Driver, Who Jumps Out and Flees.

It's a wise man that knows his own flivver, especially at night and on a street where the traffic is thick, but John H. Schwankhaus of 5933 Hamilton avenue, recognized the Ford coupe that had been stolen from him when he saw it being driven west on Delmar boulevard, at King's highway, Thursday night, and now he has two automobiles.

Schwankhaus' car disappeared from Eighth and Olive streets two weeks ago. He bought another one. Some peculiarity attracted his notice as a coupe passed him Thursday night. He followed. As he came alongside he saw where his monogram had been painted out. He crowded the driver into the curb, and ordered him to stop. The latter complied, then ran. Tracing the license number, the police found Anthony Sirna of 922 High street. The latter admitted running from the scene, but said he had two gallons of liquor in the car, which he had just acquired, and thought that was the reason he was being halted. He produced a bill of sale for the car, which the police said appeared to be genuine.

U. S. GETTING ALL GOOD BOUTS, BRIAND SAYS OF DISARMAMENT MEETING

"I Hope I'll Avenge Carpentier When I Meet Lloyd George," Premier Remarks.

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch.

PARIS, July 16.

IS Premier Briand a fight fan? It would seem so, for in a recent conversation with some friends, speaking of the pleasure a trip to America for the disarmament conference would give him, apart from its political importance, he exclaimed with almost schoolboyish excitement:

"Well, Americans are getting all the plums this year. First the Dempsey-Carpentier fight, and now the Lloyd George-Briand bout, with President Harding as umpire. I hope I'll avenge Carpentier. But if I win I wonder if they will illuminate Paris and send forth a squadron of airplanes and fire rockets?"

330 ABOARD DISABLED STEAMER IN RAPIDS OF THE ST. LAWRENCE

"Rapids King" Beached, but Swift Current Keeps Boats From Reaching It.

By the Associated Press.

OGDENSBURG, N. Y., July 16.—Strenuous efforts are being made to remove 330 passengers from the steamer Rapids King of the Canada Steamship Line, which was disabled in the Long Saulte Rapids of the St. Lawrence River late today by the breaking of a rudder chain. The tiller was used to beach the vessel in seven feet of raging waters. No boats were able to approach the disabled craft because of the swiftness of the current.

Late tonight a Canadian Government life saving crew arrived on a special train from Montreal at a point on the bank of the St. Lawrence opposite to the stranded vessel. Preparations were begun for the rigging of a breeches buoy in which to remove the passengers if it should prove too hazardous to take them off in small boats.

ALLEGED SHORTAGE OF $150,000 IN PACKING COMPANY FINANCES

Comptroller of Minnesota Concern Said to Have Admitted Peculations Over Several Years.

By the Associated Press.

AUSTIN, Minn., July 16.—Embezzlement of "at least $150,000" from George A. Hormel and Company, packers, was said to have been admittd late today by R. J. Thomson, comptroller of the company, in a statement issued jointly with officers of the concern. No legal action has yet been taken against Thomson.

Thomson, widely known in this section of the country as President of the Oakdale Poultry Farm near here and the Oak Holstein Farm at Blooming Prairie, Minn., is said to have assigned all his holdings to trustees for operation until their ultimate disposition is determined.

The property in Thomson's name is extensive, Hormel said, and what ever the extent of Thomson's alleged defalcations this property is expected to make up a large amount of it.

Thomson, a country boy, entered the employ of the Hormel Company several years ago, first as a candy salesman at the plant at a wage of $12 week. His rise was rapid and his alleged peculations are said to have started shortly after he became comptroller.

La Follette and Johnson Want Withdrawal to Follow Peace by Resolution.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, July 16.—Senator La Follette has determined to offer a resolution instructing the Secretary of War to withdraw the American troops from Germany. He is willing that a reasonable time should elapse following the effectiveness of the peace resolution, but believes that period will be reached during the coming week. Unless some action is taken he will propose his resolution.

A resolution of the same purport also is in contemplation by Senator Johnson of California who initiated the crusade for the removal of American soldiers from Russian territory. He has been waiting a reasonabel time for action by the War Department, but is not disposed to maintain silence much longer.

LEAGUE OF NATIONS PROCEEDS WITH WORK FOR DISARMAMENT

NO DEFINITE REPLY FROM JAPAN ON DISARMAMENT

Diplomatic Preliminaries to Conference Undergo Period of Quiet—Housing of Commissions Discussed by Washington Officials.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, July 16.—Diplomatic preliminaries to the disarmament conference went into a period of quiescence today while Japan deliberated whether to consent to the broad discussion of Far Eastern problems considered essential by this Government if a serious disarmament effort is to be attempted.

So far as could be learned no word had come to the State Department tonight in response to the informal explanation made to Japan yesterday relative to the probable scope of the conference. Officials, however, made no secret of their continued confidence that Japan eventually would join Great Britain, France, Italy and China in accepting full participation in the discussions.

No Hasty Decision Sought.

It was emphasized in official circles that no hasty decision was sought and that there was no desire here to have the Tokio Government accept unreservedly until it had satisfied itself of the exact purposes and good faith of the United States in proposing the conference. The general expectation was that a delay of several days would ensue before the next important development.

Meantime those who are to be in charge of the conference began to turn their attention to some of the physical difficulties involved in providing suitable quarters here for so important a gathering. No meeting place has yet been selected, although the suggestion has been made that the Pan-American building probably would provide best facilities in the national capital.

A question of far greater moment arises from the necessity of providing also living accommodations and office space for the various attending commissions. It is thought not unlikely that several hotels and apartment houses may have to be taken over to accommodate the visitors.

It would not occasion surprise here if Great Britain, for instance, sent a delegation of experts and attaches approaching that which she maintained in Paris during the peace conference. Such a delegation would require a fair-sized hotel for its living accommodations, as well as a considerable amount of office space.

Another Large Commission.

Japan is another nation whose commission is expected to be a large one, because of the many translators which always are attached to Japanese diplomatic missions.

In addition to the representatives of the six Powers who will sit at the council tables, it is not doubted that many smaller countries, especially the struggling new nations who are seeking recognition and concessions, will send commissions here in the hope of gaining the ears of the negotiations.

Should the Premiers of some of the invited Powers come here as members of the conference, as has been indicated in press dispatches, it is suggested that they be provided private residences as guests of the Government.

ROBBER, STRUCK WITH ROD IN CHASE, ESCAPES

Staggered by Blow After Holding Up Butcher Shop—Fired on and Pursued by Autos.

A young man held up the grocery and buitcher shop of Jacob Smith, 6771 Wise avenue, at 9:30 o'clock last night, took about $125, and, after considerable difficulty, escaped. Half an hour earlier, two men, one of corresponding description, had held up Mrs. Sarah Marks in her grocery at 6849 Waldemar avenue, five blocks away, and had taken $150.

Smith was preparing to close up when the man entered and asked for a soft drink. Smith replied that he had none. "I want to see for myself," said the man, and opened the icebox door. Then he drew a revolver.

"All right, everybody inside," he called. Smith, his son, Harry, and Alex Teskin, a friend, complied, but Michael Cronin, the butcher, sprang through the back door and began yelling for help. The robber emptied the cash register and ran out at a side door into Central avenue.

Fred Hoefer of 6802 Wise avenue had been working on a truck outside. When he heard Cronin's cries, and saw the young man backing out through the door, he rightly concluded that the latter was the robber, and let go at him with a connecting rod which he had in his hand. The rod struck the robber, staggering him and knocking his hat off, but he neither fired nor halted.

About this time Albert Smith, another son of the proprietor, ran downstairs with a revolver in his hand, and took a parting shot at the robber, but missed. Three automobiles filled with men searched for the robber, but did not find him.

Mrs. Marks, her daughter, Bertha, 17 years old, and Mrs. George Maxwell, 2118 Forest avenue, were in Mrs. Mrs. Marks' store when the two robbers entered. One held a pistol while the other rifled the cash register.

The past year he held a similar position in Carthage College, Carthage, Ill.

PRESIDENT SOON TO TAKE FIRST HORSEBACK RIDE IN 30 YEARS

Harding Yields to Advice of Physician—Well Trained Army Steed to Be First Mount.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, July 16.—President Harding has yielded to the counseling of his physician, Brigadier-General Sawyer, and will take up horseback riding. Riding clothes and other accessories have been ordered and will be delivered to the White House next week.

The chief executive, it became known today, has not been astride the back of a horse for more than 30 years. This fact has been taken into consideration by those charged with safeguarding the health and person of Mr. Harding and his military aid, Col. Shirrill, has selected a well trained, fine gaited, thoroughbred army charger.

This army charger, than which there is no wiser horse in the world, will be at the disposal of the President whenever he feels disposed to begin the exercise. It is understood that this horse will be used until Mr. Harding again becomes used to the saddle, when it will be changed for a thoroughbred hunter so he can participate in the hunts around Washington this fall.

DELEGATES TO PARIS MEETING APPROVE CALL BY HARDING

Believe Work of League's Commission for Reduction of Armaments, Now in Session, Will Not Interfere With Washington Gathering, but May Be of Service to It.

VIVIANI AT OPENING EXPRESSES HAPPINESS

French Representative Praises Initiative of United States in Calling Powers to Consult on Question the League Is Now Studying.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, July 16.—The League of Nations is going ahead with its work in connection with disarmament on the theory that it will in no wise interfere with the proposed conference on limitation of armaments in Washington, and that it may develop information which would be of use to such a conference. That was the decision announced at the opening session today of the temporary mixed commission for the reduction of armaments, appointed by the league, which was presided over by Rene Viviani of France, chairman of the commission.

M. Viviani, P. A. L. Fisher, the British representative; Senator Carlo Schanzer of Italy, and the delegates of the leading nations represented on the commission, were agreed on this point and also were in accord in praise of President Harding's initiative in proposing a conference on armaments. They declared the league could not but welcome joyfully all deliberations having in view a solution of the delicate and complex general question which the league was studying objectively.

Brief exchanges of views this morning showed the delegates were impressed with the necessity of proceeding prudently with the question by easy stages, since it is impossible not to take into account the special situation of certain countries and the absence of Russia and Germany from the league. The commission will first make a general survey of the situation as set forth by data gathered by the league's consultative military and naval commission and appoint sub-committees to take up special branches of the subject.

Viviani a Likely Delegate.

The tendency in French circles to consider the league's disarmament commission useless in view of the proposed Washington conference was deprecated by the argument that the commission's work in no way prejudices what any other deliberate body may do, and the suggestion was made that M. Viviani's work on the commission would make him a likely representative of France in Washington in case Premier Briand should be unable to go.

M. Viviani, in his address opening the sessions, after reviewing the history of the creation of the Commission, said:

"After indicating my conception of how we should fulfill our mission I feel no hesitation in commenting on the great and noble initiative taken by President Harding a few days ago. We have not been surprised that the head of the great American nation, so powerful and so generous, and which has so often discussed the question of disarmament, should have taken the lead in assembling the various Governments for the purpose of reaching agreements. We should be the first to congratulate such action and we are happy to greet this step. We are glad to be associated in it, certain that the work we are going to prepare cannot but be taken into consideration by the Governments when we ourselves shall be gathered next September, having before us some solution of the problems. I do not

GIRL'S STRANGE DEATH IN HOTEL CHARGED TO CLERK

William Gummer of Fargo, N. D., Accused of Killing Young Woman on Her First Visit to a City.

SAYS HE SAW GUEST DEAD IN HER ROOM

Her Head Had Been Crushed With Hose Nozzle and Hands Were Tied to Bed Posts With Sheets.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

FARGO, N. D., July 16.—Miss Marie Wick of Grygla, Minn., a pretty country girl, 18 years old, on her first visit to a city, registered at a Fargo hotel at 9:30 p. m. on June 6.

At 7 a. m. June 7 the night clerk in charge of the hotel, according to his own statements, found her dead.

He is charged with her murder and goes on trial at the terms of the Cass County District Court beginning Tuesday, when it is hoped many mysterious circumstances surrounding the crime will be cleared up.

Miss Wick apparently had been slain by a degenerate in what the Northwest police call the most brutal crime they have had to deal with.

When officials were called in they found the girl had been beaten over the head repeatedly; they found both hands tied fast to the bed posts by slitted pieces of sheets: they found a pillowslip stuffed far down her mouth as a gag, bound in place by other strips of the same sheet that had been used to tie her hands to the posts of the bed, and on her throat they found the marks of the murderer's finger nails where he had strangled her into unconsciousness.

William Gummer, the 22-year-old night clerk, who is a prisoner in the Cass County jail, held on the charge of being the murderer, maintains he is innocent.

Officials Arrange Case.

Officials, in the preliminary examination of Gummer, when he was bound over for trial, produced two points in their case around which the whole theory of Gummer's guilt is being spun:

Gummer called Miss Wick at 11:30 p. m. the night of her death, for the admitted purpose of determining whether or not she was "sporty," as his own statements to officers is quoted.

Gummer had been in Miss Wick's room on the following morning, prior to 7 o'clock, when he notified the proprietor of the hotel that he believed "something was wrong" in the room, and he knew she had been slain.

At the preliminary examination of Gummer, and so exhibited that the prisoner had ample opportunity to study the death bed scene that met the eyes of officials when they were called into the case, the Prosecuting Attorney produced photographs of the slain girl as she was found.

The key to the girl's room, which she had locked on retiring, is missing. The clerk says the door was locked when he went to the room in the morning when she failed to answer telephone calls as per her request on the evening previous, and the girl's pocketbook, containing only a few dollars, had been rifled.

In working out the theory of the murder, officials presented the case in Justice Court upon the occasion of Gummer's hearing. Miss Wick arrived in Fargo about 9 p. m. on June 6. She was directed by friends to the hotel and was accompanied there by Arnold Rasmussen, a friend from her home town. She registered, and went out with Rasmussen for about an hour, stopping at an ice cream parlor.

As Rasmussen testified at Gummer's hearing, Miss Wick expressed wonderment at street cars, while an automatic player-piano was a source of great amusement as it was the first time she had ever seen one of them.

On returning to the hotel, about 10:30 p. m., Miss Wick went to her room alone, and Rasmussen has accounted for his whereabouts during the balance of the night.

Gummer was the clerk on duty when Miss Wick registered and when she returned later in the evening. She left a call for 7 a. m., to catch an early morning train, and even in this was assisted by Rasmussen, for she had no knowledge of hotel practices.

Admits Using Telephone.

The next anyone else knew was the time she was found dead and officials were called in. But according to the statements that Gummer has himself made to the authorities, and as they appear on the record, Gummer, himself, called the girl by telephone about 11:30 p. m. to "kid her along," as he explained. If she had "kidded," Gummer said, "naturally he would have gone up" to her room.

Gummer, when first questioned, denied all knowledge of the girl, except that he said she had called him on the telephone and asked that the time of her call be changed. He clung to this story nearly a week, but finally admitted that it was he himself who had used the telephone.

Gummer admitted, too, that after Miss Wick had gone to her room, he talked to his friend, Andy Brown, concerning her, the conversation into which the girl's name was brought, as quoted by Gummer, relating to his own conquests with other girls, as well as to Brown's conquests.

When he was first questioned Gummer persisted that he had no knowledge whatsoever that the girl was dead until he entered the room the next morning in company with Fred Lawrence, son of the owner of the hotel. Gummer had gone to Lawrence's room about 6:45, advising him that he couldn't wake the "girl in 30." Lawrence said there was no significance attached to the girl's failure to awaken, as on many occasions it took some time to arouse sleeping guests, notwithstanding that they might have left calls.

Said Something Was Wrong.

Finally, Gummer's insistance that Lawrence join with him in trying to awaken the girl resulted in Lawrence advising Gummer to go to the room, pull a chair to the door and look over the transom. Gummer did and returned to tell Lawrence there was something wrong; that "she seems to have something reddish or brownish over her face."

That was Gummer's story to the police for eight days. Then he admitted that he had been in the room before he called Lawrence.

Gummer insisted, in his new version, that when he failed to awaken her on the second attempt, he went to the room, tried a skeleton key and opened the door. He says he walked in only two or three steps, discovered the situation, locked the door and went back to the office. Once in his home town, Gummer said, a hotel clerk had found a guest dead, and the clerk had difficulty clearing himself, and Gummer says that facts influenced him not to tell the officials that he had been in the room that morning.

The search for evidence brought in every guest in the hotel. A man sleeping in an adjacent room, registered late in the night, had heard no disturbance. Guest after guest was questioned, without result.

Chambermaid Tells Story.

Finally, out of a hospital, came the first tangible clew as to the hour of the girl's death. A chambermaid, suffering from a nervous breakdown as a result of the affair, told her story.

Sleeping in the room directly under that of Miss Wick, she was awakened at 4 a. m. by noises in Miss Wick's room. "It sounded like somebody hitting the bed with a shoe," said the maid, who said she thought somebody was getting out for an early train. Blow after blow was struck, she said, and she heard a man walking around the room for several minutes, finally go to the door, leave the room and walk down the hall toward the front of the hotel.

Noises in the girl's room were also heard about 12:30 a. m., by another guest.

As the Prosecuting Attorney presents the case, he adopts the theory that at 12:30 the girl's room was entered after the door had been opened by the use of a bent hat pin that was inserted in the lock, slipped past the key, and so manipulated as to turn the bolt. On that occasion the prosecutor believes the girl was choked, the murderer shutting off cries by strangulation. When the girl was tied to the bedposts, she was unconscious, for the knots were neatly tied, and could not have been so fastened had the girl been conscious.

At 4 a. m., the prosecutor says, the murderer returned to the room, found the girl still alive, and knowing that he would be recognized, he killed her by beating her with a fire hose nozzle.

Nozzle Taken From Rack.

The nozzle was obtained from a rack fully 50 feet from the girl's room, and close to the head of the stairs leading directly into the office of the hotel where Gummer was supposed to be on duty.

After it had been used, the murderer took the nozzle to a bathroom across the hall from the girl's room, and there carefully washed it off, and returned it to the rack. It had been bent out of shape, and could not be screwed back on the hose.

All of this happened at the end of a hall on the second floor of the hotel. Gummer during the whole time was in complete charge of the hotel, and was supposed to be in the office at the foot of the steps leading directly into the hall.

Important additional evidence will be used by the prosecuting officials in the trial of the case.

Leviathan to Be Sold or Refitted Within Month

Ship Board Chairman Inspects Craft and Announces Intention to End Idleness—Reconditioning Cost Estimated at $12,000,000

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, July 16.—The giant liner Leviathan, which has been idle at her pier in Hoboken for two years, costing the taxpayers $45,000 a month for upkeep, will be ordered reconditioned, salvaged or sold within the next month. This was announced today by Chairman Lasker of the Shipping Board after he had inspected the former German liner Vaterland, which was seized during the war and converted into an American troop ship.

If it is decided to refit the 54,000-ton steamer and put her on the seas again as a first-class passenger liner, the cost probably will be $12,000,000, experts told Lasker. She could be converted into an oil burner and made ready for service by February, 1923. The cost of building and refitting a ship of the same size today would be in the neighborhood of $30,000,000, it was estimated.

Machinery in Perfect Order.

Lasker, who was accompanied on his trip of inspection by a number of Shipping Board and steamship officials, said the steamer was in good condition and moored in deep water. The machinery was in perfect order, and if necessary, she could put to sea in 24 hours.

Lasker said the expense of more than a half million dollars a year for a crew of 100 and upkeep was necessary to keep the liner in good condition. It costs $100,000 annually for 57 fire guards to patrol the ship. Sixty draftsmen are employed making plans for refitting in order that time may be saved if it is decided to recondition the steamer.

P. A. S. Franklin, president of the International Mercantile Marine, who was a member of the inspecting party, said his corporation had an agreement with the Shipping Board to operate the Leviathan for five years, if the Government decided upon reconditioning her.

Would Fly American Flag.

Asked if this meant that the steamer would fly the British flag, Franklin said: "It most emphatically does not. It means she will be under the American flag and the nucleus of a fast American mail service."

Lasker, when asked if the Shipping Board had a complete title to the vessel, said: "While we have not yet settled with Germany for her, I believe that is a matter easily overcome."

Discussing the shipping situation, Lasker said:

"When we new men of the Shipping Board came in, we inherited what is the greatest commercial wreck of all time. The Shipping Board has 'assets' which we find to be mostly liabilities. The chief among these are wooden ships costing the Government $240,000,000 of the taxpayers' money, which have either to be sold, salvaged or sunk before Oct. 1 of this year. If the worst comes to the worst, they will make ideal airplane targets.

"Next on the list comes this Leviathan. A decision must be made in the next few days because of the necessity of starting work on the decorative plans."

DE MAUD 'HUY, NOTED FRENCH GENERAL, DIES

Military Governor of Metz, Who Consecrated Himself to Win Lost Province, Was Hero of Marne.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, July 16.—Ken. L. E. de Maud 'Huy, military Governor of Metz, died today.

Gen. de Maud 'Huy was born in Lorraine. As a child he witnessed the capitulation of Metz to the Germans and thereafter consecrated himself to the task of aiding in the restoration of his province to France. At the age of 14 he left Lorraine for France, entered the St. Cyr Military School at 17, and was graduated at 20 among the first of his class.

At the outbreak of the war he was in temporary command of the Sixteenth Division at Dijon, forming part of the Eighth Corps, and the armies of Lorraine. He marched on Sarrebourg, personally led a night attack upon the heights dominating Blamont and entered Sarrebourg Aug. 18, 1914.

The second army under Gen. de Castelnua, marching on Morhange, having been obliged to retire, the division of Gen. de Maud 'Huy was obliged to follow, but retreated only under formal superior orders. His masterly conduct of this retreat, and his successful execution of orders to throw the Germans back across the Mortagne during the battle of the Grand Couronne de Nancy, earned him the command of the Eighteenth Army Corps, at the head of which he faced the Germans in the battle of the Marne.

On Sept. 29 he was called to the command of the Tenth Army and between Oct. 2 and 10 his men checked the attack of five German corps and permitted the movement of the British troops toward the north in the race of the belligerents to the sea.

Among the best-known exploits of the Tenth Army while under Gen. de Maud 'Huy's command, was the capture of the heights at Notre Dame de la Lorette, dominating the industrial center of Lens.

TO HELP COTTON GROWERS

Federal Reserve Governor Calls Conference to Work Out Plans.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, JULY 16.—Governor W. P. G. Harding of the Federal Reserve Board, moved today to aid the southern cotton growers during coming marketing season. The Governors of the five federal reserve districts in the cotton belt have been called to Washington for a conference on Tuesday to consider a uniform policy of making loans.

The districts to be represented are Richmond, Atlanta, Dallas, St. Louis and Kansas City. The only other district in which cotton is an important factor is San Francisco but as the time is too short for the Governor of that district to get to Washington it will be left to work out its own policy.

HOUSE UPHOLDS DYE EMBARGO, IN UPROAR OVER OIL

After Refusing to Eliminate Clause Covering Tar Products, Members Clash on Tariff on Petroleum.

GARRETT FORCES THE ISSUE TO THE FRONT

Fierce Battle Ends Abruptly, However, When Republican Motion to Adjourn Until Tomorrow Is Carried

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, July 16.— After refusing by a vote of 122 to 106 to eliminate the three-year dye embargo from the Fordney Tariff bill, the House jumped suddenly today into a partisan fight over oil. But it did not last long.

Flaming fiercely at first, the oil battle ended abruptly on a Republican motion to adjourn until Monday. Although opposed solidly by Democrats, who forced a roll call, the result was the same as yesterday when the Republicans, standing together, voted to quit.

By breaking in unexpectedly, representative Garrett of Tennessee, in charge of the Democratic minority, forced the oil issue to the front. His amendment to put crude petroleum and fuel oil back on the free list was thrown out on a point of order, amid great confusion and uproar. For a time the House did not seem able to tell its legislative head from its heels, a Republican breaking in with a wild shout to know "where we are at."

Oil Takes Top Place.

As the Garrett free oil amendment was knocked out, Representative Treadway of Massachusetts, a Republican member of the Ways and Means Committee which at the eleventh hour imposed a duty of 35 cents a barrel on crude petroleum and 25 cents a barrel on fuel oil, stepped to the front with an amendment to wipe out the proposed tax. Being a member of the committee he was permitted to present it but was stopped at the close of a five-minute talk by objection of Democrats, who announced they were prepared to shut off debate and vote.

In the half-hour flurry the oil duty was violently denounced and warmly defended. Representative Robertson, Republican of Oklahoma, brought a round of applause from those supporting the oil tariff by attacking "the New England policy of demanding protection with one hand and free trade with the other."

It was apparent that oil took top place in interest among the House membership in the five contested schedules on which a separate vote is to be permitted by special rule. Everybody, it seemed, was anxious to speak and worn out by the all-day wrangle over dyes, members were ready to lay off until Monday and get their forces lined up for the real fight.

Withstands Combined Attack.

The dye embargo stood up against a combined attack by Democrats and Republicans, described by those supporting it as a device to shackle the vast dye interests of Germany. It was denounced by Representative Frear of Wisconsin, a Republican member of the Ways and Means Committee, and others as a move to build up a dye monopoly in this country.

As the vote was comparatively close, some doubt was expressed as to the final action by the House proper next week, the vote today being in the committee of the whole. The schedule in addition to the embargo fixes a duty of 7 cents a pound and 35 per cent ad valorem on imports of coal tar products from which dyes are obtained.

CITY TO BORROW $3,000,000 TO TIDE IT OVER SIX MONTHS

collections are made in December. This year, Nolte said, the sinking fund will not furnish the amount needed. This is due to the deficit of $1,005,366.67 with which the city began the fiscal year in April, and to the increased demands on city revenue. The city's appropriations for 1921-22 are $16,285,948.37, an increase over the previous year of $905,989.24.

$2,500,000 Owing to Other Funds.

There is now owing to the sinking fund, for money taken for municipal expenses, about $1,800,000, and to the waterworks fund $700,000, Nolte said.

The $3,000,000 which, as estimated in Nolte's letter to Pryor, will be needed from the banks, will not all be borrowed at once, the Comptroller said. It is his plan to borrow $500,000 at a time, as the money is needed. The city payroll is about $800,000 a month.

$32,688,352 WAR CLAIM PAID BY U. S. TO GREAT BRITAIN

Settlement of That Nation's Shipping Bill Made Despite Its $4,500,000,000 Debt to America.

ACTION BASED ON OPINION BY DAUGHERTY

Attorney-General Rules That an Act of Congress of March 3, 1837, Does Not Apply to Case.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, July 15.—Despite Great Britain's debt of $4,500,000,000 to this country, payment of $32,688,352 has been made by the American Government to the British Ministry of Shipping in settlement of a claim against the War Department, Treasury officials said today. The payment was made, officials added, pursuant to an opinion by Attorney-General Daugherty.

The British claim was for transportation services during the war with Germany, and the payment, it was explained, constituted final settlement between the War Department and the British Ministry of Shipping of all claims of either party against the other for transportation services.

Secretary Mellon asked Daugherty for a ruling as to whether the act of March 3, 1837, which requires the Secretary to withhold payment of any judgment against the United States where the claimant is indebted to this country in any manner, applied to such a claim.

Opinion by Daugherty.

Daugherty held the act did not apply as it was not the practice of sovereign nations to prosecute their claims against one another in the courts and obtain judgment, but adjust such matters through diplomatic channels.

"If it should be construed to apply to a case such as is now presented," the Attorney-General said, "then whenever a claim is allowed by the United States in favor of a foreign nation it will be the duty of the Secretary of the Treasury in making payment to withhold the amount of any claim which the United States may have against such nation. As is well known, this Government exercises a broad discretion in determining what claims it will present against other nations, and the operations of the statute in such matters would seriously interfere with the Government in the conduct of its foreign relations."

The British transportation claim, it was explained, was for what was regarded during the war as current expenses. Among the allies, it was said, there was a general understanding that all current expenses would be paid one another without awaiting the settlement of international debts.

Claim Paid in Full.

In connection with the claim, Mellon also inquired whether, $12,275,711 should be withheld pending adjustment of a claim of the Shipping Board against the British Ministry of Shipping for shipments of oil. The Attorney-General suggested that such a step might be suggested to Great Britain through the usual diplomatic channels, but the Treasury decided, officials said, that the amount of the Shipping Board's bill was yet to be adjusted finally, and that the British transportation claim therefore should be paid in full.

FORMER BALL PLAYER MISSING

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

BOSTON, Mass. July 16.—Arthur A. Irwin, the old-time baseball player, manager and coach, disappeared from the steamer Calvin Austin on the way from New York to Boston last night, it was discovered today, when his stateroom door was forced. Only his shoes and some clothing were in the room. Irwin is believed either to have jumped or fallen overboard.

Irwin recently left a hospital in New York. He still complained of feeling ill and told friends last night that he was on his way to his brother John's home in Boston "to die."

Irwin was a familiar figure in sport circles for many years.

Irwin is credited with having invented the modern catcher's mitt.

POPE EXPRESSES HIS DELIGHT OVER CALL FOR DISARMAMENT

Pontiff Prays That Seed Will Bring Forth Fruit of Universal and Lasting Peace.

By the Associated Press.

THE world this morning prints the following:

ROME, July 16.—To the editor of the World:

"In response to your telegram I beg to inform you that the august pontiff sees with keen satisfaction that the seed sown by him in August, 1917, for the simultaneous and reciprocal diminution of armaments did not fall upon barren ground, but through the grace of God germinated vigorously and gives promise of a joyous blossoming.

"In the interests of the human race, already too much tortured by wars, the august pontiff fervently prays that the flowers may be followed closely by the yearned-for gladness of the fruit, for the triumph of universal and lasting peace.

"P. CARD. GASPARRI,
"Secretary of State."

The above cablegram is in reply to one sent by the editor of the Word to Cardinal Gasparri on July 12 reminding him that in January, when the World launched its world-wide campaign for reduction of armaments, he was one of the first to respond with a cablegram in which, in the name of Pope Benedict XV, he expressed the heartiest approval of the campaign, and asking him for a further expression.

Cardinal Gasparri's remark about "The seed sown in August, 1917," refers to the famous peace proposal made by Pope Benedict on Aug. 16, 1917. In that message, addressed to all the belligerent Powers, he appealed to them all to arrive at an agreement on five points, the first of which was as follows:

"The fundamental point must be that material force of arms shall give way to the moral force of right, whence shall proceed a just agreement of all upon a simultaneous and reciprocal decrease of armaments, according to rules and guarantees to be established, in the necessary and sufficient measure for the maintenance of public order in every State; then taking the place of arms, the institution of arbitration, with its high, pacifying function, according to rules to be drawn in concert and under sanction to be determined against any state which would decline either to refer international questions to arbitration or to accept its awards."

LEAGUE OF NATIONS PROCEEDS WITH ITS DISARMAMENT PLAN

say they will be definite, but they will be precise.

Question Is Complex.

"I may add that the question of disarmament is so difficult, complex and delicate that those who discuss it must meet with preconceived notions, ignorance and prejudices, and must overcome traditions and economic difficulties. There cannot be too many of us who wish to concern ourselves with this problem, to appeal to public opinion, and to prepare the world for this question, that should be solved and definitely solved.

"Such is the spirit in which we must work, for truly it would not have been worth while to have suffered the atrocious war if we could not draw fruitful lessons from the sacrifices of our sons."

Fisher in an address approving M. Viviani's statement, said:

Fisher's Statement.

"If the Washington conference should, as must be hoped, reach an agreement, that agreement certainly would be in conformity with article 21 of the covenant of the league. This commission also should express great satisfaction with the action taken by President Harding which, far from being in opposition to the general idea of the league, is, on the contrary, in full conformity with its spirit."

He suggested that naval disarmament might be considered separately from reduction of the land forces. He said he felt "the commission willingly welcomed the hope expressed at Washington a solution of the naval disarmament problem might be reached."

"As to land disarmament," Mr. Fisher added, "it will be useful to emphasize that as long as Germany and Russia remain outside the league, and as long as one is uncertain of Germany's good faith, it will be very difficult to accomplish practical results. It is necessary that we show ourselves very prudent."

Personnel of Commission.

In the commission six naval, military and aerial experts represent Japan, Spain, Brazil, France, Italy and Great Britain.

There are two economic experts from Rumania and Italy, but the latter did not attend today's meeting; two financial experts from India and Belgium; three representatives of the International Labor Bureau; Leon Jouhaux of France, Yan Oudegeest of Holland and M. Thorberg of Sweden; three representtaives of Czecho-Slovakia, Denmark and Canada. The last named was not present oday.

Article 21 of the covenant of the league, referred to by Fisher reads: "Nothing in this covenant shall be deemed to affect the validity of international engagements such as treaties of arbitration or regional understandings like the Monroe doctrine, for securing the maintenance of peace."

REDISTRICTING BILLS ENGROSSED BY HOUSE

Measures to Assure More Republican Congressmen Likely to Be Amended in Senate.

From a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, July 16.—The House today engrossed the two congressional redistricting bills drawn by Representative Elmer of Dent County, Republican, and which are designed to rearrange boundary lines of the various districts of the State so as to assure the election of more Republican Congressmen in future. Two bills were drawn by Elmer for the reason that Congress has not yet made the new apportionment of Congressmen. Missouri now has 16, but may be cut to 15 or even 14. Elmer has provided one bill for 16 districts and one for 15 districts. Gov. Hyde can veto either or both of the bills.

The 15-district bill is expected to assure the almost certain election of nine Republicans with three districts reasonably Democratic and three close. The 16-district plan is expected to produce 10 Republican districts, three Democratic and three close.

The boundaries of these districts, as previously outlined in the Post-Dispatch, were changed very little, a few shifts being made in interior counties.

St. Louis is given three districts, and with St. Louis County shares a fourth.

The boundaries of those districts would be as follows: Ninth—Wards 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 13, 14 and 15. Tenth—St. Louis County and wards 12, 24 and 28 of St. Louis. Eleventh—Wards 1, 2, 3, 18, that part of 19 north of Cass avenue, 20, 21, 22 and 27. Twelfth—Wards 4, 5, 6, 16, 17, that part of 19, south of Cass avenue, 23, 25 and 26.

The St. Louis districts are the same under both bills.

None of the leaders of the St. Louis legislative delegation were present when Elmer called up the redistricting bills this afternoon rather unexpectedly. It is understood there is some objection to the lines of at least one of the St. Louis districts which may mean an amendment in the Senate.

TWO SENTENCED IN HOSPITAL SHIP CASE

German Lieutenants Get Four Years Each for Firing on Canadian Lifeboats.

By the Associated Press.

LEIPSIC, Germany, July 16.—Lieut. Dittmar and Lieut. Boldt, charged with murder in the first degree for firing on lifeboats after the Canadian hospital ship Llandovery Castle had been torpedoed in the summer of 1918, were each sentenced today to four years' imprisonment.

The sentence did not, however, carry hard labor without, as demanded by the Public Prosecutor. The case of Dittmar and Boldt differed from the others which had been heard by the Supreme Court here in connection with trials growing out of violations of the rules of civilized warfare, inasmuch as the two Lieutenants were brought to trial by the German Public Prosecutor. Great Britain only had demanded the trial of Commander Patzig of the submarine which torpedoed the Llandovery Castle, who fled the country. The Public Prosecutor, however, after an examination of the evidence, ordered that Dittman and Boldt be placed on trial.

MORGAN'S STORY OF MONEY 'IN BILL' MAY START INQUIRY

Cole County Circuit Judge Speaks of Grand Jury Investigation After Hearing of $1500 Mentioned for Measure.

LEGISLATOR'S NAME IS BEING WITHHELD

Republican Floor Leader, Who Also Withholds Name of Bill, Says Words Might Have Been Innocent of Wrong Intent.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, July 16.—Out of the maze of rumors of "sandbagging" bills and whispers of funds that had been raised to "put over" certain measures before the Missouri Legislature at the regular session, which adjourned March 20, has come a statement from Republican Floor Leader J. G. Morgan that another member of the Legislature had told him "there might be $1500 in it" in connection with "a certain bill" then pending.

Morgan today refused to tell the Post-Dispatch correspondent who this Representative was or what the bill under discussion was. He said he since had concluded that the other might have been merely surmising, that his words might have been entirely innocent of any wrong intent.

"I don't intend to place this man in a position which might be a false one and which would draw to him undeserved suspicion," Morgan finished.

Talk of Investigation.

There is talk of a legislative investigation in which Morgan might be asked to disclose the name of the Representative referred to by him and the other circumstances involved.

Circuit Judge John G. Slate of Cole County today said of the Morgan story "There might be a grand jury investigation. I haven't considered the matter throughly and I will make no advance announcements. If I decide an investigation is necessary, I'll just call a grand jury."

Speaker O'Fallon said he would not stand in the way of a legislative investigation, that it might be well to have one. Democratic members have indicated that this is an affair for Republicans, in control of the House to handle for themselves hence leaders of the minority will say little of the story.

Notice of the Morgan incident first came to Jefferson City last night by the arrival of copies of the Milan Standard, a Democratic newspaper published at Milan, Sullivan County, which adjoins Putnam County, which Morgan represents in the Legislature.

This paper of the issue of July 14 maintaind a story under "scare" headlines, to the effect that Morgan had made the statement herein accredited to him, at a road meeting at Unionville, his home, April 9.

Morgan said he was present at the meeting as a spectator, but demanded the floor after a speaker had made statements which cast a reflection upon him.

"In the course of my reply," Morgan said, "I said that a member of the Legislature had suggested to me that there might be as much as $1500 in it in connection with a certain bill then pending.

"Suspicion flashed over me at the moment and I said let's don't talk about anything like that and the matter was dropped. The man has not mentioned the subject nor the incident to me since, and I don't even recall what became of the bill, though it was not passed.

"There was considerable talk around during the regular session, and this man may just have been surmising as many others did. I am sure, however, that there were opportunities for the legislators to have obtained thousands of dollars during the regular session.

"I have played the game squarely and every dollar of the few that I have was obtained by saving and denial. Incidents like this are what disgust decent men with politics."

Declined to Discuss Bill.

Morgan declined to say even what sort of a bill was being discussed between him and the man he mentioned, or where the conversation took place, and said that he did not recall at what stage of the session it happened.

Morgan, who is 36 years old, is serving his third term as a member of the Legislature. He is editor of the Unionville Republican, a weekly Republican newspaper.

Morgan is regarded as one of the most important factors in the House of the present Legislature, having handled the administration tax measures at the regular session and being regarded as very close to Gov. Hyde. He with Senator McCullough of Knox County, was an author of the McCullough-Morgan road law under which was laid out the system of roads adopted by the Senate and by the House Roads Committee as the basis for the new State-wide road system. Morgan has been classed with the "dirt roaders."

In discussing the Unionville road meeting, Morgan said he had gone in his newspaper capacity, "to get a story."

"A fellow who always has seemed to have it in for me, was one of the speakers," he said, "and forced me in self-defense to get up and take a stand, otherwise people could have gone away and said I sat still under fire.

"I told those people that they didn't realize how some of us had to work long into the night, and night after night, down here. Nor did they, most of them not having been to a Legislature, realize how temptations might come. Then I told them of my experience.

"Looked Like a Free-for-All Fight"

"Some man in the crowd jumped up and demanded that I name the man. I refused to do so, however, and things broke loose. I was out in the crowd where I had taken a seat, and a few of my friends gathered around me. For a time it looked like there might be a free-for-all fight.

"Finally a man raised a point of order that the whole discussion was beside the point, which the chairman sustained and things quieted down. A little later I left.

"A fellow can go along doing the right thing and working his head off honestly, and this sort of thing hurts his sensibilities deeply.

"At the same time men with rhinocerous hides, thick enough to be impervious to anything, make thousands of dollars. That's what makes it hard for decent men to stay in politics."

Mother Convicted of Murder and Daughter Yet to Be Tried

MRS. EVA CATHERINE KABER

MAN, SHOT BY SON IN REVOLVER FIGHT IN BACKYARD, DIES

Tony Pestivo Succumbs to Injury Received in Quarrel Over Money.

Tony Pestivo, Sr., 52 years old, a shoeworker, of 5115 Wilson avenue, died at 4:30 p. m., yesterday at the city hospital from the bullet wound in the right breast, inflicted at 6 p. m., Friday by his son, Tony Pestivo, Jr., 21, also a shoeworker, in a fight with revolvers in which they engaged in the backyard of their home.

The son was arrested. Other members of the family said the trouble started at the supper table over the amount of money the son was contributing to the household expenses. The father picked up a carving knife and the son ran to a shed in the rear of the house, which he had been using as a bedroom, and got his revolver. The father also got a revolver and when they met in the back yard the two men fired at each other. The son fired once and his bullet hit the elder Pestivo. The latter fell and as the son ran away the wounded man raised himself on one elbow and fired again. The son was not hit.

I. W. W. DEMONSTRATION ENDED BY DEPORTATION

Radicals in South Dakota Kept on Move After a Murder—Two Arrested as Suspects.

By the Associated Press.

ABERDEEN, S. D., July 16.—Prompt deportation last night of the alleged radical element among harvest hands coming into this territory is believed by Sheriff Henry Elliott of Brown County to have ended for the present any I. W. W. demonstration in this territory. The Sheriff and a posse today searched a group of 500 workers who reached Aberdeen from the South and arrested two men as suspects in connection with the murder of William Henderson of Austin, Tex., at Wolsley, S. D., yesterday. The men, both of whom have been working in Oklahoma, gave their names as Theodore Wujanovich and Andrew Lutjek.

Another shooting was reported from Milbank, S. D., near here. Sheriff John Wilson of Milbank is holding Steve Koseuw of Minneapolis, in connection with the shooting at Milbank yesterday of Harry Owen, 30, of Wheaton, Ill., a harvest hand traveling with Koseuw and two others.

Reports from Groton and Plana, Brown County, through which last night deporters were sent, are that the men flagged a freight train at Bath, west of Groton, and started East. The group sent North split at Plana into smaller groups, and kept on going.

The men were fed at Bath and given shelter from a storm. Of the men who arrived here this morning, 100 boarded a freight train and started for North Dakota. One hundred and fifty applied for work at the Federal Employment Bureau and were taken care of while the others scattered about town.

Worker Killed When He Refused to Join I. W. W.

HURON, S. D., July 16.—William D. Henderson, 23, of Austin, Texas, was shot and killed last night at Wolsey, S. D., three miles west of Huron by a member of a band of some three hundred I. W. W. on the top of a freight train pulling out of Wolsey for the North, when he refused the demands of the I. W. W. organizers to take out a card in the organization.

The train was not stopped until it reached the next station, Tulare, where the sheriff of that place was compelled by force of numbers to permit the I. W. W. members to leave the train, and the slayer was not apprehended.

Henderson was shot through the heart and died instantly. He was an ex-service man and the sheriff of this county fears a lynching if his slayer is apprehended.

MRS. KABER GUILTY, ESCAPES DEATH BY MAN JURY'S MERCY

Her Attorney Pleased She Doesn't Have to Die in Electric Chair—Says He Will Not Appeal.

FIVE OTHERS YET TO BE TRIED IN CASE

Remaining Defendants Include Mrs. Kaber's Daughter and Her Mother—Jury Out Four Hours.

By the Associated Press.

CLEVELAND, O., July 16.—Mrs. Eva Catherine Kaber today was found guilty of first degree murder for plotting the assassination of her husband, Daniel F. Kaber.

It was the hope that mercy would be extended by a male jury which caused her counsel to exclude women jurors on the ground that they are "more cold-blooded and merciless than men." The hope was fulfilled when the 12 men returned a verdict recommending mercy. When women were tentatively seated on the jury, they were dismissed by the defense on peremptory challenges.

As a result of the recommendation for mercy, Mrs. Kaber was sentenced to life imprisonment in the Ohio Reformatory for Women at Maryville by Judge Maurice Bernon. Had the jury not recommended mercy, the Court would have been compelled to sentence Mrs. Kaber to die in the electric chair.

Five Others to Be Tried.

The prison term of Mrs. Kaber was the first tangible result of the State's effort to bring to justice those responsible for the murder of the Lakewood publisher as he lay an invalid in his Lakewood home on the night of July 18, 1919. There remain five others to be tried on first degree murder charges in connection with the crime.

Two of these are Mrs. Mary Brickel, mother, and Miss Marian McArdle, daughter, of Mrs. Kaber. Miss McArdle was with her mother, who was lying in a semi-conscious state in her cell in the county jail, when news of the verdict was brought to them by Attorney W. Poulson, Mrs. Kaber's personal counsel.

Mrs. Kaber's mother, 89 years of age, was at Sterling House, a detention home for women.

The others charged with the crime are Mrs. Ermania Colavito, midwife-nurse, who is alleged to have been a go-between between Mrs. Kaber and Salvator Cala and Vittorio Pisselli, who are alleged to have actually killed Kaber.

Carried To and From Court.

Mrs. Kaber showed no signs of interest in the verdict or even the sentence imposed by the Court, if, in fact, she actually knew what was happening, for she was apparently oblivious to all things. She merely nodded her head when pressed for answers as to whether she understood. She was limp and had to be carried to and from the court room.

Her own fate sealed, what little interest Mrs. Kaber did show was said to be in the future of her daughter Marian, for whom County Prosecutor Edward C. Stanton says he will ask the death penalty. Bail for Miss McArdle was refused today by Judge Bernon on the ground that in the light of testimony in Mrs. Kaber's case, which tended to implicate her also in the crime, he could not grant her temporary freedom. Marian is alleged to have furthered her mother's murder designs and to have played the piano to drown noise while the alleged assassins were shown their victim by Mrs. Kaber.

Because of her physical condition, Mrs. Kaber will not be taken to prison for ten days more, it was said, in order to permit her to regain her strength. The jail physician said he thought Mrs. Kaber's condition is due to over strain during the trial.

Not to Appeal Case.

Both counsel for defense and State said they were well pleased with the verdict. "It is a just verdict," Attorney William J. Corrigan, Mrs. Kaber's counsel, told members of the jury as he clasped their hands and expressed his gratification at the outcome. He had repeatedly told newspaper correspondents that his only hope was a recommendation for mercy. "The verdict is a just one," State's Attorneys also told the jurors. Defense counsel said there would be no appeal.

The jury considered the case for four hours before voting a verdict which is understood to have been done on the third ballot.

It is said to be the first time in the Criminal Court history of Cuyahoga county, that a mother, daughter and grandmother were innvolved in one murder trial; that a woman was found guilty of first degree murder; that sentence was imposed on a defendant who did not stand to receive it; that women were barred from the jury on the ground that they are less merciful than men, and that a verdict delayed two hours because the defendant was unable to be brought into court.

Man Stricken on Car, Dies.

HOUSE REJECTS MOTION TO CHANGE REFERENDUM LAW

Refuses by 49 to 17 to Engross Vandeventer Resolution, After Republicans Speak Against It.

WOULD TAKE AWAY POWER OF PEOPLE

Measure Provided That Legislature Could Refer Its Acts and Would Have Left Initiative as It Stands.

From a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, July 16.—Opposition of House Republicans to any change in the sections of the State Constitution relating to the initiative and referendum was voiced by numerous speakers in the course of a debate this morning on joint and concurrent resolution by Representative Vandeventer of Christian County proposing amendment of those sections and which was up for engrossment.

The House, by a vote of 49 to 17, refused to engross the Vandeventer resolution, all of the 17 and probably a majority of the 49 being Republicans. The vote was taken after Vandeventer, the only afternoon speaker, had closed the discussion.

The resolution was for the submission of a constitutional amendment to take away from the people the power to refer legislation by petition but would permit the Legislature to refer its acts and would enable the people to repeal laws by initiative as well as leaving intact the initiative as it stands.

Only two or three speeches by Republicans not classed as leaders were heard in debate for the proposal, while Republicans of many factions and of conflicting views on most subjects rose to urge that for the present at least no change should be made.

The Democratic members for the most part had little to say, leaving the discussion largely to the majority.

Representative Whitaker of Hickory County, opposing the resolution, referred to the referendum attacks upon Gov. Hyde's consolidation bills.

"That program, designed for 'efficiency, co-ordination and economy in State Government' at first looked like a good thing," he said, "but a lot of office-seekers, like a gang of hoboes along a railroad track, waiting for a train to come along so they could hop on, turned down the program until the purposes of the bill had been materially changed" and became in part job bills as well as "consolidation bills."

PILLS TO BE ANALYZED FOLLOWING DEATH OF CHILD

Following the death, Friday night at the Children's hospital of Robert J. Towers, 2 years old, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Towers, 4204 De Soto avenue, an analysis will be made of a bottle of pills which were found in the room where he was seized with convulsions, and which he is believed to have mistaken for candy.

His parents told the police the pills were for a stomach ailment, and that the child apparently had swallowed several of them. He became suddenly ill, and was removed to the hospital, where he died at 11:30 p. m.

ILLNESS DELAYS STILLMAN CASE

By the Associated Press.

YONKERS, N. Y., July 16.—John F. Brennan, counsel for Mrs. Anne U. Stillman in the divorce action brought by her husband, James A. Stillman, New York banker, is suffering from pneumonia and will be confined to his bed for more than a month, it was said tonight after a conference of physicians at his home here. He is 70 years old.

His illness will delay further hearings in the Stillman case, which were set for July 27. It is now thought the case will not be resumed before September.

51 TEAM OWNERS SAID TO HAVE SIGNED WITH UNION

Strikers Report 400 Men Have Returned to Work, Leaving 650 Out—Men to Meet Today.

EFFORT MADE TO GET CONFERENCES

Seventy-Four Arrests Made in Week—Police to Provide Protection for Firms That Operate.

A special meeting of teamsters and truck drivers, who went on strike last Monday to resist reductions in wages of 10 and 12 per cent, will be held at 10 a. m. today at 2228 Olive street, for the purpose, it was announced last night, of receiving a report of the Strikers' Committee.

The committee will report among other things that 51 individual teamsters and teaming companies, as told in yesterday's Post-Dispatch, have signed contracts on union terms orf one year, and that about 400 men have returned to work since the strike began, leaving about 650 still on strike.

Effort to Arrange Conferences.

The Strikers' Committee, assisted by Father Timothy Dempsey, of St. Patrick's Parish, who has proffered his services in the interest of conciliation, as he frequently has done in labor trouble, devoted most of yesterday in an attempt to arrange conferences with a view to ending the strike.

Among the firms that have signed contracts for one year at the old wage scale since the strike began, according to Eugene Cunningham, secretary-treasurer of the union, are:

The Gunn Transfer Co., 1915 North Ninth street; Perkins Transfer and Forwarding Co., 1435 North Second; Brashear Truck Service Co., 614 South Sixth; Bernhard and Behan Drayage Co., 3021 Olive; Ansell Express Co., 714 Morgan; M. P. Sullivan Transfer Co., 209 South Seventh; Kavanaugh Bros. Drayage Co., 917 North Fourth; Woodley Transfer Co., Main and Bremen; Farrell Motor Service Co., 5058 Garfield avenue; Commercial Express and Transfer Co., 109 Olive; Carlson Transfer Co., 12 North Third; City Express Co., 505 North Second; Interurban Express Co., 925 North Seventh, and East St. Louis; Koenig Hauling and Express Co., 614 Ann avenue; Carl Kaufmann Drayage Co., 2215 Maiden Lane; the A. Morgan Hauling and Express Co., 1919 Benton; Liberty Transfer Co., Twentieth and Howard; Ward and Mack, Ninth and Morgan; Noble Express and Transfer Co., 411 North Third; Peerless Express Co., 307 North Sixteenth; H. F. Beckman, 1937 Dodier, and P. J. Hamill, 610 North Main.

Firms to Attempt Operation.

Comparatively few of the larger companies affected by the strike attempted to operate teams and trucks last week. From the second day of the strike the Columbia Terminals Co., the largest concern involved, operated 15 to 20 teams and trucks a day in the movement of freight to East St. Louis, and has announced that this service will be continued under police protection. The other service companies also will attempt to resume operations on a moderate scale at first, or as rapidly as teamsters and truck chauffeurs can be obtained.

The strike virtually paralyized the vehicle freight transportation business, not only of the service companies, but of large manufacturing concerns whose employes joined the strike. Frank A. Britton, president of the Association of Truck and Team Owners, said that rapidly accumulating merchandise and freight was daily becoming a serious problem, and that every effort would be made, independent of the union, to resume business on a normal scale.

Britton, who operates about 30 teams and trucks, drove a large truck yesterday, transporting salesmen's sample cases from the Hamilton-Brown Shoe Co. to Union Station. He said he had not been molested by the strikers.

The situation affecting the traveling public, due to baggage wagon drivers joining the strikers, remains acute, and travelers are compelled to employ private expressmen and use automobiles to take baggage to and from Union Stations.

There were 74 arrests for violent acts and loitering last week. There was only one serious injury and that was the shooting of John Huckshold, 7628 Pennsylvania avenue, by Patrolman Eugene Meinhardt. Huckshold had been pointed out as the man who held a negro teamster while others unhitched a team, and when arrested broke away from the patrolman at a patrol box and attempted to escape.

The police details to strike duty will be the same tomorrow as yesterday, President Miller of the Police Board said last night. All available patrolmen will be on duty in the commercial district during business hours, and motor cycle and automobile details will be kept in reserve.

7 YEARS AT HARD LABOR AND DISMISSAL FOR ARMY CAPTAIN

B. G. Chew Convicted of Forgery and Other Charges After Long Trial at Governor's Island.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, July 16.—After the longest court martial proceedings on record at Governor's Island, Capt. Beverly Grayson Chew of Washington, D. C., was convicted tonight of conduct unbecoming an officer, forgery and impersonation of fellow officers. He was sentenced to dismissal from the service and seven years at hard labor in a military prison to be designated later.

The trial consumed eight weeks. Every effort was made by the defense to prove that the accused officer was insane as a result of gas and wounds received in France and that he was not responsible for his acts when in October, 1920, he visited Washington, Baltimore and other cities with a woman, registering at prominent hotels in the names of fellow officers and forging their signatures to checks.

The captain will retain his status in the service, it was said at Governor's Island, until the case has been reviewed and the findings finally acted upon by officials in Washington.

"MYSTERY SHIP" SAID TO HAVE LANDED WHISKY

By the Associated Press.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., July 15.—Emanuel Katz, proprietor of a hotel here, was arrested by Cape May police today and held under $2,000 bail on a charge of smuggling intoxicants along the coast.

According to the police, Katz is suspected of being implicated in a plot to land 152 cases of whisky, valued at $30,000, from an alleged "Mystery Ship." The liquor was seized by agents after it had been landed from small boats. All of the cases of liquor were stamped: "Nassau, Bahamas, via New York."

The presence of supposed "Mystery Ships" which maneuvered just outside the three-mile limit has been known to revenue agents, it is said.

ANTIRE ROAD REPAIRS ASSURED

Antire road, between Valley Park and Pacific, passing through Eureka, will be straightened, widened and resurfaced with macadam within the near future as a result of subscription for $20,000 of the $60,000 road bonds necessary for the work by Daniel C. Kerckhoff, president of the Pevely Dairy Co., which owns the John T. Milliken farm at Crescent.

This road is part of the Ozark Trails and is heavily traveled by St. Louisans who motor to the Meramec. Several dangerous hills will be lowered and curves will be straightened and widened. Banks along the route have agreed to take the remainder of the bonds. Kerkhoff donated the discount and contributed $1200 additional.

AUTO HITS STREET CAR; MAN SERIOUSLY HURT

Woman Struck by Machine When Crossing Street—Another in Side Car Injured.

An automobile containing two men, being driven south on Twelfth street, shortly before last midnight, crashed into an eastbound Manchester street car at Market street and was turned over. An unidentified young man was seriously injured. The other occupant, L. R. Hancock, 31 years old, of 18 North Eleventh street, a switchman, who was slightly hurt, said at the city hospital that he did not know his companion. The unidentified young man, 5 feet 9 inches tall, who was wearing a dark suit, was said to have suffered a fractured skull. He was unconscious when received at the hospital.

Mrs. Mildred Henderson, 22 years old, wife of Raymond Henderson, 5827 Cote Brilliante avenue, was struck by an automobile owned and driven by Sidney Merkadeau, 38, of 1418 North Nineteenth street, at Cote Brilliante and Hamilton avenues at 11 o'clock last night and suffered a deep laceration in the right leg that tore out a muscle. She was taken to the city hospital.

Mrs. Henderson was crossing Hamilton avenue with her husband and was about to step on the northeast curb when knocked down by the automobile. The machine veered off and struck a fire hydrant, which broke the windshield, scattering glass over the occupants, who, besides Merkadeau, were his 14-year-old son, Leonard, and his mother-in-law, Mrs. Rachel Bernhardt, of 5842 Cote Brilliante. The boy's face was cut by flying glass. Merkadeau was arrested and charged with felonious wounding.

Woman in Side Car Hurt.

Mrs. Gertrude Matavovsky, 37 years old, of 3911 Marine avenue, suffered internal injuries, injury to her back, scalp wounds and cuts on both arms last night when the side car and motor cycle driven by her husband, Joseph, 35, was struck at Seventh street and Geyer avenue by an automobile driven by Frank Mik, 1300 Allen avenue. Matavovsky suffered only minor hurts. The police were told that he endeavored to pass in front of the automobile and a charge of careless driving was placed against him.

Mrs. David Bradley of 4957 Wise avenue suffered a fractured jaw and right arm and cuts and bruises last night when the steering pin of an automobile in which she was riding with her husband in King's highway broke. The machine crashed into a trolley pole near Oleatha avenue. Bradley was slightly cut.

Walter Wilton, 26, of 6148 Crescent avenue, was thrown from his motor cycle at Clayton and McCausland avenue at 9 o'clock last night in a collision with an automobile driven by George McCourtney of Maplewood, suffering a fracture of his left leg and cuts and bruises. He was taken to Barnes Hospital.

Truck in a Collision.

Sherman Burbank, 36 years old, of West Frankfort, Ill., an automobile salesman, was cut on the forehead and nose and Charles Eveland, 32, of 6515 Maple avenue, a chauffeur, suffered fractures of two ribs and a dislocation of the shoulder at 1:45 p. m. yesterday when a touring car in which Burbank was riding and a motor truck operated by Eveland collided at Delmar boulevard and Vandeventer avenue.

The truck was knocked through the show window of the Dorn Bros. Grocery Co., at the southeast corner of Delmar and Vandeventer, damaging the window and stock $550.

ROBBED HOTEL ROOMS IN MANY CITIES

Man Caught After Statler Theft Says He Asked for Keys and Carried Away Articles.

The prisoner held at Police Headquarters under the name of Ralph Milton Davis, whose arrest early Friday, in a sidewalk disturbance, led to the discovery that he had robbed the room occupied by Naomi Childers, moving picture star, at Hotel Statler, made a confession last night to Chief of Detectives Hoagland. He told of his method of robbing hotel rooms, and named the cities where he had committed such robberies. He promised to make out a full list of the hotels, if he could recall them, and he said all were large hotels.

The prisoner, who is about 35 years old, said his name was Percy L. Gray. He told of having served two terms in Massachusetts reformatories, six months in the St. Louis workhouse and four years in the Jefferson City Penitentiary, his term ending about the beginning of the war period. He said he enlisted as an aviation mechanic, and served at various flying fields until late in 1919.

"After I was discharged," he said, "I couldn't get work. I was in a hotel in Louisville, when I asked for the key to a certain room, and took out a grip with three suits of clothes, but before I could sell the things I had the 'flu' and was in a hospital. I came to St. Louis in January, 1920, and pawned the clothing here for $50. At the Statler I tried the same plan, and got a grip containing clothing and furs. This, too, brought $50.

"In Peoria, in the same month, I met Henrietta Weidenbacher, a demonstrator and saleswoman, and we were married in Chicago the following month. She stayed at the Congress Hotel in Chicago, and while calling there, I got the key to a room, went in and took clothing, which I pawned for the wedding expenses. I got more valuables at the Sherman House, and when we went to Detroit for our honeymoon, I did the same at Hotel Statler there, getting some things which I took to Toledo and sold. I got some more stuff the same way in Toledo. Other places where I have taken grips and articles from hotel rooms are Des Moines, Omaha, Cleveland, Cincinnati and Albany.

Told Wife He Was Auditor.

"In Des Moines I got loose stones that brought $500, and in Omaha two fur pieces that brought $600. But in most places I found that people don't leave their most valuable articles in hotel rooms. So I have never got anything big—just enough to keep along on without having to work. My wife has been living in Kansas City, and she probably still thinks I am traveling auditor for a Kansas City bank, which is what I have told her I was doing."

When he was arrested here in 1912 for stealing a woman's purse in a store, he had a wife of a few days, who had eloped with him from Greenville, Ill. When she learned of his means of livelihood, she got a divorce.

From his account, the articles of clothing and jewelry belonging to Miss Childers, when he entered her room in her absence Thursday evening, and which she values at more than $2000, constitute about the largest and most valuable collection he ever obtained.

Other developments in the case of Davis will be found on Page 4 of Part Three of the Post-Dispatch.

MISSING DENTIST REPORTED AT PORTLAND

Headless Body Was Found Under Auto of Roseburg (Ore.) Man, Charged With Murder.

By the Associated Press.

ROSEBURG, Ore., July 16.—Officers investigating the mystery of the headless body beneath the wrecked automobile of Dr. R. M. Brumfield, found here Wednesday, learned from Portland that a man believed to be the owner of the car had passed through there the evening after the body was found.

A garage man identified Dr. Brumfield's photograph as that of a man who purchased gasoline from him, and said his customer appeared nervous.

An autopsy was performed today on the body. One bullet had severed the spinal cord and lodged in the stomach. A second wound, also in the back, was found.

Although the body has been identified by his two brothers as that of Dennis Russel, local laborer, counsel for Mrs. Brumfield said they hoped to prove it was that of the missing Dr. Brumfield. Mrs. Brumfield was advised by her attorneys not to discuss the case for publication.

Meanwhile the police are continuing to search for Dr. Brumfield, whom they charge with causing Russel's death. Brumfield carried heavy insurance policies, and is declared by the officers to have been involved financially.

RAINBOW DIVISION VETERANS FAIL TO INDORSE CASH BONUS

By the Associated Press.

CLEVELAND, O., July 16.—The Rainbow Division Veterans' Association failed to indorse an immediate cash bonus for former soldiers at the closing session of its annual convention here today. A resolution, however, recommending early collection of the accrued interest on the allied war debt to the United States and the use of the money to pay the adjusted compensation for ex-soldiers was adopted.

The resolution pointed out that the allied war debt to the United States amounts to $10,000,000,000 and that $1,500,000,000 are now due as accrued interest.

It condemned the "waste of millions of dollars each year in the employment of a vast army of unnecessary public officers and agents and indulgence in other forms of national extravagance by the Federal Government." The latter clause was said to be intended as a condemnation of the amount of money being spent in enforcement of the Volstead act.

Col. George R. Leach, former commanding officer of the 151st Field Artillery, now Mayor of Minneapolis, was elected president. Honorary president, Matt A. Tinley, Council Bluffs, Ia.; first vice president, J. Bentley Mulford, Washington, D. C.; Chaplain, the Rev. J. J. Halliday, Detroit; historian, Col. W. B. Wolfe, Chicago. The next annual convention will be held in Minneapolis July 14 and July 15.

FIRE HALTS ICE MAKING AT A POLAR WAVE PLANT

Machinery in Pump House at Main Factory Damaged—Fumes Hamper Firemen.

The manufacture of ice at the Polar Wave Ice and Fuel Co's largest ice plant, at Newstead and Duncan avenues, has been temporarily halted as a result of a fire of undetermined origin, which damaged the pump house at 3:15 p. m., yesterday.

Three alarms of fire were sounded and firemen worked for more than two hours, under the personal direction of Chief Panzer, before they extinguished the blaze. Fumes from leaking ammonia pipes kept the firemen at a distance.

The flames were prevented from spreading to adjoining property where combustible materials are stored. Just west of the ice factory is a lumber yard and to the east is the company's anthracite elevator, containing 15,000 tons of coal. Across the street on the Duncan avenue side, on a lot of half a block, thousands of cords of wood are stored and directly south of the plant, in the company's switching yard, many box cars are standing on side tracks.

The plant has a maximum capacity for the making of 350 tons of ice a day and has been operating 24 hours a day. A huge storage house adjoining the factory on the east side contains the company's reserve stock of 15,000 tons of ice.

The pump house is situated in the center of the ice plant and is surrounded by huge engines and ice manufacturing machinery. The water used for ice, after being heated by the generating machinery, passes through the pump house, where it is cooled and then is sent back to the machinery.

Officers of the company said the blaze probably was due to a break in the pumps. They said that it would be necessary for experts to go over the machinery to determ just what occurred. There was no fire insurance on the plant and it was said the amount of repair work necessary and the period of idleness of the plant would determine the damage done.

Joseph E. Muckermann, second vice president and general manager of the company, said repairs on the machinery would be started this morning. The only damage to the building was in the burning of the roof.

GET 7% ON YOUR FIRST $10

You needn't wait to save $100 to buy a security paying you 7%. You can draw 7% on the first $10 you save, and on each later $10. You can do this by buying Union Electric Light & Power Company 7% preferred shares on a ten-monthly-payment plan.

You will be just as welcome into Union Electric's big family of home shareholders, buying one or more shares on the ten-payment plan, as if you paid all cash for a hundred shares. Our experience has proven that every new home shareholder is one more friend here at home helping us increase the business. We want 25,000 to 30,000 home shareholders, and we are getting them at the rate of over a thousand a year.

Our home shareholders have learned that they can bank on getting their 7% preferred cash dividends regularly—$1.75 every three months on each $100 share. They have learned that in case of need they can always have their shares resold for them, through our Securities Department, at $100 a share.

CLEARING HOUSE ASKED NOT TO PUBLISH TOTALS

C. of C. Secretary Says Figures Are Misleading, Suggests Number of Checks Be Given.

A letter urging that the daily publication of Clearing House totals be discontinued was sent yesterday to E. B. Pryor, president of the St. Louis Clearing House, by Paul V. Bunn, general secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, who declared that the figures were misleading, and suggested that the number of checks be published, instead. The text of the letter follows:

"Recently you decided to quit publishing the exact figures on the daily business of the Clearing House on the ground that these figures were being used by lottery gamblers. We now beg to suggest that in order to render St. Louis a still bigger service you discontinue entirely the publication of clearing house totals, on the ground that they not only "do not mean anything," but they do a positive harm to St. Louis' reputation as a business and financial center.

"For example: Every well informed person knows that St. Louis banks do a greater actual business than Kansas City. In such real items as assets, resources and debits our figures are perhaps 50 per cent larger. But, because Kansas City includes a greater number of small banks in its Clearing House, or because the same item is counted several times by their method, they have for years told the world that their clearings totals are from 50 per cent to 100 per cent greater than ours; and to the uninitiated—who are in the great majority—that conveys the erroneous idea that Kansas City is doing a much larger financial business than St. Louis. Three-fourths of the people who read these figures have that opinion.

"When three large banks combined into the First National that at once made a heavy cut in our clearings totals; and when two more banks combined into the Liberty Central, that made another cut. Yet the total actual business done by these five banks was gerater after the consolidation than before.

"Now then, suppose these five banks should now combine into one, and then add the next larger two—our clearing totals would at once drop to the level of a city of 50,000 to 100,000 people, although the total actual business might be increased 20 per cent.

"When a check that is issued is charged against someone's account—it represents an actual business transaction. The total of such checks would be the best possible indication of the amount of real business done. The Federal Reserve Board has approved the idea of publishing these 'debits against individual accounts' as the most reliable business barometer, and our suggestion and request is that the Clearing House of St. Louis hereafter publish those figures instead of the misleading and meaningless 'Celaring House totals;' and that, once started, it ask the Clearing Houses of other cities to do likewise.

"If the clearing totals as now published are of use to anyone at all, it is the Clearing House itself, and it might still compile the same totals for its own information—but we should be much pleased to see their publication discontinued."

Clearing House officials have not indicated what action will be taken upon the request.

DIFFERENT STORIES AS TO HOW MAN LOST EYE ON GOLF COURSE

Contradictory stories were told yesterday by the respective sides as to how Edmund A. Hogbin, 27 years old, of 5658 Cote Brilliante avenue, lost his right eye when hit in the face with a golf ball and club on the nine-hole public course in Forest Park a week ago yesterday. The club was in the hands of Victor Volkmann of 4926 Laclede avenue, a 16-year-old McKinley High School student.

George Hogbin, father of the injured man, said his son described the accident as follows: Hogbin had just driven off No. 5 tee. Turning to pick up his caddy bag, he was struck in the eye by a ball driven off the same tee by Volkmann, immediately behind him, and also was hit in the face with Volkmann's club head, this blow cutting a deep gash on his nose. Hogbin was knocked unconscious, and when he recovered, Volkmann had hailed a passing automobile, and was taking him to Barnes Hospital. Hogbin told his father that he was not playing with Volkmann, and didn't understand how the latter happened to be driving at that time and from that position.

Volkmann's mother, Mrs. Edward Volkmann, said her son told her that Hogbin ran in front of him, and that he didn't see him until it was too late to halt his stroke.

Hogbin is assistant automatic instrument chief for the Western Union, and is married. Volkmann's father is an architect.

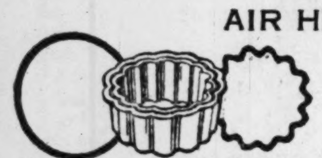
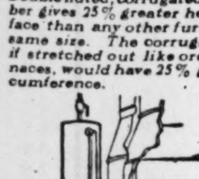
Bridge & Beach

AIR HEATER AND HUMIDIFIER

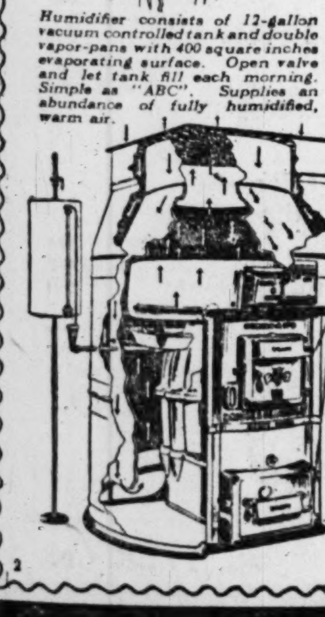
(PIPE AND PIPELESS)



Double fluted, corrugated fire chamber gives 25% greater heating surface than any other furnace of the same size. The corrugated walls, if stretched out like ordinary furnaces, would have 25% greater circumference.



Humidifier consists of 12-gallon vacuum controlled tank and double vapor-pans with 400 square inches evaporating surface. Open valve and let tank fill each morning. Simple as "ABC". Supplies an abundance of fully humidified, warm air.



are heavily fluted with deep corrugations, they give 25% more heating surface in the same space. Stretched out in a flat band, like the walls of an ordinary furnace, they would have a 25% greater circumference. This corrugation not only means greater radiation, but better combustion—more heat from less fuel.

Saving of fuel is a factor of prime importance in selecting a heating system for the home.

Bridge & Beach Air Heater and Humidifier ideally combines greater heating capacity and less fuel consumption and gives you an abundance of fully humidified, healthful, warm air in every room of your home.

Costs no more than an ordinary furnace and can be installed in any home—old or new. You suffer no inconvenience while it is being installed—no expensive alterations are necessary—and it requires but little attention to operate.

Made in both pipe and pipeless styles in a variety of sizes—with many new and exclusive features—the Bridge & Beach Air Heater and Humidifier represents a new standard of perfection in the field of modern heating systems for the home—a fitting achievement for the manufacturers who have held a position of chief importance in the stove and range industry in this country for 84 years.

OPERATION OF ARKANSAS RAILROAD DISCUSSED

Government Aid Sought for Line in Which St. Louisans Have Invested $10,000,000.

Judge Trieber of the Federal Court at Little Rock and J. C. Murray, newly appointed receiver of the Missouri & North Arkansas Railroad, which extends from Joplin, Mo., to Helena, Ark., a distance of 356 miles, and in which St. Louisans have invested about $10,000,000, met in St. Louis yesterday and discussed plans for continued operation of the road pending efforts of a committee of St. Louisans to obtain financial aid from the United States Railroad Administration. Judge Trieber was passing through St. Louis on vacation and met Murray to give directions on how to operate the road. Following the conference, Murray departed for Washington.

Telegrams urging Federal aid for the road were sent to Missouri and Arkansas Senators in Washington Friday by the following St. Louis individuals and firms:

Edwards Whitaker, president Boatmen's Bank, who represents St Louis holders of notes amounting to nearly $6,000,000; David R. Francis Bro. & Co., the Scullin estate, Mercantile Trust Co., James J. Grover, vice president St. Louis Union Trust Co.; G. H. Walker & Co., W. L. Becktold, S. A. Mitchell, W. Arthur Sthickney, A. G. Edwards & Co. and R. McKittrick Jones.

In another telegram from St. Louisans to the Railroad Administration it was stated that Judge Trieber would no doubt stop operation of the road unless there was Federal relief at once, and that an investigation had disclosed that $300,000 was necessary to keep the road in operation.

W. C. Jenkins, department representative of the Railways Employes' Department, American Federation of Labor, and J. F. Mounts, general vice president of the Brotherhood of Railway Carmen, yesterday telegraphed the Post-Dispatch from Joplin denial of stories being circulated in towns on the Missouri and North Arkansas Railroad to the effect that the strike of employes of the road, which has been in effect since last winter, was responsible for the financial condition of the company. The telegram said the unions wished to reiterate that they were willing, as heretofore, to abide by the decision of the United States Labor Board.

BROTHERS, 15 AND 17, ADMIT TWO MURDERS

Killed One Man Over $20, Second for Fear He Would Tell, and Blamed Crime on Third.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

HUTCHINSON, Kans., July 16.—Desiring to shield his younger brother Hosea Ellis, 15 years old, caused Harry Ellis, 17, the Liberal murderer, to attempt to fasten the responsibility of the murder of John Longnecker and Henry Smith on Frank Miller.

Harry Ellis, has broken down and has made what the officers believe is a true presentment of facts in the two killings of last April and May.

Hosea Ellis, the 15-year-old boy, who has also made a full confession of his part in the crime, is being held in jail at Beaver City, Oklahoma. He was arrested yesterday.

The motive for the two murders was given for the first time in Harry Ellis' confession, yesterday. He said Longnecker was killed on April 27 because Longnecker refused to pay $20 to Ellis, which Ellis said he won from Longnecker in a pool game. When he demanded payment he said Longnecker cursed him and said he would break his neck. The Ellis boys went to the Longnecker ranch and after Harry Ellis shot him the younger boy beat him on the head with a club and helped to drag the body to a haystack where it was hidden.

Henry Smith was killed because Harry Ellis feared Smith would tell of the murder. He said Smith intimated to him one day that he knew who killed Longnecker.

Although Henry Miller, another suspect who has been held in the Ford county jail is absolved by the confessions of the Ellis brothers, he will be tried as an accessory. Harry Ellis stayed at the Miller home after he had killed Smith, who lived a mile from the Miller home.

One of the unusual incidents is that the father of the Ellis brothers was a member of the coroner's jury in the killing of Smith.

FORD SAID TO CONTEMPLATE BUYING ANOTHER RAILROAD

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

TOLEDO, Ohio, July 16.—Henry Ford is considering purchase of the Toledo to Fort Wayne, Ind., division of the Wabash Railroad, it was learned on good authority today. Ford visited Toledo this week in company with a party of Wabash officials and his own advisers. The entire division was inspected to ascertain what improvement would be necessary to place the road in first class condition.

Having purchased the Detroit, Toledo & Ironton Railroad and developed it as an efficient freight carrier, it is understood by the Toledo parties who were present during Ford's visit here that Ford now desires an outlet into Toledo and Fort Wayne. Freight transfers could be made at Napoleon junction of the Wabash and U. T. & I. lines.

It is also stated that Ford has an eye on the rest of the Wabash lines with a view to obtaining a means of direct freight shipment from his Detroit foundry to St. Louis. In view of the fact that the entire system sold for only $200,000,000 in 1913, and at the present time is in poor physical condition, it does not seem improbable that Ford may try to take over the entire property.

It is thought here that this new railroad project has a direct connection with Ford's offer of $5,000,000 for the Government nitrate plant at Muscle Shoals, Ala. Completion of the two dams under the terms of Ford's offer to the Government would make the Tennessee River navigable as far as Chattanooga. This river would give a direct transportation outlet from the nitrate plant to St. Louis, western terminal of the Wabash system.

MRS. O'HARE TO PROSECUTE NINE MEN, WHO KIDNAPED HER

St. Louis Socialist Lecturer and Writer Employs Lawyer—Nine Men Arrested in Case.

By the Associated Press.

GIRARD, Kan., July 16.—Mrs Kate Richards O'Hare, widely known Socialist lecturer and writer, who was kidnaped the afternoon of July 1 last from the home of her sponsor in Twin Falls, Idaho, after lectures by her and others had been announced for that evening, has employed Jake I. Sheppard of Fort Scott as her attorney, and her daughter, Kathleen O'Hare, announced tonight that Mrs. O'Hare will prosecute the case against the 11 men who are said to have abducted her.

Carl de Long and Dr. Snook, both of Twin Falls, are two of the nine men arrested by Sheriff Bert Robinson of Monticello, Nev., Miss O'Hare said tonight, and the police records there will show the names of the other seven men. They will be charged with kidnaping, deportation from one state to another, and causing injury to the health of [illegible] as a result of the hard 12-hour ride, resulting in congestion of the lungs, Miss O'Hare said.

Men say these things about it—

"Like New After Two Years"

"Purchased my Essex in the Spring of 1919 and after covering over 18,000 miles my motor is running better than ever. Battery has been out of my car only once. No mechanical expense has been incurred."

HENRY R. GAMMETT
The Downham & Gammett Co.

"Favorite of 15 Cars"

"Have driven 9000 miles to date and instead of depreciating in efficiency my Essex has increased daily.

"It is the greatest of 15 makes I have driven."

BRUCE CHISHOLM
City and Suburban Realty Co.
Cleveland, Ohio

"Snug as New After 32,500 Miles"

"In 17 months have driven my Essex 32,500 miles. Bearings are still as snug as when I received the car. It has all the power and speed of a new car. 20,000 on a set of Fabric tires still good for 3000 miles."

WM. J. LYNCH
Ft. Bliss Auto Stand
El Paso, Texas

"Best of 31 Cars"

"During the past ten years I have owned 31 automobiles ranging in cost from $1500 to $10,000, but my Essex Sedan does everything and more than any of them did."

The Writer's Name and Address Will Be Furnished on Request

"Over 20,000 Miles on Tires"

"Have driven my Essex Sedan over 20,000 miles on the original tires. Has given excellent satisfaction—upkeep has been very slight. Am also driving an Essex touring which has covered 14,000 miles, and my experience with this has been equal to that with the Sedan."

J. M. BROS., Secretary
Wm. Bros. Boiler & Manufacturing Co.
Minneapolis, Minn.

"Too Good to Trade"

"We will not trade in any of our Essex cars, but will use them another season. They were used continually since the Spring of 1920, and the men who drive them requested me not to trade them in this year, as each is convinced he has the very best car on the road, and the best motor he ever rode behind.

"As rapidly as our F——s are retired, we will take on the Essex. They are just as light on tires, use less gas than the F——, cover mileage faster, are easier on the men. Practically no time out for repairs."

WALRATH & SHERWOOD LUMBER CO.
Omaha, Nebraska

"Just Try It After 22,000 Miles"

"One ride in my Essex as it stands, after 22,000 miles, will convince anybody that it has as much power, speed, reliability and freedom from noise as when new."

The average time for each of the four Essex cars over 3347 Miles Ocean to Ocean route was 4 days, 21 hours, 32 minutes.

Essex set the official 50-hour record, traveling 3037 miles at better than a mile a minute. For cars of its motor size it holds all official stock records for speed and endurance from 1 to 50 hours.

It set the world's 24-hour road mark of 1061 miles, and the official 24-hour dirt track record of 1261 miles. Essex also set the New York-Chicago record—24 hrs., 43 min., and the San Bernardino hill climb record.

—because it is built this way

The Essex did not bring costly car performance and reliability to the light, moderate-priced field without diplicating or excelling the design and workmanship of the finest, high-priced cars.

For instance S. F. Edge, England's most noted automobile authority, says: "This motor might have had a Coatelen * or a Pomeroy * as its sponsor (*Respectively designers of two English cars of higher price than any American car).

And so throughout, Essex gets its long endurance, and continued smoothness and quietness of operation, from the way it is built. It has eliminated squeaking bodies with a frame so designed that it does not weave. This frame, with one exception, is sturdier for the duty it is to perform than any other car.

Devices which provide for longer wear, or for taking up wear at no expense, are Essex features that only a few of the highest priced cars duplicate. This is the reason that Essex cars that have seen 2 years service and upwards of 20,000 miles are running as well and as quietly and economically now as when new. Bearings are snug. Joints are tight and free from squeaks. Doors are solid and flush-fitting, without rattles. You never have seen an Essex with weaving wheels, and bar accident sufficient to smash a car, you never will.

These are not spectacular advantages. You may not notice them in comparing Essex to another new car. But you will know what they mean if you compare an old Essex to another old car.

Time serves to show the real difference between the way cars are built. That is why Essex owners who have had their cars through long, hard service, speak with such conviction of its goodness.

It is easy for you to find and examine the real proofs regarding any car you may think of buying:

What have cars of the same make shown over a period of several years?

What is the future expectancy of good service from such cars after twenty or thirty thousand miles.

You have the all important advantage of being able to ask owners. Make use of it. It is an inexpensive insurance against the risk of making a selection you may regret.

We will be glad of an early opportunity to explain the many points of advantage that only costly cars share with Essex.

COURT TOMORROW TO HOLD HEARING IN PRINTERS' SUIT

Union Members File Answer to Employers' Injunction Plea and Assert They Were Locked Out.

CHARGE "SLUGGERS" CAUSE TROUBLE

Affidavits Made That "Operatives" of Detective Agency Had Approached Some of the Men.

The suit of 18 employing printers, members of the Open Shop Printers' Association of St. Louis, against the Allied Printing Trades Council and its member unions for an injunction against alleged practices of the unions in hindrance of the business of the employers and their nonunion employes, will be heard in Federal Court here tomorrow.

The answer of the unions was filed yesterday, denying the charges and making counter charges against the employers. The members of the unions have not worked for the plaintiffs since April 31.

The hearing will be before Federal Judge Martin Wade of Des Moines, Ia., who is to hold court here tomorrow to take care of any pressing matters on the docket of Judge Faris, who is in Wisconsin on vacation.

Unions Claim a Lockout.

The controversy between the unions and master printers grew out of the alleged refusal of the employers to grant their workers the 44-hour week, instead of 48 hours, beginning May 1. The unions' affidavits accompanying their answer declare that a "lockout" of the workers was effected by the declaration of open shop and deny that there was a conspiracy of the unions to force the 44-hour week by creating a general strike.

The unions' affidavits take up individual charges of intimidation and violence made by nonunion workers in affidavits filed in support of the suit several days ago and deny them categorically. It is alleged by the unions, on the other hand, that the employers have arranged to exercise violence against union members.

Percy Pepoon, president of Typographical Union No. 8, the most important one involved, made affidavit that he is "informed and believes the plaintiffs have brought to St. Louis 'sluggers,' whose business it is to provoke trouble with the union members and to try to draw them into committing breaches of the peace, and that operatives of detective agencies have been brought here to spy on the unions and bring about controversies among them."

Tells of Man's Threat.

John G. Warrington, secretary of the Allied Printing Trades Council, swore that he met a man named Hasselberg, employed by the R. P. Studley Printing Co., and connected with the Hargrave Secret Service Agency, who offered to leave the unions alone and leave the city if given $300 and a ticket to Chicago. Warrington declared that this man threatened to "come back with 20 men" if this offer was not met. The offer was not met. Warrington declared this man said this controversy was "too slow; you don't need a gun here."

Joseph H. Ebeling, secretary of the Printing Pressmen's Union, made affidavit that he met one Earl Miller, who said he worked for the Hargrave Agency at the River City Press here, who said the agency's operatives were instructed to start trouble when approached by pickets, "because the more trouble the more money for the operatives." Miller was quoted also as saying the agency's men were trained to injure pickets.

Among the allegations in other petitions were that one employing printer deliberately tried to run down with his automobile a picket at his plant, that a heavy stake fell from an upper window behind a woman picket, suspiciously, and that one employer appeared before pickets with an open knife and in an excited manner.

Hertenstein Makes Statement.

Charles Hertenstein, for 12 years president of Typographical Union No. 8, until recently, made affidavit that the plaintiffs in the suit were members of the local branch of the Printers' League of America, which, together with the Typographical Union, belongs to the International Joint Conference Council, and that this council had made an agreement with the unions to be effective all over the country on May 1, 1921, for the 44-hour week.

Hertenstein further declared that the controversy was not a strike, but a lockout, for the reason that the employers had announced they would operate as open shops, without reference to the unions, and had since employed only nonunion workers.

Affidavits by 12 groups of union members who had picketed 12 different printing establishments, declared that no intimidation or violence had been resorted to, but that the picketing was peaceful and orderly.

Jimmie Newell Says:

"That's Like Giving 'Em Away!"

The General Sales Manager of the Newell Motor Car Company walked into President Jimmie Newell's office and said to him: "If we continue to sell as many Stearns and Paige cars as we have in the past two weeks, we will have to sell the cars we trade in much faster."

Jimmie said: "Well, go ahead and sell them."

The General Manager said: "We ought to reduce the price so they will move quickly."

Jimmie said: "Make up your figures and show them to me."

The General Manager walked out—slashed the prices—brought the list back and showed it to Jimmie, and Jimmie said:

"THAT'S LIKE GIVING THEM AWAY"

Below in this very advertisement you will find Reconditioned Cars priced in such fashion that, as Jimmie Newell says, "It's like giving them away."

Police Board Issues Rules To Govern St. Louis Boxing; Bandy and Jacks in First Go

Fifteen-Round Bouts to a Decision Are Possible Under President Miller's Construction of the Law—Committee, Already Named, Will See That the Board's Regulations Are Enforced.

By John E. Wray.

UNLESS rain or some unforeseen circumstance interferes, the St. Louis boxing game, which has been slumbering since an edict of President Victor Miller of the Police Board closed it some months ago, will awaken tomorrow night under conditions that might make a Rip Van Winkle of the past few weeks stare in amazement.

If plans announced are put through the Freddie Jacks-Kid Bandy bout at the Battery A drill yard, under the auspices of the St. Louis Athletic Association, will witness many features not dreamed of in the philosophy of the recent ringsider here.

To begin with, instead of an eight-round bout, spectators will get a 12-round run for their money—perhaps. If desired, 15-round matches may be put on by promoters.

Again, for the first time in years, official decisions will be permitted.

The boxing fan no longer will be able to walk up to the man at the window at 8 p. m. on fight nights and say "Gimme a ticket." He must join the club beforehand. That means no nonmember's money can be accepted after 7 p. m.

Public to Be Safeguarded.

Rigid rules, now being signed and sealed by the Police Board, have been drawn up for the conduct of all bouts, securing to the public the inalienable right of getting a run for its money by men whose condition has been tested by experts. These rules embrace a wide field, from "no smoking" indoors, to provisions forfeiting guarantees if the boxers fail to live up to the rules.

Last and not least will be a shrinkage in the price list from $2-$5 to $1-$3. The boxing committee of four men, appointed to represent the Police Board, will be trustee of 5 per cent of the receipts, which will be turned over to municipal recreation uses.

Harry Sharpe to Referee.

The opening trial of the new system will be assisted by the fact that Harry Sharpe, widely known as the best referee in this vicinity, several years ago, will be the third man in the ring. Sharpe has not officiated here in several campaigns. For three years he was in the Red Cross service and only recently returned from Camp Funston, after a sojourn in Europe, where he was gassed while bringing up water to the front line, then under attack by the enemy.

As for the main event itself—Jacks will be here today. Bandy has been training hard for some time. He usually is as hard as nails, and always gives everything he has. He fought Jacks once before and made a creditable showing against the British lightweight.

Police Board Lays Down Rules Under Which Boxing Promoters May Operate

The detailed conditions under which local boxing is to be conducted for the future were set forth yesterday when instructions were issued to the four representatives of the Police Board, named some weeks ago as a committee to act for the board. The conditions are set forth in four typewritten pages, beginning with a preamble stating that, in the opinion of the commissioners, boxing before private clubs is legal in Missouri so long as the boxing bouts do not become prize fights.

It was the Police Board's view that contests before legally organized clubs were legal if the boxer was paid a stipulated sum for his exhibition, under contract, and provided the club admitted to such exhibitions only bona fide members.

In substance, the following suggestions for the guidance of the committee were made by the board:

1. Only legally organized and properly conducted clubs shall be permitted to hold boxing contests.
2. Clubs must apply to the Boxing Committee for permission to hold exhibitions, naming the card planned.
3. All boxers and exhibitors must sign contracts according to a form submitted by the committee.
4. No exhibition shall be more than 15 rounds.
5. Preliminaries to be limited to four rounds, and semifinals to eight rounds.
6. Only three seconds shall be allowed in each corner and these must not coach during the rounds.
7. Exhibitions shall be started at the announced time, with only 5-minute intervals between bouts.
8. Only referees approved by the committee shall be permitted to officiate.
9. If a club admits objectionable persons to membership, its bouts will be stopped. Police officials will aid the club in stopping objectionable characters whether they are provided with membeship or not.
10. No club may enroll members after 7 p. m. the day of an exhibition. Holders of memberships may purchase tickets at the box office at any time during the progress of the exhibition.
11. The committee shall be the final judge of all those entitled to witness the exhibitions free of charge.
12. Both membership cards and tickets must be exhibited to obtain admission to boxing bouts.
13. No smoking will be permitted at indoor contests.
14. The committee representing the Police Board will decide on the construction and size of the ring and will also be in charge of enforcing proper seating conditions.
15. The committee will distribute 5 per cent of the gross receipts from all boxing exhibitions for promoting athletics and recreation in congested districts.

As a final reminder that these orders are loaded, the board's list of suggestions, concludes as follows:

"If any boxer, exhibitor or association refuses to abide by these suggestions, the board's representatives are authorized to enforce the law literally, and if there is the slightest violation of the law the representatives are at liberty to stop any offending contest and order the gate money turned back to the members."

Dr. F. H. Healy has been appointed by the committee as official examining physician. He will make examinations for the committee before all exhibitions.

All correspondence intended for the committee should be addressed to the Special Representatives of the St. Louis Police Board, care of Central District Station. The committee will meet every Monday evening, except when boxing exhibitions are scheduled on that evening. Meetings will be in Chief O'Brien's office and exhibitors and club representatives will be heard from 9 to 10 p. m.

Ludy Langer Wins Mile Swim Title

Honolulu Star Paddles Distance Over 220-Yard Course in 24M. 3S.

By the Associated Press.

PHILADELPHIA, July 16.—Ludy Langer of Honolulu won the national one-mile senior championship swim held on a 220-yard course on the Schuylkill River here today. His time was 24m. 13s. He finished 10 yards ahead of Eugene Bolden of the Illinois Athletic Club, whose time was 24m. 18 2-5s. Carl Urban of Philadelphia was third.

Urban, although fully 190 yards behind Bolden at the finish, was well in advance of the rest of the entrants.

Langer's time was a new record for the Middle Atlantic States, but was 45 seconds slower than the world's open water record.

Eleanor Uhl of Meadowbrook, who participated in the Olympics last year, just succeeded in winning the 100-yard scratch race for women from Frances Clarke of Philadelphia. Her time was 1m. 15 4-5s.

"Stubby" Kruger, Langer's teammate from Honolulu, was compelled to give his opponent in the Edwards cup 220 yard handicap starts ranging from 10 to 65 seconds. Although the earliest starters had gone almost half of the distance before Kruger leaped in, he finished well up in front. Samuel S. Evans, Philadelphia, won in 3:28m. 3-5s. R. Wersler and Raymond Uhl, also of Philadelphia, were second and third respectively.

Ernest Uhl, 13-year-old brother of Eleanor Uhl, captured first honors in the men's 100-yard handicap, in which Kruger also gave the other starters big handicaps. Uhl's time was 1:17m. 2-5s. William Selsor and Frank Clarkson, both of Philadelphia, were second and third respectively.

Defective Footwork the Cause of Ineffective Volleying

Champion Tilden Declares That Nine Out of Ten Strokes of This Variety Are Missed Because the Player Is Balanced on the Wrong Foot When Striking.

"WHY did I miss that volley?" This remark was made so often during one afternoon of practice at the Germantown Academy's grounds in Philadelphia that the person who was coaching nearly lost his voice explaining and reiterating the following terse sentence:

"You hit off the wrong foot, kid." There was nothing else to say. Nine times out of ten volleys are missed because of poor footwork or taking the eye off the ball. The relation between them will be about even over a long period of play.

In volleying it is not always possible to get the feet in the exact position wished owing to the lack of time, but the effect will be the same if the weight of the body is on the correct foot.

For the forehand volley: If there is time get the left (or front) foot over and ahead of the right. The weight is on the right foot until the ball is met, and then it shifts toward and on to the left with the shot. To volley cross court meet the ball in front of the body and using a stiff wrist and short swing, chop the ball across. This shot should be made with the left foot way across the right, with the weight coming forward to it. For the straight volley the feet should be nearly parallel with the side line and the left foot advanced about 16 inches.

Backhand Volley.

FOR the backhand volley shot the same rules apply, only substitute right foot for the left foot as the one to advance into the ball. Volley always with your weight coming into the ball, not away from it.

If the return to you is so quick, if speed so great that there is not time to get your feet in position, have your weight on the foot nearest the ball and coming into the line of its flight.

Never volley a ball in front of your body. Always make your footwork such that the volley will be made at your side and about a foot and a half from your body. If the ball is coming directly at you, do not advance your front foot, as this would bring your body into the ball's flight, but retreat your back foot, thus removing your body from the line of the shot, yet allowing it to pass close to you so as to volley comfortably.

In taking up the question of footwork and the overhead smash, or kill, it must be said that every man will develop his own method of hitting this shot, usually based on his service, but there are several fundamentals necessary to grasp fully before the overhead can be made a winning or individual shot.

A Word to the Wise.

FIRST—Do not jump into the air to make this shot unless absolutely necessary. It takes your eye off the ball and your weight off the shot.

Second—Keep your right foot on the ground, with your full weight on it. Make your shot at the top of your serving, taking the ball a little in front of your head, and hit with a flat racquet face, swinging your full weight onto your left foot with the shot. If this is made correctly your racquet would continue to the ground and land between your feet. This puts all the force and weight of your body into the shot. It adds speed and direction.

Third—Do not start off your left and end on your right foot, as this will pull your weight out of the shot.

All short lobs should be hit overhead, and hit hard, and the only way to hit a ball consistently is to have your footwork correct. Therefore, in summing up the two articles on footwork the following is found:

FOREHAND SHOTS.

Ground Stroke or Volley.

Overhead.

French Tennis Players Plan to Sail July 23

NEW YORK, July 16.

CABLE messages from A. R. de Jonnes, vice-president of the French Lawn Tennis Federation, and Miss Anne Morgan, received by Julian S. Myrick, head of the U. S. Lawn Tennis Association, yesterday, stated that all arrangements had been made for the sailing of the French team and Mlle. Susanne Lenglen for this country next Saturday, July 23.

Myrick stated that the only tournaments in which Mlle. Lenglen will compete would be the women's national championship beginning Monday, Aug. 15, at Forest Hills, and the National Mixed Doubles championship at Longwood, beginning Aug. 22.

"Mlle. Lenglen, of course, will play a limited number of exhibition matches between Aug. 1 and 15, and Sept. 1 and 15," continued Myrick. "She will enter no other tournaments than the national championships and probably will not play more than 10 exhibition matches."

An Object Lesson on Putting 'Concentration'

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, July 16.

THIS for the benefit of those golfers who must make a topographic study of each green ere they can get around to the matter of starting a putt on its precarious way.

The time, late afternoon; the place, thirty-first green at Norwood; the occasion, Duncan and Mitchell vs. Hutchison and Donaldson, best ball match.

Hutchison had already won the hole with a birdie 4; therefore, Mitchell had no further interest in the proceedings other than to swing at his 6-foot putt with one hand.

Standing between the hole and the ball, he swept it toward him something after the blaze fashion of a Monte Carlo croupier raking in the chips. The "putt" hit the bottom of the cup as though drawn thence by an elastic cord.

So much for concentration of the greens.

British Hope to Reach Net Final

Davis Cup Team Sailed Yesterday; Players Expect to Face Japanese Team.

By Herbert L. Bourke.

(Copyright, 1921.)

LONDON, July 16.—The British Isles Davis cup team, consisting of Max Woosnam, F. Gordon Lowe, O. G. N. Turnbull and J. B. Gilbert, sailed today on the Baltic for America.

With the exception of Gilbert, a left-handed player, all are old internationalists. Gordon Lowe and Woosnam both played in the recent ties with Spain, while the former accompanied the British Isles team to Australia in 1912, when the cup was recaptured in such a sensational manner.

The omission of Randolph Lycett means that a new doubles partner must be found for Woosnam. It probably will be Turnbull, as that pair won the doubles event at the last Olympic games at Antwerp a year ago.

"Had it been possible to include Kingscote and Lycett," Gordon Lowe said today, "I firmly believe that we should have reached the challenge round. All the same, it is a good thing that the younger players are having their chance, as they can learn much from their American experience, which will be a most valuable help for them in the future.

"From a sporting point of view, it is much better that we should take our stand with the other nations rather than withdraw on the plea that we cannot have a full representative team. Woosnam is sure to be a very popular captain, and I feel certain that under him we shall give a good account of ourselves. I fancy our chances against Australia, as I have seen Anderson and Todd play. They are good players of the modern school, but they have not the wide experience of Norman Brookese and the other famous Australians. Hawkes may prove a severe obstacle, as he has a great reputation at home, and when he was a youth of 20 he beat Norman Brookes in Australia.

"Should we win at Pittsburg we ought to beat Denbark, but if Japan reaches the final round that team very likely will give us a very hard match, especially as Kumagae is reported to be a much beter player than Shimidzu and we all know how good Shimidzu is."

Wilson, Middleweight Champion, Is Mapping Out Active Campaign

Titleholder Will Box Jack Britton First, Then Will Go After Mike Gibbons—Welterweight Titleholder Taking Serious Chance—Boston Fighter No "Cheese."

By Robert Edgren.

(Copyright, 1921.)

JOHNNY WILSON, middleweight champion, is going to be a busy man this summer. He is matched to meet Jack Britton, welterweight champion, at East Chicago, Ind., July 22. After that he is expected to take on Mike Gibbons.

Jack Britton has been a wonder among the welterweights, and he had little trouble in standing off the attempt of Benny Leonard, greatest living lightweight, to gather a second title. Age seems to leave Britton as good as ever. He is a very skillful boxer. Hundreds of hard fights have left him little marked, and still king in his class. But he is taking a real risk in mingling with a puncher like Wilson. He'll need all of his skill to go through 10 rounds with the middleweight champion.

Britton has the same bee that stung several other champions. Kid Lavigne tried to take the welter title from Mysterious Billy Smith, and was knocked out. Frank Erne went seven pounds below the lightweight limit to meet McGovern, and was slaughtered. Later, Frank went to the other extreme and fought Rube Ferns, welter champion, only to be knocked out again.

Joe Gans tried to take the welter title from Walcott, and didn't succeed.

Abe Attell tackled Battling Nelson, and might as well have bumped into a stone wall. His career as a champion ended soon afterward. Johnny Kilbane, feather champion, was knocked out easily by Benny Leonard when Johnny coveted the lightweight crown. Terry McGovern went out of his weight class to meet Young Corbett and the beating he got finished him as a champion.

The Wilson-Gibbons match might be more interesting.

A few months ago Mike Gibbons was challenging Wilson, and a lot of people thought it would be a soft match for the St. Paul Phantom. But that was before Wilson fought Mike O'Dowd the second time, outclassing him completely and giving him about as bad a beating as a man can take without being counted out. In that second battle Wilson showed that he has a lot of very good fighting qualities. He is cool, determined and aggressive. So much for the mental side of it. Physically, he is strong and tough. A punch doesn't worry him. He can take wallops. But he doesn't have to take many of them because, like other fighters who have made good in the ring, his best defense is a strong offense.

Wilson a Good Combination.

Wilson is no Bob Fitzsimmons for craft and hitting power, but he swings a wicked left for the body.

He is no kid McCoy for trickiness, but he doesn't miss much with that left hand.

He isn't a Tommy Ryan at finishing a man in a hurry when he has him going, but he takes the fight out of a tough fellow like O'Dowd in the mixing.

He is no Stanley Ketchel at tearing in and ripping blows from every angle, but he puts over a good right hand from his southpaw position, gets a fellow off balance and as open as a clam on a hot stove, and then pastes him in the slats with the fast working left.

Unlike any other champion, he is still Johnny Wilson and a hard, game, confident, effective fighter.

Mike Gibbons hasn't lost any of his phantom speed and elusive skill. He ducks under punches and bobs up again, close in, the instant they pass. He can outbox anything from a featherweight to a buzz saw. In recent bouts he has shown everything he ever had in sheer cleverness, and more. Mike has been teaching boxing in his home town since the war, and he's up to date on the clever stuff. I watched Carpentier sitting at the ringside while Mike was trimming one Rosenberger in Brooklyn, a month ago, and the Frenchman's eyes popped out in appreciation of the stuff Mike pulled.

But Mike doesn't show the old punch. There was a time when he could stand 6 inches from his man, rub his nose and drive a short bent-arm punch through an opening as small as a knothole, for a knockout. Mike hasn't shown that kind of punching lately. He didn't show it when he had a chance to beat Mike O'Dowd. In fact, O'Dowd was credited with outfighting Mike—and O'Dowd is easy for Wilson.

The Punch Goes First.

Possibly Gibbons has retrieved that punch and is keeping it in cold storage somewhere especially to have it ready for use against Wilson. Perhaps he has been boxing around without using the old dynamite kick simply to get a Wilson match and put a surprise over on Johnny. But it doesn't seem likely. The punch is the first thing that leaves a veteran, endurance disappears later, and speed and skill last a long time. I've seen hundreds of old timers show a flash of their best stuff for a round or two and then blow up. They look like champions until they are pressed a bit.

In Gibbons' case, he has all his old skill and speed, probably lacks 50 per cent of his old punch, and 50 per cent of his old endurance. This ought to make it fairly easy for Wilson after seven or eight rounds.

Besides that, Mike Gibbons never was a bulldog for sticking close to a man who could hit hard, and he never had a body that could take many hard punches. If Wilson's lefts go through Mike's guard, Mike will crumple.

As there are few good middleweights around just now Wilson looks like a champion who will last a while. If there's anyone who can give him a run for the old title it's Harry Greb, and Harry is naturally a little over the middleweight limit and might be weak at the weight.

DREWES AND REPPERT WIN DOUBLES TITLE

Ted Drewes and Arthur Reppert won the men's doubles tennis championship of the Forest Park Club yesterday afternoon by defeating Harvey Frohlichstein and Ray Epstein in the final round. The score was 6—2, 6—3, 6—4.

A good-sized crowd turned out to witness the doubles final. Officials of the Forest Park Club handled the match in excellent style. In addition to the usual umpire and linesmen, a new umpire stand was placed on the court. The stand contained a seat on top for the umpire and two shelves, one for racquets and the other for wash basins, towels, etc. A grand stand was also erected for the spectators on the ground adjoining the court on the west. President Mooney presented prizes in the form of silver cups to the winners.

Chick Evans Wins His 6th Western Golf Tournament

National Champion Defeats R. E. Knepper, Iowa Titleholder, 3 Up and 2.

CHICAGO, July 16.—R. E. Knepper of Sioux City, Iowa champion, carried National Champion Chick Evans of Chicago to the thirty-fourth green today before Evans could annex his sixth title as Western amateur golf champion, three up and two to play, at Westmoreland Country Club. Evans did not have to extend himself, however, as the Iowan was overgolfed, having played all last week in the Iowa championship and had hard matches this week in the Western.

Knepper was never up except once. Losing the first hole, 4—5, by getting in a pit, he squared the match by taking the second hole, 4—5, with a 10-foot putt and he held the champion even with pars for the next five holes. Then on the short eighth, the Iowan won, 3—5, and held the lead to the first turn only to lose it on the tenth where Evans scored a birdie three.

Evans won the twelfth and the thirteenth, stopping for luncheon two up. This advantage was increased to three up at the nineteenth, and the champion, by winning the twenty-first, the twenty-second and the twenty-third, reached his maximum lead of six up. Evans dropped the twenty-seventh and twenty-ninth, but became dormie five by winning the thirtieth with a birdie and halving the thirty-first. Then he prolonged the struggle by accidentally moving his ball on the thirty-second green and getting into bunker trouble on the thirty-third, dropping both holes to become dormie three. The champion with a perfect four on the thirty-fourth, ended the match, Knepper having to play out of a trap to halve the hole.

Evans played 21 holes in par, four in one under par and on nine he went above perfect figures, while Knepper had three birdies, 22 pars and 10 above par. The champion was on the straight line nearly all the way, getting in bunkers only three times and against the roots of a tree once, while the Princeton golfer was off the fairway frequently and played from sand traps a dozen times.

The cards:

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE NET TOURNEY NEXT WEEK

The annual tennis tournament for the championship of the Junior Chamber of Commerce will start Tuesday afternoon. There will be two events, singles and doubles. Last year Woodward B. Brown captured the singles title by defeating Davison Obear in the final round. For the first time in the history of the tournament doubles will be played.

Entries for the event are being received by Clifford Hicks, chairman of the Tennis Club, 253 Pierce Building, Olive 641 or residence, Forest 8679 W. In the singles the entry fee is $1 per player while the doubles fee is $2 a team. All members of the Junior Chamber of Commerce are eligible to compete in the tournament.

The Junior Chamber of Commerce Club maintains two courts at Vandeventer and McPherson. Efforts will be made to play a number of matches on these courts and the finals in both events will be staged on the club grounds. The club holds membership in the St. Louis District Tennis Association and the tournament has been officially sanctioned by the United States Lawn Tennis Association.

PRO. GOLFERS' REQUEST FOR 36 HOLES REFUSED

NEW YORK, July 16.—The request of the Professional Golfers' Association for a 36-hole instead of an 18-hole qualifying round for the national open championship has been refused by the United States Golf Association.

W. D. Vanderpool, secretary of the association, said today that the change requested by the professionals would necessitate a complete revision of the program. The tournament will open Tuesday at the Columbia Country Club, Washington, D. C.

Gerber Turns Feature Play.

While Davis was yielding five ps, he was getting great support, ecially from Walter Gerber, Bill cobson and George Sisler. Gerber ned the prize fielding play of the me at the expense of Galloway in e fifth. The alien batter started drive to left which had all the ear-arks of a safety. Gerber, how-er, jumped up and pulled the drive wn with his gloved hand. Galloway, in disgust at his inability to t a hit, threw his cap against the and stand. Jacobson robbed C. lker of a safety by a one-handed tch, while Sisler made several ce stops of low throws.

The Athletics were first to score, tting over a run in the first round. Witt opened with a single to left and advanced to third on a wild pitch. He came home while Gerber was re-ring Dykes on a fast play. The ene-y went two-up in the third. One t, Rommell and Witt walked. Dykes was safe on Ellerbe's low row, Rommell scoring. He Wants $60,000 for His End. To Battle Georges Carpentier

GIBBONS was given first consideration when a match with Georges Carpentier for the light heavyweight championship of the world, next October, was discussed. Gibbons asks a fortune for his end.

Although he has knocked out his last 12 opponents, none of these has had real class. It took Gibbons 11 rounds to flatten the poor old hulk, Dan "Porky" Flynn.

He is over 30 years old and is late in arriving at fame. He was formerly a middleweight and his photograph indicates that he is not as well developed as Carpentier. He will weigh about the same figure. Gibbons' knowledge of infighting is about the only advantage he could claim over Carpentier. He is a brother of Mike Gibbons.

Cardinals Break Braves' String by Splitting a Pair

Rickeymen Take First Game of Double-Header in Ten Innings, 4 to 3.

BOSTON, Mass., July 16.—It was appropriate that the second largest crowd that ever turned out to a National League game in this city saw today's double header between the Cardinals and the Braves. Otherwise, the players would have outnumbered the spectators. In the two games the Cardinals had 32 men in action and the Braves 26. Rickey used eight pitchers while Boston had to call on four, three in the last game, to quell the St. Louis uprising.

By sticking to their work, the Cardinals copped the first battle in the tenth, tying the score in the ninth when Smith tripled and scored Mann who ran for Schultz. In the tenth, Lavan's single tallied Hornsby with what proved the winning run by a 4-3 score. Haines was hit hard in the second game while Oeschger was invincible for six innings, allowing only two hits. He faltered toward the last and was relieved by Scott, who, in turn was taken out in favor of Fillingim when the Rickeymen threatened to repeat their stunt of the first game.

The Cardinals had men on second and third, with one down in the ninth frame of the second game and it took a lucky play to retire them. Smith hit the ball hard, but right at Bockel, and the Boston third-baseman jumped on third to double up Dillhoeofer. Thus, did the Braves save the second and win out by a 5-3 count.

Pfeffer Gets the Victory.

Pfeffer did yeoman work in the first game, working the ninth and tenth innings and holding the Braves beautifully. He is credited with the victory. The even split kept the Cardinals at the .500 point while the Cubs trimmed the Robins twice and brought the latter down to a tie with the Rickeymen for fourth.

That first game was a thriller. The Cardinals heavily out-hit the Braves but made a flock of errors which gave Boston three runs, during the first six innings, though they made but three safeties off Doak in that time. Sherdel worked the next two innings and held the Braves while the Cardinals picked up one run in the third, one in the eighth and one, in the ninth, tying the score.

Schultz had hit for Sherdel in the ninth and had received a life when Ford fumbled. Old Man Strategy decided Mann should run for Joe and Lesslie did some tall sprinting when Jack Smith rammed a triple between Powell and Southworth. McQuillan got out of the inning luckily at that, for, with Smith on third, Fournier fouled out and Stock flied to Southworth.

Error Aids the Cardinals.

Pfeffer was the third St. Louis pitcher and right nobly did he toil. With two down in the ninth, Cruise and Boeckel connected for singles but Jeff tightened up and fanned Holke. Another boot shoved the Cardinals over to win in the tenth. Hornsby was safe on Boeckel' error. Fournier sacrified but McHenry flied to Cruise. Then Lavan swung his bat against a fast one and it carromed to center for a clean hit, scoring Hornsby. Lavan got to third on some weird throwing but was left there.

In the Brave's tenth Ford fanned but Nicholson, batting for Hank Gowdy, singled. Nixon ran for Nicholson and was forced at second by Christenbury, batting for McQuillan. Powell sent a squirming foul past third and Stock ended the game with a nifty capture.

The defeat broke the Brave's winning streak of eight straight games. They had won one from Philly, three from Cincinnati and four from the Cubs since last they tasted the dregs of defeat.

The Cardinals will have an off day tomorrow. On Monday, they will play the third of the series with the Braves.

SPORT SALAD

By L. C. Davis

LONG DISTANCE FIGHT.

HE was a skinny little mite,
The other bird was tough;
I thought that there would be a fight,
His language was so rough.
Said he: "I'll get your number yet,
You great big hunk of cheese."
Just then a languid voice cut in
And murmured, "Number, please."

GOING UP.

Consider the telephone lineman. He starts in at the bottom but is spurred on to greater heights.

Carp says that the eight-ounce gloves were the cause of his undoing. There's nothing like a pillow properly placed to induce sleep.

Terre Haute has sent Pitcher Lefty Palm to Bay City. Indicating that Lefty Palm wasn't there with the southpaw.

Four umpires resigned within 10 days in the Sally League. Indicating that the Sally arbiters accept their fate with Christian resignation.

Complaints are being made about airplanes flying over Forest Park. 'Smatter, do they disturb the squirrels?

At a dollar a minute per passenger, the birdmen must be feathering their nests.

Aviation, we are told, is a costly game owing to the overhead expense.

DRAT HER.

MARY had a little cook
With hands as white as snow,
And everywhere that Mary went
The cook refused to go.
—New York Herald.

MARY had a little cook
With hands as white as snow,
She went according to the book
And now her cake is dough.

HE KNOWS.

HOW sharper than a serpent's tooth,
Or razor blades or axes,
Is the uncompromising youth
Who figures up your taxes.

INFORMATION.

No, Ossip, the kohl-rabi is not a species of Hebrew cabbage.

There are some who claim that Georges Carpentier made a bonehead play when he smashed his thumb on Jack Dempsey's head.

THE ONLY WAY.

"Incorporates for the Elevation of Boxing." Head line. We take it that the next big scrap will be pulled off on a roof garden.

CONSOLATION.

ALTHOUGH the blazing sun
beats down
And to a sizzling crisp may burn us;
One cheering thought should chase the frown:
We do not have to stoke the furnace.

Hoppe Wins Fight To Defend Title, Winner Take All

Conditions Governing Challenges for His Cue Title Named at Conference.

Willie Hoppe, billiard champion, won his fight for the right to dictate conditions under which he is to accept matches from challengers. At a conference held in New York, representatives of the Brunswick-Balke Billiard Co., which controls all championship tournaments, yielded to representations of R. B. Benjamin, Hoppe's manager. Henceforth challengers must face Hoppe on a winner-take-all the gate receipts plan and wager $1000 or more on the side.

This information was conveyed to the Post-Dispatch by Manager Benjamin, in response to a telegraphic query. Benjamin's wire follows:

New York, June 16.

J. E. Wray,

Post-Dispatch, St. Louis—It was decided at our conference yesterday to play the annual billiard championship tournament in Chicago, Nov. 14 to 19. Six players are eligible. The prizes are to be $3000 to the first, $1500 to the second, $1000 to thethird and $750 to the fourth, $250 to the fifth. The entrance fee is $250. The matches will be in 400-point blocks, except in case of a final deciding game, which shall be 500 points.

R. B. BENJAMIN.

It was alos decided that any player, to challenge for the title, must do so within 10 days after the tournament, for a stake of $1000 each, the winner to take all the receipts and stake both.

March 15 Date Named.

The first challenge match must be played not earlier than March 15 and not later than April 1; second challenge match not later than May 2, and third match in November of the following season.

Hoppe had been contending for everything mentioned in the conditions. The dates for the challenge matches have been arranged to suit Hoppe's annual barnstorming tour which lasts for six months following championship tournament.

The reference to six players being eligible to this year's tournament is probably to Hoppe, Jake Schaeffer, Welker Cochran, Ora Morningstar, the Belgian Edouxard Horemans and George Sutton.

ZENZO SHIMIDZU MAKES FAVORABLE IMPRESSION IN EASTERN TOURNEY

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, July 16.—With the appearance of Zenzo Shimidzu of the Japanese Davis cup team and Charles H. Garland, member of the American international forces last year, the lawn tennis tournament on the courts of the Field Club of Greenwich at Greenwich, Conn., touched the pinnacle of interest today.

Shimidzu had little to do. He was denied the opportunity to face the slashing drives of Joseph L. Werner, the Princeton captain, as the latter defaulted. The slender Japanese faced D. P. Robinson in the next round, to defeat the American at 6—3, 6—4.

Quick to anticipate and always resourceful, Shimidzu found his adversary a comparatively easy mark for his subtle driving. The Japanese followed the methods so ably exploited by Ichiya Kumagae. He timed his forehanders adroitly. Robinson repeatedly was drawn out of position with the inevitable result that Shimidzu sped the ball through the opening for the point.

Scores of Yesterday's Games In Municipal Baseball Leagues

Slugging matches featured yesterday's round of games in the various leagues connected with the Municipal Baseball Association. The only real pitching duel was waged in the Commercial League in which the Union Electrics handed the Measuregraphs their first defeat of the season, 5-3. The winners made five hits and the losers only three.

The second no-hit game of the season in the Sunday-School League was turned in yesterday by Luckerman of McCausland, who blanked Second Baptist, 5—0, without a safety. Only two batters reached first base, both of them on errors.

Manufacturers' League.

The Butler Bros. team of the Manufacturers' League won from Triple A, 12 to 8, after the latter team forfeited due to lack of eligible players. Blessing hit two home runs in his first and second times at bat. The Great Western team won from the Gibbins-Lohn by a 11-to-5 score. Kass and Szentimery hit home runs. The Shapleigh team defeated the Fulton outfit, 13 to 8. Johnson with four hits in four times at bat led the hitters.

Beware Overwork!

You Need This Kind of Rest—and Need it Now

In a Summer Wonderland that's New to You—You get a Complete Change

By AN EASTERNER

YOUR brain, like mine, at least once a year, requires more rest than mere sleep will provide. Every business man who thinks knows that. Efficiency demands it. Proper rest, which means a complete change, is businesslike because it's profitable. All economists agree.

Where To Find It

I once searched for a complete change of vacation in the summer. I needed different scenery, different interests, different fun.

A friend suggested Southern California! "But I want to go this summer, not next winter," I replied.

"All right," said he, "you'll sleep there under blankets every night—you'll find the finest summer climate that you know. Also that complete change you are seeking—only a few hours away!"

A Wonderland of Summer

I did. I found a wonderland of summer. I found balminess, not heat—and the most refreshing nights I ever knew. I spent July, August and September there, and slept under blankets ninety nights. I felt full of energy all day.

This, too, I found:

Four thousand miles of paved automobile highways as smooth as Fifth Avenue, New York, with 70,000 official guide-signs directing me to beautiful seashore resorts with great white beaches, primitive mountain retreats, historic missions, canyons, scenic mountain roadways stretching for 80 miles along the tops of mountains 6000 feet above orange groves on one side and desert on the other and scores of other places; all brand new to you, unless you've been in Southern California before. All within three hours' ride from a central point!

I found an island where world-famous fishermen assemble, the world's sportiest fishing grounds, only three hours from that center.

I found wonderful golf courses, boating, surf bathing, camping, trout streams, mountain lakes—every kind of sport and fascinating diversion that a man, woman or child could name. And all within a radius of a few hours by auto or electric car! You merely elect what you would like to do that day.

Temperature

The average mean temperature in Southern California for the past 44 years (U. S. Weather Bureau records) is as follows:

June, 66—July, 70—August, 71—September, 69.

The same records show that a great city in the center of this section has on the average only one day in June, two days in July, three in August and three in September when the thermometer touches or exceeds 90 degrees.

The air is usually dry, so higher temperatures are comfortable here that would be uncomfortable in the East where humidity emphasizes heat.

Southern California averages 309 days of sunshine. Summer is the rainless season so you can plan on perfect weather for your fun.

500,000 Summer Visitors

And I found 500,000 other people—enlightened summer visitors, there, enjoying, as I was, several hundred kinds of fun, and that vital absolute diversion that quickly rebuilds both minds and bodies that are worn by Eastern work.

I went again another summer to spend but two weeks there, and again returned a more efficient man for the entire year. And now I go, as you will, to Southern California almost every summer. I never miss if I'm at all "run down."

A Memorable Trip

The railroad trip itself is memorable—through the canyons, mountains and great plains. Every inch is teeming with our early history. This great vacation starts when you step on the train.

Go Now The thing to do is, go now—go this summer. Men, women, children—all need a change like this. Decide now. You can arrange it if you will. You'll say it's the best trip of your life.

It costs less to live in Southern California. So a trip there need not be expensive. Southern California is near our National Government Parks that the Government is now encouraging tourists to visit.

HARDING CITES GRANT'S VETO OF SOLDIER BONUS

President Substantiates Statement He Broke No Precedent.

By Wire From the Washington Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON July 16.—President Harding today produced documentary proof to substantiate the statement that he broke no precedent in going to Congress and opposing the giving of a bonus to war veterans.

President Grant, according to a statement issued at the White House this morning, in the spring of 1875 vetoed a soldiers' bonus bill passed by Congress. In doing so he presented reasons almost identical with the reasons advanced by President Harding. The Grant veto was called to the attention of Mr. Harding by Gen. C. C. Sniffen.

The bonus bill of 1875 provided for the payment to every "noncommissioned officer, musician, artificer, wagoner and private soldier, sailor and marine, including those borne upon the rolls as slaves and Indians of $8.33 1-3 a month for all the time served" during the war.

The measure passed the House of Representatives where it originated and was sent to the Senate shortly before the end of the short term in 1875. President Grant literally put it in his pocket, and when he went to the Capitol on the forenoon of March 3 to deal with the last legislative work of the session he sat down in the President's room there and wrote his veto message. Its text follows:

"Washington, March 3, 1875.

"To the House of Representatives:

"House bill 3341 is herewith returned without my approval for the reasons, first, that it appropriates from the Treasury a large sum of money at a time when the revenue is insufficient for current wants and this proposes further drain on the Treasury. The issue of bonds, authorized by the bill to a very large and indefinite amount, would seriously embarrass the refunding operations now progressing, whereby the interest of the bonded debt of the United States is being largely reduced. Second, I do not believe that any considerable portion of the ex-soldiers who, it is supposed will, be beneficiaries of this appropriation are applicants for it, but, rather, it would result more in a measure for the relief of claim agents and middle men who would intervene to collect or discount the bounties granted by it. The passage of this bill at this time is inconsistent with the measures of economy now demanded by the necessities of the country.

(Signed) "U. S. GRANT."

Some effort to bring to light the committee report if there were such, on this bill of 1875, has failed to discover it. The measure would have given to each soldier $100 per year of his service, with, however, the deduction of whatever bounties he received from either the Federal Government or his State. Estimates of expense ranged from $20,000,000 to $150,000,000.

MAN IN WHITE FLANNEL SUIT ROBS KROGER STORE OF $56

A man wearing an air of easy confidence and a white flannel suit, walked into a Kroger store at 4256 College avenue at 10 a. m. yesterday, and, presenting a pistol, told the manager, Edwin Shoop, that the time had come for Shoop to lie down under the counter and keep still. Shoop, who is 21 years old, promptly acted on this suggestion.

The robber proceeded to take $26 from the cash register, and also, much to Shoop's disgust, extracted $30 from a soap box in the corner, where Shoop had hidden it earlier for just such an emergency. The robber appeared to be familiar with the fact, and Shoop said later he feared the man had ben watching him.

Languidly, then, as one oppressed by the forenoon heat, the fastidious visitor replaced his pistol in his pocket, alongside of the $56, and crossed the street to his automobile, in which he departed. He was out of sight when Shoop came out from beneath the counter. It was the seventy-seventh Kroger store robbery since August, 1919.

'DUMMY' NOTES FOR $100,000 CAUSE CLOSING OF BANK

First National of Rosedale, Miss., in Straits as Result of Efforts to Finance Planters.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

ROSEDALE, Miss., July 16.—Following the discovery that "dummy notes" to the extent of slightly more than $100,000 had been discounted at the Federal Reserve Bank for the credit of the institution, the First National Bank of Rosedale failed to open its doors this morning and its affairs were taken in charge by J. S. Woods, National Bank Examiner of St. Louis. No one profited by the transaction, it was explained here, the money received being used to finance the needs of planters and business men of this section who found themselves forced to borrow more than their "average."

W. F. Wall was president of the bank. His brother, R. F. Wall, was cashier. The two were in charge of the institution. Directors are Dr. E. R. Nobles, L. C. Brown, W. L. Dossett and W. F. Wall. Wall has large farming interests that are said to be heavily involved.

Bank Founded 36 Years Ago.

The bank was founded 36 years ago. Ten years ago Wall became connected with it, rising to the presidency two years ago. The capital was $125,000, with $30,000 surplus. The most recent statement showed deposits of $182,000, of which approximately $55,000 was public funds. At the time the bank was closed it had $750,000 in bills receivable and listed $425,000 in bills payable. The bank, it was explained, owed the Federal Reserve Bank nearly $400,000, of which $38,700 was secured by Government paper. The remainder was borrowed on discounted paper strengthened by collateral.

Under the national banking laws no national bank can lend to any one individual firm or corporation more than 10 per cent of its combined capital and surplus.

Planters were permitted to borrow beyond their limit of credits. Their paper was held at the Rosedale bank and "dummy" notes in some instances purporting to be signed by men who had no accounts with the bank were sent to the Federal Reserve Bank for "rediscount." Through this channel the irregularity is said to have been discovered.

Stockholders of national banks are liable for an amount equal to their stockholdings, hence it is declared here that depositors will not lose a penny.

Plans to reorganize or to have a local institution take over the affairs of the bank are being considered in an effort to effect the release of deposits now tied up. If these materialize depositors will be paid within a month.

FRANCE ORDERS GERMAN HOUSES

BERLIN, July 16.—The German Government has received its first French reconstruction order for 56 samples of houses.

Dr. Rathenau, Minister of Reconstruction, hopes that orders on a large scale will follow the first lot of sample houses set up in [illegible] parts of devastated France. Rathenau has asked the [illegible] to hasten the work, his principle object being to get as many reconstruction orders as possible, for the [illegible] Germany pays with labor and [illegible]terial the less she pays in cash.

Leavengood, a widely known Kansas druggist, discovered a simple, easy-to-take prescription that cures asthma and hay fever—he gave it to people who had suffered for years, and to their amazement they say they were easily cured—these people told their friends, and in this way thousands have found the sure way to cure asthma and hay fever. Mr. Leavengood feels so confident that his prescription will cure in all cases that he generously offers to send a big bottle to anyone who will write for it, and it isn't to cost a cent unless it cures. Send no money—just write to C. Leavengood, 1325 S. W. bl., Rosedale, Kan.—and the big bottle will be mailed immediately. When the package is delivered, merely deposit $1.25 through the postman with the understanding your deposit is to be returned if you are not satisfied after a 10-day test. "The Problems of the Pacific"

Far-Reaching Questions Which Will Come Up for Discussion at Washington Conference Under This Head

China's Participation as a Free Agent Believed by Many to Be Inimical to Japan's Desires for Expansion in the Orient.

WASHINGTON, July 16.

"THE Problems of the Pacific" is something more than a neat bit of alliteration. There is no more significant phrase in the whole vocabulary of American diplomacy. In linking the problems of the Pacific with that of disarmament, the business to be discussed in the forthcoming international conference at Washington, President Harding recognized the intimate relationship between the two. In the view of Secretary Hughes, the two phases of the proposed gathering are inseparable. The problems of the Pacific, moreover, are world problems, and on the manner of their settlement may depend the future peace of the world.

Looming as one of the greatest of these problems is that presented by the open-door policy enunciated by John Hay when he was Secretary of State. At a time when foreign Powers were casting covetous eyes on the rich resources of the great pacifist nation of China, Hay called a halt on schemes of aggrandizement by setting forth the doctrine that no Power should be permitted to acquire special interests in China, but that all should enjoy trading privileges on an equal footing. The Hay doctrine meant, in effect, that America upheld China's right of self-determination.

It is considered significant that on the day before the publication of a call for a disarmament conference the Secretary of State took occasion to re-enunciate the doctrine of the open door. In other words, the administration clearly set forth that America would go into the conference committed to the perpetuation of the Hay policy.

The last previous official expression on America's attitude toward the Orient was the Lansing-Ishii agreement of 1917, which, while reiterating the open-door policy, contained a clause whose ambiguous phrasing is believed by those who have studied the question to contain the seeds of discord. This is the clause relating to special interests. "The Government of the United States," reads the Lansing-Ishii agreement, "recognizes that Japan has special interests in China, particularly in the part to which her possessions are contiguous." These, though not named in the agreement, are Shantung, Manchuria and Fukien Province. Fukien lies opposite Formosa, which Japan took from China in the Chino-Japanese War of 1894.

Secretary Lansing, in the course of his testimony before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee upon the Versailles treaty, asserted it was his wording, and that "special" interests implied merely those created by propinquity, such as the interests which the United States has in Canada and in Mexico. Lansing added, however, that in the course of his negotiations with Baron Ishii it developed that Japan understood the phrase to mean "paramount interest." It was not made plain in Lansing's testimony why this apparent difference of interpretation was not definitely cleared up.

No Journal of Meeting Extant.

No official memoranda of the negotiations leading up to the conclusion of the Lansing-Ishii agreement have ever been published. The negotiations were bound up with many questions growing out of America's prospective entrance into the war and out of the desire of the allies that Japan should continue as an active belligerent on their side. It is now a matter of record that the agreement had been immediately preceded by the secret treaties revealed at Paris, whereby Great Britain, Italy, France and Russia confirmed Japan in her claims to special economic privileges in China and the Pacific islands, north of the equator. It was immediately after the Lansing-Ishii agreement that Japan sent her destroyers to combat the German submarines in the Mediterranean. Japan's insistence at the peace conference upon her interpretation of the phrase, "special interests," is understandable, in the light of the meaning given that phrase by the secret treaties.

In view of the conflicting interpretations of the phrase, the statement by Secretary Hughes regarding the open door takes on added significance. "The Government of the United States," says the Hughes note, which was addressed to the Chinese Minister at Washington, "has never associated itself with any arrangement which sought to establish any special rights or privileges in China which would abridge the rights of the subjects or citizens of other friendly states, and I am happy to assure you that it is the purpose of this Government neither to participate nor to acquiesce in any arrangement which might purport to establish in favor of foreign interests any superiority of rights with respect to commercial or economic development in designated regions of the territories of China, or which might seek to create any such monopoly or preference as would exclude other nations from undertaking any legitimate trade or from participating with the Chinese Government in any category of public enterprise."

The Future of the Philippines and Hawaiian Labor Questions to Come Before Conference

TIED up with the various problems of the Orient is the future of the Philippines. The United States is committed to the ultimate independence of the islands. The present American viewpoint appears to be that the Philippines should not be cut loose until thoroughly safeguarded by agreement against the aggression of any foreign Power. A glance at the map will show that the islands are surrounded by Japanese territory.

In connection with Hawaii, there may arise at the conference some discussion of Japan's policy of dual citizenship, the same sort of policy that Germany held before the war. It is the Japanese doctrine that a Japanese, even though born abroad and thereby made a citizen of the country of his birth, is still a Japanese and subject to the Mikado. The Japanese population in Hawaii has grown so rapidly that according to authoritative estimates it will in a few years constitute a voting majority in this American territory.

This statement is clear and unambiguous in its definition of America's attitude toward the acquisition of superior rights by any foreign nation in China. It makes plain the understanding of this Government that the open-door policy has been in no degree abrogated by the Lansing-Ishii agreement. Applauding America's reiteration of her traditional friendship for China, Ambassador Sze declared that the position of the American Government "was sound and can hardly be shaken."

Question of Japanese Immigration.

A second major problem that is sure to arise in any discussion of Pacific questions is that centering about Japanese immigration into the United States. The opposition of the west coast states, particularly California, to Japanese immigration has for years been a menace to the good relations between the two countries. In 1907 a temporary settlement was reached through the "gentlemen's agreement," under which Japan undertook to stop the stream of immigration by refusing to issue passports to laborers. California claims that the agreement has been consistently violated. In 1913 she passed a law forbidding the ownership of agricultural lands by the Japanese and limiting their tenure to three-year leaseholds. By an initiative measure adopted last November by an overwhelming majority, California added to the law a provision that no child of any alien ineligible to citizenship may acquire ownership of property. This takes from American-born Japanese the right of owning property which as American citizens they had enjoyed under the old law. The new restrictions were promulgated by the Governor immediately after the election and are now effective. To all complaints that the law is too drastic California retorts that Japan has always had even more rigorous regulations against the holding of land by foreigners.

The British dominions bordering on the Pacific—Canada, Australia and New Zealand, all of which, by various devices, limit the immigration of Japanese, are equally interested with the United States in this problem.

The Question of Shantung.

Inevitably, there will arise in the conference the question whether Shantung is to be fully restored to China. In this ancient Chinese province, Japan now enjoys the economic privileges which Germany first took from China and which Japan received at the peace conference in return for her adherence to the League of Nations. She has promised that China is to be restored to full sovereignty, but no time has been set for the transfer. China holds that she automatically became possessor of the former German concessions when she entered the war against the Central Powers. Japan's claim at the peace conference was strengthened by her secret treaties of February and March, 1917, with the leading European allies, and by China's enforced acceptance of the famous "21 demands" of Japan of 1915, against which this Government has protested.

Closely associated with the Shantung problem is that raised by China's resentment against Japan's economic penetration of Manchuria and Korea. By defeating Russia Japan acquired virtual control over Manchuria, though nominally it remains a part of China. Japan owns the chief trunk-line railways and eight branch lines that form a network over the province, and also a strip of territory five miles wide on each side of the lines. One of the announced objects of the war with Russia was the guaranteeing of the independence of Korea. China contends that Japan's assumption of control in the Korean peninsula is in direct violation of her plighted word.

A revolution against Japanese control has been in progress in Korea since soon after the beginning of the European war. The revolutionary party holds that Japanese efforts are being directed toward merging the country with the Japanese empire.

Japan's Desire to Know What Subjects Will Be Considered Is Understood in Light of the Great Importance the Subjects Have to Island Empire.

Japan's alleged effort to win in Siberia the same sort of control which she holds in Manchuria will doubtless also figure in the discussions at the Washington conference. The American State Department is known to entertain the view that Siberia economically is really in the same category as China. During the war both America and Japan sent troops into Siberia to help in the evacuation of the Czecho-Slovakian forces and to maintain communications on the trans-Siberian railway. This was part of our joint effort with the allies against the soviet regime. America's quota of troops numbered about 10,000, all of whom have long since been withdrawn. Japan, according to estimates, contributed 70,000 to the enterprise, and a considerable portion of these remain in Siberia. Japan has seized the northern half of Saghalin Island, the southern half of which she already possessed, as one of the fruits of her victory over Russia. Control of this island gives Japan domination over the Amur Basin, and the maritime province the great hinterland of Siberia, which is in its resources closely akin to Alaska.

The Anglo-Japanese Alliance.

Naturally, a prominent topic at the conference will be the Anglo-Japanese alliance, which has been in force the last 20 years, and the proposed renewal of which has stimulated a discussion of the whole Far Eastern problem in Europe and America during the last several months. The British dominions are on record against any alliance that would commit Great Britain to aid Japan in event of war with this country. As now drawn, the alliance contains an undertaking on the part of Japan and Great Britain to safeguard each other's interests, against aggressive action by a third Power. There is a saving clause, which, as Britain and Japan have officially pointed out, relieves Britain of any obligation to assist Japan against the United States.

The 10-year period covered by the present alliance expired on July 13, last. It was on July 10 that the Harding invitation to a disarmament and Pacific conference was made public. The general understanding here is that the call was issued at this time in order to accommodate the strong section of British public and official opinion which has been opposing renewal of the pact. Manifestly, it would have been embarrassing to Great Britain to enter a conference on Pacific problems just after having bound herself anew to one of the nations most concerned. As it is, Britain has a comparatively free hand. Though the treaty carries a clause that unless denounced by either party, it shall run for a year after the date of expiration, both parties have notified the League of Nations that in any matters where the procedure prescribed by the alliance conflicts with the covenant of the league, the covenant shall take precedence.

The perplexing and irritating Yap question doubtless will be on the agenda. The position of America on this question has not been altered from the policy laid down by Secretary Hughes that this Government is entitled to equal rights on the island with all others. Japan's attitude has been that the Paris mandate giving into her charge the former German islands north of the equator conferred upon her the exclusive jurisdiction over Yap. The importance of Yap lies in the fact that it is a landing and relay station for the only American cable across the Pacific.

The Future of the Philippines.

Tied up with the various problems of the Orient is the future of the Philippines. The United States is committed to the ultimate independence of the islands. The present American viewpoint appears to be that the Philippines should not be cut loose until thoroughly safeguarded by agreement against the aggression of any foreign Power. A glance at the map will show that the islands are surrounded by Japanese territory.

In connection with Hawaii, there may arise at the conference some discussion of Japan's policy of dual citizenship, the same sort of policy that Germany had before the war. It is the Japanese doctrine that a Japanese, even though born abroad and thereby made a citizen of the country of his birth, is still a Japanese and subject to the Mikado. The Japanese population in Hawaii has grown so rapidly that, according to authoritative estimates, it will, in a few years, constitute a voting majority in this American territory.

The matters arising under the Chinese consortium will almost certainly be dealt with. The consortium is a financial arrangement agreed upon at Paris during the peace conference whereby America, Great Britain, France and Japan

Stories of Political Intrigue and Tragedy at Old City Hall, Soon to Be Torn Down

Built as Makeshift, It Was Used for 25 Years for City Government

Birds-eye view of the old and new city halls. The old city hall is the huge barn-like structure in the left foreground.

THE old city hall is to be torn down.

The dingy red brick building on the west side of Eleventh street, from Chestnut to Market streets, has had an unsightly and unhonored existence since the city's officials and lawmakers moved, in 1898, to the edifice which is still officially termed the new city hall. Now, with the Building Department's decision that it is unfit for use, if not actually unsafe, the old city hall will soon return, if not ashes to ashes, at least dust to dust—since the gang didn't wreck it, the city must.

Few will mourn the demolition. The old city hall was never a creditable building, or one worthy of comparison with such fine structures of an earlier day as the Merchants Exchange, the Broadway Courthouse and Christ Church. Built in 1872-73, it was meant as a makeshift pending the construction of the new city hall, for which the Twelfth street site, known as Washington Square, had then been selected. Through delays in the construction of the new building, the old one was used for 25 years.

In that quarter-century period, electricity replaced horses and mules as a motive power for street cars, and began to replace gas as a means of lighting the streets. Transit lines were extended and downtown streets were paved with granite blocks, varied with a little experimental asphalt and wood. It was th etime, too, when new steam railways were entering the city, and when terminal arrangements were in the making. It was, therefore, a time when franchises and permits were being sought by those expert in such seeking.

"If those bricks could speak!" some may exclaim. But the bricks will not say a word—inanimate building material never does. Some of the men who were in the city hall offices and the two-house Municipal Assembly, between 1873 and 1898, are living, and a few of these, in the last few days, have recounted their reminiscences of the period when the old building was in use.

Survivors Who Tell of Period Between 1873-1898

THE survivors include David R. Francis, Mayor from 1885 to 1889, later Governor, Cabinet member and Ambassador; Edward A. Noonan, Mayor from 1889 to 1893, who has outlived his two successors, Cyrus P. Walbridge and Henry Ziegenhein; William Flewellyn Saunders, who was secretary to Mayor Walbridge, and who is now secretary of the American Chamber of Commerce in the City of Mexico; Charles W. Francis, former Health Commissioner and later chief sanitary officer; and William C. Marshall, former City Counselor, later Supreme Judge.

There are Charles Nagel, President of the Council from 1893 to 1897, and Franklin Ferriss, Patrick H. Clarke and Max Kotany, members of the Council in the same period. There are Thomas Morris, a member of the Council before the Charter of 1876 was adopted, later a Police Judge, and A. N. DeMenil, James A. Seddon, Charles D. Comfort, Albert Arnstein, William M. Horton, Andrew Hoolan, Charles Wiggins, Charles E. Carroll, Charles H. Thuner and Charles Kratz, members of the Council at various times. There are Hiram Lloyd, once Speaker of the House of Delegates, now Lieutenant-Governor; G. W. Carmichael, who was a member of the second House elected under the 1876 Charter (A. N. DeMenil was a member of the first House), and Edgar A. Mepham, Thomas H. Whitehall, Joseph L. Schuler, "Hank" Weeke, Charles A. Gutke, Alderman Henry Wander, John Helms and the Murrell brothers, E. E. and J. K., and others who were in the House of Delegates in the old city hall.

And there is still Chauncey I. Filley, whose political career antedates the building of the old city hall, who was its dominant force at times, and whose power declined at about the time when the building was abandoned.

These, and others living who have not been named in this compilation, are but the minority of those who made up the history of the old city hall. Among those no longer living are former Mayor Walbridge, whose death occurred a few months ago; Henry Ziegenhein, in whose term as Mayor the removal to the new city hall was made; Peter Gundlach and Peter G. Gerhart, members of the House of Delegates in the '80s, whose sons have carried on their civic spirit; Henry Flad and Gen. John W. Turner, pioneers in city planning and street improvement; Isaac H. Sturgeon, Comptroller, who linked his time with the days of Benton, James Bannerman, Henry Alt, James H. Cronin and Julius Lehmann, speakers at various times of the House of Delegates—Lehmann famous in North St. Louis politics as the man who "put the lights on the water tower," and Patrick Brennan, whose boast it was that, as a member of the House, he "gave the poor men worruk on the streets when there was no worruk."

It would be a patent oversight to omit the name of Edward Butler from among the deceased figures of the old city hall. The blacksmith-politician, never an office holder, had business at the city hall every day, and he was not accustomed to leave that business to others. His storm buggy was among the most familiar of the conveyances which used to line the Eleventh street curb. Another potent figure was William H. Swift.

Mayoralty Contest That Followed Barret's Death

THE history of the old city hall begins before the 1876 Charter was adopted. The Council of those days represented [illegible] wards, two men to a ward, who were paid $1000 a year. Joseph Brown's period of four one-year terms as Mayor included the year in which the old city hall was first occupied—1873.

Gas interests, at that time, were contending for a city-wide monopoly. Socrates Newman and James Campbell were leading figures in the gas manipulations. The gas contest came to involve the mayoralty. James H. Britton was declared elected Mayor, in a special election which followed the death of Mayor Arthur Barret in April, 1875.

Britton contended that the city, which had held $10,000 of the $40,000 stock of the St. Louis Gas Light Co. when the company was incorporated in 1837, still owned one-fourth of the company, which had grown greatly. "Soc" Newman contended, in behalf of the company, that the city's interest was only $10,000, and a court decision eventually upheld him. Newman and George A. Madill preferred, for Mayor, Henry Overstolz, who had been declared defeated by Britton.

The Council divided, 16 to 10, on the issue of the mayoralty, and Feb. 9, 1876, the 16, a working majority, voted to declare that Overstolz, not Britton, had been legally elected. One of the allegations against Britton was that several wagonloads of inmates of the city poorhouse had been voted for him.

"Sweet Sixteen" Issue in Campaign for Charter

THE "Sweet Sixteen" was the name given by the newspapers and the public to the Council majority which ousted Britton. "The Bitter Ten" was what the minority styled itself. Of the two present-day survivors of that body, Charles W. Francis and Thomas Morris were on opposite sides, Francis one of the 16, Morris one of the 10. Michael Madden, a six-foot Irishman of strong personality, was leader of the "Sweet Sixteen."

The vote which ousted Britton was taken about midnight, after a long and contentious session of the Council. Britton, hurrying to the building early the next morning, ordered policemen to line the corridors, and attempted to start legal proceedings immediately. This did not save the office for him, and Judge Morris, then a supporter of Britton, recalls a report, current at the time, that "Soc" Newman, backer of Overstolz, had had something to do with the departure of a certain Judge on a fishing trip just before the "Sweet Sixteen" put through its program.

The "Sweet Sixteen" became an issue in the campaign for the 1876 Charter, in which the question of separation of the city from the county was also involved. The vote was close and hinged on the delayed returns of a precinct in the Ninth Ward. William Roper, a judge of election in that precinct, certified to a return which carried the Charter and scheme of separation.

"Soc" Newman became receiver of the St. Louis Gas Light Co. by a court decree in 1876. The property was restored to the corporation's control in 1879, and a division of territory with its newer rival, the Laclede, was maintained for a time, the St. Louis company having the section south of Washington avenue, and the Laclede having that north of Washington.

A contract by which Fruin & Co. lighted the streets with gas was an incident of this period.

C. W. Francis' Long Service in Old Building

THE House of Delegates, created by the 1876 Charter, early began quarreling with the Council, and one of the worries of Mayor Overstolz after his election as the first four-year Mayor, was to get the two branches to agree on the most ordinary measures.

Mayor Overstolz appointed as Health Commissioner Charles W. Francis, who had been his supporter in the Council. Francis held the office until 1882, and soon after became chief sanitary officer, remaining in that position until 1907. As the Health Department remained in the old city hall for several years after the removal of other departments, Francis had probably a longer record of service in the old city hall than anyone else now living. He is 85 years old and lives at 4455 Pershing avenue.

Yellow fever menaced St. Louis in 1878, and the Health Department was the center of public concern, very much as it was in the "flu" epidemics of recent years. Steamboats coming up the river were stopped at Quarantine Station, south of Jefferson Barracks, and Francis relates that 42 bodies were taken from one boat and buried near Quarantine. Dr. Davis, superintendent of Quarantine, died of yellow fever, but the disease did not get to St. Louis. One obdurate steamboat owner, refusing to permit an inspection at Quarantine, and attempting to land at East St. Louis, was turned back by the Illinois health authorities, to whom Francis had sent a telegram.

Cordwood Covered Lot Behind the Structure

WOOD was the fuel used in heating the building until some time in the '80s, and piles of cordwood covered the lot behind the building. The city hall force of janitors then consisted of four or five negroes, under a head janitor. Edward L. Adreon, Comptrol-

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

Justice Above Party.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

THERE are crucial periods in American history when one is placed between a personal pledge and a party inclination. We have now arrived at such a period. Senator Spencer pledged himself to diligently investigate the infamous Newberry scandal.

The leaders of the Republican party obviously desire to drop the matter. Undecided as to which course he should pursue, and seeking not to draw upon himself the criticism and ill-will of the people or the Republican senatorial leaders, he has become an inanimate personage on the committee which he heads.

In other words, after spending three long years in organizing the committee to deal out justice according to the evidence obtained in the investigation, I find that the Republican members of the committee deftly baffle all attempts made to question certain personages whose knowledge of the case would throw a little light upon the matter. Simply because Newberry happens to be a Republican, the case must not be pressed lest the truth be revealed, and there be one Republican less in the Senate.

What a shameful blot on the policy of the Republican Senators. What a stain on the character of the American people.

Republican Senators, you pledged us a just and a clean administration last fall. Now is the opportunity to make good the promise. We want justice in the Newberry case. You can give to to us. Do it, and, moreover, do it now.

Bird Life.

INSECTICIDES are a poor substitute for bird life, and the latter is on the toboggan. Why cannot the Government take up this question of feathered propagation as it does reforestation and protection of its parks?

Supply and Demand.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

IT is impossible to get away from the law of "supply and demand," either in the housing of peoples or in anything else, and it is that inexorable law which determines the rents of today.

Let me give you a concrete case: Our company advertised a flat for rent once at $75 per month. Before 9 o'clock the morning it was in the paper we had 10 inquiries and three people who offered to take it, and one of the three offered $85 per month if I would let them have it.

A friend of mine conferred with me about a notice he had received notifying him if he wanted to renew his lease, which did not expire for six months, at 75 per cent advance, he must advise the agents within 30 days. He told me they could not get the price; that no one would take it and that a two-year lease was too long. He did not accept the offer within the 30 days and the apartment was rented over his head from the expiration of the lease, and several parties would have taken it. Then he denounced the profteering real estate men and said they had not treated him fairly!

Was the owner at fault for getting what he could? Would not anyone have done the same thing? The tenant who has made the strongest "kick" to me about a raise of a few dollars is the same one who a few years ago beat me down to the lowest price, then demanded 30 days free and unnecessary repairs. The law of supply and demand caused me then to accede to her request. I am a tenant. My rent has been raised, but I cannot better myself.

Free Railway Passes.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

I WANT to call your attention to an abuse which the Post-Dispatch should put a stop to. I refer to the free-pass evil. Many thousands of persons are riding all over this country on free passes just for fun and to kill time. I am personally acquainted with two women residing in Texas who put in most of their time riding around on free passes furnished by the Rock Island Railroad in Texas. These two women are relatives of an official of the Rock Island, and he keeps them well supplied with passes. I am just a plain workingman and when I travel on the railroads I must pay the full-fare, while other more fortunate people are allowed to travel on free passes just for fun and to kill time. The railroads are complaining of hard times and are laying off men and cutting salaries, while at the same time they are giving away thousands of free passes each year to people who have no claim at all on the railroads. The United States Government should issue an order to the railroads absolutely forbidding them to issue a free pass to any person excepting persons actually in the employ of the railroads, whose names are actually on the payrolls of the railroads.

FARMERS AND GOOD ROADS.

The roads bill reported favorably by the House committee is not as bad as it reads, but has grave faults which must be eliminated, if the good roads mandate of the people of Missouri is to be carried out in a way to meet the State's needs and the public expectation.

The principal faults of the bill are its provisions tying up the Highway Commission by instructions on specific details, many of which are impractical and some of which would defeat the broad and progressive purposes of the roads bond amendment. It specifies the salary of the chief engineer, placing it at a figure which precludes the employment of a competent engineer. It specifies the roads to be built in the counties and the minimum amounts to be expended on them, allotting about $45,000,000 to county roads, the greater part of the bond issue. It contains even the absurd condition that road making shall begin simultaneously in every county of the State. Fortunately, some of the restricting clauses of the bill leave something to the discretion of the Highway Commission, but the faults require radical amendment to obtain a satisfactory measure.

It is gratifying, however, to note in the modifications of the original House bill a better spirit among the Representatives—a spirit which holds out hope for a satisfactory conclusion. The trouble with the House bill is that it puts petty local interests above the interests of the whole State. It begins with disconnected county roads instead of beginning with the State highway system of hard-surfaced roads, which is necessary not only for the convenience and progress and prosperity of the people of the State, but the usefulness of the county roads and for the welfare of the rural population.

There is no issue between country and city and between the people of the State as a whole and the people of the separate counties. All are bound together in a common interest. The State highways will serve the villagers and the farmers as well as the city people. They are as necessary to the villages and farms as to the cities. They will connect the villages and the farms with the markets and the outside world. They will connect them with the cities, the church, the school, the theater. They will bring tourists and the best class of immigrants into the State. They will improve the value and price of every acre of property in the State. Condemning the money-division scheme of the House, the Monroe County Appeal declares there is no issue between the counties and cities. It remarks that there are 50 farm-owned machines to every five city-owned machines on every highway in the State.

There is an aspect of farm business which urges good, permanent highways to sustain heavy traffic: Freight rates on railroads are very high and the only relief for the farmer in marketing his crops is the truck, which requires hard-surfaced roads. Successful Farming, the farm newspaper edited and published by ex-Secretary Meredith of the Department of Agriculture, calls attention to the necessity of hard-paved highways for the farmer and the hardships they suffer on account of the lack of good roads to take their products to market. Following is an excerpt from an editorial in Successful Farming on the subject:

> How unfortunate that right now, when we need good paved highways all over the country we have not got them. We could get along without suffering so much if we could transport our stuff by truck. But the railroads have us of the agricultural region in their grip, with freight rates so high that the freight often consumes more than the price of the product.
> They who have been responsible for delayed road improvement are not paying the farmer's freight rates now. They are not offering any solution for the conditions that confront farmers now. They are not able to bring rail freight rates down, nor construct hard roads that will carry the freight by truck. They advocated mud roads in the past; they made you believe that the taxes would eat up your farms if hard roads were built. They do not point out now that it is freight rates that kill your market.
> It is a costly lesson, but perhaps worth the money. It is unfortunate that it comes on top of other difficulties, but in the end we will have hard roads as a result of excessive freight rates.

Those who plead for dirt roads for the farmers and scorn the hard-surfaced roads as "peacock lanes" betray the farm interests and wholly misrepresent the farmer. They represent the political farmer, who is after the spoils. The real farmer needs good roads because he can get nowhere without them. The State as a whole needs them. The whole question of the future growth and prosperity of Missouri is bound up in good roads. The misuse of the bond funds and the loss of Federal funds available for good roads would be fatal to the progress of Missouri for years to come. It would be fatal to any party responsible for the waste of the money and the loss of the State's opportunity.

THE ILLINOIS GRAFT INQUIRY.

Judging from the import of recent developments at Springfield, Illinois is facing unpleasant revelations concerning the conduct of certain officials. If the allegations of the probers are true, then the State would seem to have been defrauded of hundreds of thousands of dollars in the interest which it should have received from its funds; if these accusations are unfounded, then a scandalous plot appears to have been hatched by others of high position for the purpose of discrediting their associates.

Regardless of the unhappy character of these alternatives, there is but one course for the State to follow: that is to probe, thoroughly, deeply and exhaustively, every phase and ramification of the entire situation. The fact that the former records of the present Governor, Lieutenant-Governor and State Auditor are the ones now under scrutiny must not, at all costs, be permitted to influence the investigation—either for or against them.

Those who have watched the deepening connection between politics and government in Illinois for the last few years, have done so with a growing conviction that an explosion was inevitable. It appears to have come. In this situation, let it be reiterated, there is but one salvation—let the housecleaning be thorough.

THE LYNCHING GAME.

Interest in the distinctive American outdoor sport of lynching is on the increase. During the first half of this year 36 lynching meets were held, which was exactly three times as many as were held the first half of last year, and although they were all impromptu affairs, reports are that they were largely attended and successful.

The kill, according to the records compiled by the Department of Records and Research of the Tuskegee Institute, consisted of 34 negroes (two of whom were women) and two whites. Only 11 of the persons killed were charged with crimes against women.

Missourians generally will not take pride in the fact that it is the northernmost State in which a lynching revel was held. There is cause for satisfaction that there was only one in the State. That one was held at Bowling Green, and everybody up there liked it so well that they refused to tell the grand jury anything about it, but the rest of the State expressed itself plainly in disapproval of that kind of sport.

Lynchng is against the law, but it is seldom that promoters and participants are prosecuted. In Mississippi it is the principal pastime, 10 Mississippians having been lynched in six months.

The lynching game is disapproved in high-class sporting circles, because, as played, the lynchee does not have a chance. It has been suggested that, as a sporting proposition, if the person picked out to be lynched were given an even chance it would make the game more exciting. But that would never do. It would make it dangerous for the lynchers, and they would never stand for that. The reason that lynchings are so popular is that they are so safe for the lynchers.

GIVE AMERICA A CHANCE.

Prof. Einstein does not think we are such a rum lot, after all. First reports of an interview given by the distinguished discoverer of relativity, upon his return to Berlin, gave the impression that his chief cause for thanks concerning his visit to America was the fact that it didn't last any longer. "What intellectual poverty!" he was said to have exclaimed. "The men think only of work, so that they make more money for their wives to spend extravagantly."

Now it appears that the professor was almost as greatly distressed over the publication of the interview as we were. We have our crudities, he admits, but we make up for it in enthusiasm. What we lack in polish we supply in pep. And as for our raving over the doctrine of relativity, of which we know nothing, we have been no different from any civilized country on the globe, he points out.

This statement, it may be confessed, is a decided relief. We know that we have our faults, but it would be exceedingly painful to be pilloried before the thinking world as a nation of sybaritic savages. The fact is that our national culture is comparatively young. We lack Europe's centuries of polish. Doubtless we will study harder after we have got our full growth. Men and nations usually do. Give us a little time, professor, and some of these days we will evolve a doctrine beside which the theory of relativity will be as simple as the rudimentary multiplication table.

To their great lament,
All the profiteers
Have followed,
Guessing where
Their booty went.
Had we, too,
A Morgiana
Handing villainy
Its foil,
What a troop
Of fine, fat robbers
There would be
For her to boil!

So we have it,
Sweet Luella:
Go and try
The nearest shop.
Is there any Disposition
On the part
Of things to drop?
Are the butcher
And the baker
Back to what
We paid of yore,
Or is profiteering
Truly
Just as ruthless
As before?

Let us try
Our friend the druggist
Up from sodapop
To pills:
Has he shown
A disposition
To alleviate
Our ills?
Is the landlord
Any lower?
Has the miller
Dropped his gun?
Are the doctor
And the lawyer
Really
Upon the run?

No, indeed,
My little girlie:
Greed requires
His daily grist.
Only workingmen
And farmers
Are discovered
To desist.
Only those Who have their profits
Fixed by others
Give away,
Leaving all
The others busy
Blithely robbing
Whom they may.

Our idea of satire is "Home Sweet Home" sung by the St. Louis Millmen's Association.

THE JOHN BURROUGHS MEMORIALS.

The John Burroughs Memorial Association is raising a fund of $40,000 with which to preserve as memorials the properties upon which the naturalist spent most of his 84 years. They are as follows:

"Riverby," in Ulster County, N. Y., at West Park-on-the-Hudson—which consists of a six-room stone dwelling built by the author himself and in which he lived for nearly 50 years and from which are dated many of his books, and "the Chestnut Bark Study" in which many of the books were written, and which contains the writer's working library. A barn, a garage and six acres of land are also included in Riverby.

"Slabsides"—located one and one-half miles from Riverby, in the wooded hills back of the Hudson—the world-famous retreat of the poet-naturalist, furnished and equipped as he was wont to use it. The massive stone chimney of this cabin was built by his own hands. This property has already come into the possession of the John Burroughs Memorial Association. Dr. Clara Barrus, who through the terms of the will of Mr. Burroughs, held a life interest in the place, has relinquished her rights in it to the association.

"Woodchuck Lodge," in Roxbury-in-the-Catskills, Delaware County, N. Y.—a farmhouse on the east end of the Burroughs homestead farm, which Mr. Burroughs restored and in which he spent the summers of his later life.

"The Hay-Barn"—which he used as a study, and where he wrote "A Barn-Door Outlook," "A Hay-Barn Idyl," and many other essays incorporated in Under the Apple Trees, in Field and Study, and other later books.

"Memorial Field," in which is "The Rock" where he played as a boy and in whose shadow his body rests.

Contributions in any sum may be made by check drawn to Frank Seaman, treasurer, 15 West Eighty-first street, New York City. The association believes that with the widespread affection for Mr. Burroughs enough small subscriptions will be received to make up the fund.

An American who has been living in Japan for some time says the people over there have anti-American outbreaks precisely like our own anti-Japanese outbreaks. Nevertheless, he believes the differences between the two countries are not such as render war inevitable unless we have very bad statesmanship upon both sides, which is the one thing we can probably count on. The Japanese have a very small country and so many children they don't know what to do. The celebrated old woman who lived in a shoe had a mansion in comparison to Japan. Nobody knows just what the solution of that problem is. China is already so over-populated that there is not air enough for everybody to breathe. Manchuria and Corea, into which the Japanese have attempted to overflow, have had the big family idea of which Col. Roosevelt was enamored for so long that they will soon be none too spacious for their own populations. The Philippines cannot become Japanese very well, since they have even more children than anybody on the mainland and are moreover tropical, the latter said to be an insuperable barrier to the Japanese. It looks as if all of them needed to have Margaret Sangster over. This gentleman thinks Mexico offers a partial solution for the Japanese, which shows how hard-pressed everybody is for an answer. The Japanese are also dependent upon foreign trade for prosperity, and they want the trade of China. A half dozen nations, including our own, want an open door in China, expecting to have some part of that trade themselves. So there we have it. The Pacific problem is a real problem, and it could only wait until something could be done about the Kaiser and his bumptious outfit, now happily done for.

The MIRROR of PUBLIC OPINION

This column is designed to reproduce without bias the latest comment by the leading publicists, newspapers and periodicals on the questions of the day.

A DEFENSE OF SIMS.

From the Nation.

ONE cannot help liking this man Sims. His London speech, of course, was foolish and improper, but it must be admitted that when he opens his mouth he says something. In this he is unlike many other public men (no, we are not thinking of anybody in particular) who deal in platitudes and generalities. He employs the open diplomacy which we praise so volubly, but practice so little; he has the blunt, vigorous and savory speech of our earlier America. The incident about his London speech that was least in character was his denial of the correctness of the cabled reports. That seemed like a typical politician's trick, but was apparently merely a smoke screen until he could learn how he had actually been quoted. In his official statement to Secretary Denby he evidently stood by his words like a man, and one can excuse much to an Admiral who, after a reprimand, says frankly of his folly: "I spilled the beans. I got what was coming to me." Our Irish friends ought to forgive Admiral Sims, and those with a true Gaelic sense of humor will do so. He has too many of their own characteristics to be regarded as an enemy. Indeed, his most serious fault seems to be not having been born an Irishman.

SCHOOL FOR WOMEN WORKERS.

From the Philadelphia Public Ledger.

THE summer school for women industrial workers at Bryn Mawr seems to be carrying out the purpose of the proponents of the idea and giving a great deal of satisfaction to the public enjoying its advantages. An attitude of philanthropic condescension was as far as possible from the minds of those who planned the experiment. They intended to put the resources of the college at the disposal of those whose busy lives have denied them academic privileges, and the first three weeks of the undertaking demonstrate that the advantages are to the fullest extent appreciated and utilized. The pupils are representative of their several callings, and in many instances the scholarships which have made their attendance possible are provided by a trades union. There will be a generous disposition to share with others the benefit derived from this happy and fortifying interlude. The girls who have attended the school at Bryn Mawr this summer will be eager to have the enterprise a permanency, that many others in the days to come may enjoy all that they have found so delightful.

SOCIALIZING COMMODITIES.

From the Emporia Gazette.

AMERICANS of practically every political and economic creed realize that communism will not work. The thing that will work and is working in America and will work right on, in spite of party changes and party creeds, is the gradual evolutionary socializing of commodities. As a commodity becomes a necessity, it finds its own market; the marketing ability of its owner becomes valueless, and he has no right to charge for his marketing ability. When he ceases to charge for his marketing ability, then the Government one way or another curtails his profits and sooner or later takes over the industry. A large area where individual initiative is given free play is always open in fields where new things are made, sold and consumed. But communication, transportation, fuel, school books, and now meat and grain, are coming under social control through the Federal Government. This will continue as the decades go by.

That is the American way of doing what Trotsky and Lenine failed to do. Our way is evolutionary. The education of the people makes the demands of the people more insistent and more intelligent, and sooner or later the folks get what they go after. But they can't take the whole dose at one gulp.

Events in the Social World

Summer Touring by Motor Has Made Strong Appeal to Members of St. Louis Social World This Season and Many Parties Are Now on the Roads Throughout the Country.

At this season of the year the call of the "Great Outdoors" is always most insistent and the social world finds various ways of answering it. This summer touring by motor to seashore and mountain has appealed to many, and each day sees new parties seeking the highways leading to the popular resorts, East, West and North.

Mr. and Mrs. Clifford R. Garrison motored a few days ago to Harbor Point, Mich.,; last Sunday Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Kauffman, accompanied by William Clabaugh, departed on a two week's tour to Chicago, Waupaca and Eagle River, Wis. The matrons who will act as leaders in the sale of score cards at the charity Ball game for the benefit of the Tuberculosis Society, which will take place July 27 will hold a meeting this week and organize their corps of workers. Each matron will have ten girls as assistants in addition to one vice-chairman of her group, and each group will be assigned to a special portion of the grounds. The girls will wear white, with red hats and sashes—red and white being the colors of the anti-tuberculosis movement throughout the world—and each will carry a big white canvas bag over her shoulder containing the souvenir score cards which will be sold at 25 cents each.

The matrons on the committee, and their helpers are Messrs. Albert Boettler, Richard McAdams, Harry Hawkins, Crawford Duncan, Max W. Feuerbacher, H. F. Levy, G. E. Mix, Robert Grove, Carl Vohs, A. C. Armbruster, Norman C. Wolff, E. A. DeWolf, Arthur Lieber, W. T. Donovan, B. E. Grace, Julia S. Carroll, Irwin Bettman, Jay Vohs, Paul Peltason, Frank Hagedorn, H. Hagedorn, August Daues, Arthur J. Mrs. John B. Strauch and Miss Alice F. Strauch of St. Louis are spending some time at the Mansion House, Poland Spring, where they have recently arrived.

Newport Outdoor Program Hindered by Long Rainstorms.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEWPORT, R. I., July 16.—The prolonged rainstorm which New England endured the last week rather disarranged the outdoor program of the community.

Mrs. Vincent Astor, who with Mr. Astor has recently arrived at Beechwood, gave a luncheon for 10 guests.

Among the prominent society women who will be patronesses for the concert to be given in the Casino Theater on July 26 are Mrs. William S. Sims, Mrs. Charles M. Oelrichs, Mrs. Douglas E. Dismukes and Mrs. John K. Taussig.

Admiral and Mrs. Sims entertained at dinner for the visiting players during the international intercollegiate tournament last week.

Mrs. Daniel Jones has returned to her home in St. Louis after spending a month with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Bradford Norman, at Brook Farm, their estate at Middletown, a short distance out of Newport. Mrs. Jones is greatly missed at Newport, where, as Miss Barbara Norman, she was instrumental in establishing a clinic for babies under the management of the Newport Hospital.

Mrs. William S. Sims and her sister, Miss Hitchcock, were guests of honor at the dinner given by Mrs. Thomas T. Craven at her cottage in Jamestown.

The Narragansett Pier season became rather quiet after the holiday, with the cottage colony devoting themselves wholly to sports at the Point Judith Country Club and bathing. Among those who have taken suites at the Sherry Bathing Pavilion is Mrs. Albert Bond Lambert of St. Louis, who, with her mother, Mrs. George McGrew, and her sons is at Sagamore Lodge for the season.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry January of St. Louis have taken a cottage at Barbours Heights, Saunderstown, R. I., for the summer, where they are near enough to Jamestown and Narragansett Pier to enjoy the social life of both places.

Former Judge and Mrs. Thomas Bond of St. Louis have taken apartments at the Ocean House, Watch Hill, for the midseason.

Mr. and Mrs. Alfred H. Clarke of St. Louis are guests of Dr. and Mrs. M. F. Linquist at their summer home in Woodmont, Conn., a resort on Long Island Sound.

WEQUETONSING FINDS BAY WATERS WARMED BY THE HOT SPELL

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WEQUETONSING, Mich., July 16.—Not within the memory of the oldest cottager at Wequetonsing and Harbor Point, which became summer outing places for St. Louisans 40 years ago, have the waters of Little Traverse Bay been as warm as during the heated spell of the last two or three weeks, and St. Louis visitors are spending much time swimming. Mononoqua Beach, at the head of the bay, looks like a small Atlantic City beach each afternoon and evening, and gayly clad bathers sit around bonfires and roast and eat marshmallows and "wieners."

M. L. Rose has arrived by private car and joined Mrs. Rose at their Wequetonsing cottage for the summer.

Leonard and Miss Elizabeth Spaulding of St. Louis are guests of their uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. G. E. Frank, and Miss Audrie Lacoq, Glenn Ross and H. H. Wilson of St. Louis are recent arrivals.

A beautiful flag, donated by Frank B. Wyman of St. Louis, has been raised at the golf clubhouse by Miss Florence Bradley of Chicago, daughter of C. M. Bradley, president of the Wequestonsing Golf Club.

President Bradley won the recent men's driving contest, and Charles F. Cockle of Peoria, Ill., the blind bogy. St. Louisans continue to increase their membership in the golf club and are seen daily on the course.

Bishop Daniel S. Tuttle is here, and so also are Dr. George M. Tuttle and his son, Wallace.

Recent additions of St. Louisans to the golf club register include Mrs. W. L. Becktold, Mrs. C. M. Biggers, C. W. Condie, Mrs. Robert Dittman, Mr. and Mrs. R. Lee Lotz, Mr. and Mrs. S. S. Pingree, W. W. La Beaume, John Sexton, Clifford Sexton, Mrs. T. H. West and Lawson Watts. All are at Wequetonsing except Watts, who is at Harbor Point.

Dr. Amand Ravold has returned to St. Louis after three weeks at the Ravold cottage. He will resume his outing in the fall.

St. Louisans recently arrived at Wequetonsing include Mrs. W. C. Sipple Jr., Miss Mary Sipple, Edward C. Simmons, Francis B. Seward Jr., Mrs. John Young Brown Jr., Wade Childress, Helen E. Edmonds, Mrs. E. A. Manny, Miss Mary Manny, Miss Charlotte Manny, Mr. and Mrs. G. M. Smith, Mrs. Norman L. Lincoln, William L. Lincoln, Porter A. Lincoln, Miss Evelyn Brown, Miss Bertha Reecht, Mrs. Gerard B. Allen, Mrs. Robert W. Dittman and family, Mrs. Louis F. Lumaghi, and Mrs. Thomas McNally.

Mrs. Joseph McIntyre and her mother, Mrs. H. L. Langenburg, are erecting a summer home at Roaring Brook, which adjoins Wequetonsing, and Mr. and Mrs. James A. Waterworth of St. Louis have ordered their Roaring Brook cottage put in readiness for their immediate arrival.

MR. M. M. LEVY,
Henderson, Ky.
Dear Sir:—

During the past winter I had the misfortune of having my finest beagle, Nell Fayette, take down with the distemper. I had almost despaired of saving her when I tried your 999 Distemper remedy which was recommended by your agent, Mr. Frank Haller, and I want to say that I am surely grateful to both yourself and your agent for I am sure this medicine saved my dog. I followed up the 999 with the K-9 tablets, and I wish you could see Nell Fayette. Have just sent her to be trained for the trials this fall—she is in wonderful shape—all due to your wonderful discovery.

Wishing you every success with this medicine and hoping every owner of a dog that gets distemper will be so fortunate as to use this excellent remedy, I remain,

Sincerely yours,

Announcing The August Sale of Furniture

PERHAPS more thoughtful consideration was never given the investing of money than at the present time. Every dollar spent is expected to bring a full dollar's return, consequently every offering of merchandise is subjected to severest criticism by prospective purchasers.

In full recognition of this situation we have planned our Annual August Sale of Furniture, and announce it in the entire confidence that here are values worthy of the time which produces them.

The most casual observer cannot but note the extreme saving advantages this event presents over those prevalent in the seasons just past. Since careful students of the future see no reason for expecting definite lowering of prices, this occasion is most auspicious for thrifty investing.

The Sale includes our entire stock, greatly augmented by purchases made expressly for this event. Beauty, durability and perfection of construction are tests to which every piece was subjected before it was added to our stock. Modest furnishings and those of great elegance have equal importance in this Sale, both in variety of design and in the savings they make possible.

The Sale Proper Will Be Inaugurated Monday, July 25
Preceding This Opening Date, However, We Have Set Aside

Five Days of Inspection
Beginning Monday, July 18

During these days our stock of Furniture may be leisurely inspected by prospective purchasers. Selections may be made and tags of reservation will be attached. The entry upon our charge books will be made on the first day of the sale at the August Sale prices. Delivery will be made after the opening of the Sale.

POLITICAL INTRIGUE AND TRAGEDY AT OLD CITY HALL

in the Overholz and Ewing administrations, insisted that the janitors did not have enough work to do otherwise, and required them to saw the wood.

The wood was hoisted into upper windows with pulleys, a noisy and dirty operation, and officials frequently complained that their discussions were interrupted by the thump of falling fuel and the shouts of the woodmen. Leverett Bell, when City Counselor, made a strong protest against these noises, but they continued until coal was adopted as fuel.

A cordon of saloons surrounded the building. There were not enough corners, and some of the saloons stood in the middle of the block, within reach of some of the entrances. Proprietors of these and other adjacent saloons were usually in politics. So many of them were in the House of Delegates that it used to be said that anyone could stampede the House by entering suddenly and shouting: "Your saloon's on fire!"

Generals Who Held Office in the Building

Gen. John D. Stevenson, Comptroller and later Health Commissioner, was one of a number of Civil War officers of distinction who held office in the old building. Gen. John W. Turner, Street Commissioner, was another. Major-General A. J. Smith was for several years in the water rates office and Gen. William Shields was City Auditor.

Gen. William Tecumseh Sherman was a resident of St. Louis in the '70s, living in a house on Garrison avenue, north of Franklin avenue, which had been purchased for him by public subscription. To the city water rates office, the General's name on a water bill looked like any other name, and when he failed to keep his bills paid up he was warned that the water would be cut off—one account of the matter has it that the cutting off was actually done by an inspector.

The General visited the water rates office, and gave the clerks his opinion of officials who would annoy him about such a matter. He is said to have expressed himself quite as clearly, if not as briefly, as he did in his famous definition of war. This occurrence is said to have been one of the causes of Gen. Sherman's later removal from St. Louis.

Gen. C. E. Solomon, also a Civil War General, held a city hall position in this period, resigning to serve as Federal director of the 1880 census here. He was locally famous as 'the man who beat Grant." Those who have read the biography of U. S. Grant will remember that he sought appointment as County Surveyor and Engineer of St. Louis County, but was not chosen for the place by the County Court. Solomon was the man who was chosen for that place. He later served in the army under Grant and supported him in his presidential campaigns.

Transit Problems Came Up in Those Days

Through the Ewing, Francis and Noonan administrations the important issues were the recurring gas question, transit franchises and railroad terminals, and in the late '80s and early '90s, the location of Union Station.

Charles D. Comfort, who served in the Council under Mayors Francis and Noonan, recalls the turbulence which frequently arose in public protests against the building of street railway lines.

"People in those days were not sure whether they wanted more rapid transit or not," he said. "The objection was made by many persons that trolley cars should not be permitted in the streets, because they would kill children. Then, even among those who saw the necessity for better methods of transit, there was the natural wish to keep the tracks off their own streets. Everyone wanted the tracks on the next street, no one on his own street. The extensions were granted, in some cases, over a storm of protests and abuse.

"The locating of Union Station on Market street was a complicated and controversial matter. I was chairman of the committee in charge of this, and we recommended the measure finally passed. The greatest objection to the Market street location had been that the train sheds and tracks would destroy Clark avenue, which was then an east and west thoroughfare. To meet this objection it was provided finally that a bridge should be built by the Terminal Association over the train shed, connecting the severed sections of Clark avenue. It was also required that the station should stand back a certain distance from Market street, to permit later widening of the street.

"These requirements were made in good faith, and apparently were accepted by the company in good faith; but the Clark avenue bridge was never built and the station was built beyond the line provided."

"Paddy" Brennan Only Democrat Elected in 1888

THE fall election of 1888, like that of 1920, was a Republican landslide in St. Louis. The only Democrat elected to any office was Patrick Brennan, who was elected to the House of Delegates from the Eighth Ward, to fill a vacancy. The vote by which he was elected was that of the Eighth Ward only, as the wards elected their delegates separately. But "Paddy" became a hero among the Democrats and he was taken on tours into the State to be pointed out as the only Democrat elected in St. Louis in the face of the Harrison landslide.

John W. Kearney, racontour and former newspaper worker, has recorded for posterity the speech which, with some variations, "Paddy" used to deliver at local Democratic rallies as late as the campaign of 1896.

"Ain't I the frind of the worrukin' man?" Brennan would demand. "Ye're right, Paddy," someone in the crowd would reply. "Av coorse I'm right," he would respond. "I'm a-always right.

"Phwin I was in the House of Dillygates, didn't I give the poor men worruk to do on the streets when there was no worruk?" "Ye're right, Paddy. "Av coorse I'm right; I'm a-always right.

Smart Apparel for Stout Women

YEARS of concentration and thought by some of America's foremost designers has developed the Sveltline System of designing, and produced comfortable apparel for stout and near-stout women, and at the same time produces a slenderized effect.

This store will be devoted exclusively to the service of those who have had difficulties in getting garments that gave their stout figures the same neat, slender effect as those who have slender figures.

The mission of this store will be to help solve your clothes problems.

This Store Will Open Tomorrow—Monday, July 18th

The completion of new fixtures and the erection of a balcony and other improvements deelayed the opening of this shop. Vast quantities of garments have been received and are now ready for immediate use. The season has been shortened for these unavoidable reasons, so you will have the advantage of STYLISH STOUT APPAREL UNDERPRICED frind of the worrukin' man. Phwin the Dimmycratic pa-arty was in power, the fare on the Broadway line was tin cints, and the poor worrukin' man, sta-artin' out in the mornin' and walkin' to his little job, would save tin cints. Phwin the Ray-poob-lican pa-arty came in power, phwat did they do? They ray-jooced the fare to five cints, and now the poor worrukin' man, sta-artin' out in the mornin' and walkin' to his little job, can only save a nickel."

Interesting Happenings of Noonan Administration

UNDER the 1876 charter, the Mayor made a long list of important appointments in the middle of his term, subject to the Council's approval. If the Council rejected a name submitted, the Mayor must submit another name, but if it was rejected, or if the appointee refused to accept, the first name could be resubmitted. A prolonged contest, between a "solid seven" in the Council and Mayor Noonan, took place over a number of appointments, particularly the Mayor's selection of Mike Hester for Chief of the Fire Department. The Mayor would send Hester's name in, the Council would reject it, and the Mayor would then nominate, for Fire Chief, some bank president or wealthy man who did not wish to be Fire Chief, and who, if the Council accepted him, would refuse the place. Then he would send in Hester's name again. This continued until Hester, seeing that the "solid seven" would not let him be Chief, asked the Mayor to drop the contest.

A startling event of the Noonan administration was the suicide of Edward Foerstel, a Deputy City Treasurer. Foerstel killed himself in a downtown building a short time after a fire, in the Treasurer's office, had been discovered and extinguished. Had the records of the office been burned, the shortage which caused Foerstel's suicide might not have become known. The building has always been regarded as a fire trap, the partitions being of wood throughout, but no fire has ever gained serious headway in it.

Toward the end of his term, Mayor Noonan backed a proposal to sell the old city hall to the Liggett interests, as the site for a hotel. "I don't remember the price offered," Noonan said the other day, "but it was more than the city could ever get for the property later. The St. Louis Chronicle, an evening paper, fought this proposal as a 'grab,' and it was finally beaten. With it went the chance to improve that part of Market street. Had the proposed hotel been built, I believe the Busch interests would have built another large hotel near by, and the street would have a very different look from what it has today.

The entrance of the St. Louis, Keokuk & Northwestern Railroad, now part of the Burlington system, into the city, was in the Noonan administration. The use of a part of Hall street, in North St. Louis, was necessary to the enterprise, and rival railroad interests attempted to lay a track there one Sunday. This obstructionary work was stopped by policemen, at Noonan's order, and when the Mayor was hard pressed for a point of law to sustain his action, he cited the law against Sunday work except for charity or necessity—a law which, a few years before, as a Judge of the Court of Criminal Correction, he had denounced as oppressive. The main thing desired by Noonan was that the new railroad should get into the city, and it got in.

Noonan's veto of a gas franchise bill, which would have been a blow at the Laclede Gas interests, was a surprise to some who considered that the Laclede company had been unfriendly toward him. Noonan now says the Laclede company was highly unfriendly to him, and that his impulse was to sign the bill for the rival concern's franchise; but that he was affected by consideration of the large loss that might come to St. Louis investors in the stock of the Laclede.

Remark Overheard Enabled Some to Get Jobs by Ruse

THE brewery influence was potent in the days of the old city hall. A story for which the writer cannot vouch, but which was told to him by one of the best informed politicians of the time, was to the effect that a leading brewer sent several persons to a city official, with letters asking that they be appointed to city jobs. The official had a large number of jobs at his disposal, but he felt that the brewer was asking for too great a share of them, and when they met in a downtown cafe, he told him so.

"I don't want you to appoint all the fellows that I give letters to," the brewer said, after hearing the official's complaint. "I have to give those fellows letters to get rid of them. Of course, now and then there is one whom I would like to have you fix up.'"

"Well," said the official, "suppose hereafter, when you really want me to give a man a job, you put a pin prick through the trademark of your firm on the letter, and when I feel it, I will know it is all right. The brewer agreed to this.

Both had spoken more loudly than was necessary, and the agreement was overheard. The result was that some of the letters which were presented to the official, on the brewery stationery, in the next few days, bore pin pricks that the brewer had not made. Some men who obtained jobs in this way are said to have held them through several later administrations.

Jailer "Butch" Wagner Familiar Figure of Period

WORK on the new City Hall begun under Noonan, was continued during the Walbridge administration. A familiar City Hall figure in this period was Louis Wagner, city jailer, who was known as "Butch." This appointee was not a source of strength to the administration, especially when Noble Shepherd, a noted criminal, escaped from the jail. "Butch" and the administration weathered the storm of ridicule and complaint that this occurrence brought, but the critical situation in which "Butch" found himself was aptly described, a few years later, by Mayor Ziegenhein. "Butch" ventured to interrupt "Uncle Henry" with a question when the Mayor was speaking at a political meeting, and the Mayor addressed these withering words to him:

"Butch Wagner, you can go to meetings and interrupt speakers now; but a few years ago you weren't so gay. The time that Noble Shepherd got out, you were running this way and that way to hold your job. Butch, you were so scared that you were having night sweats in the daytime."

"Butch" appeared at the Mayor's office one day with a black eye, and the discoloration was so thorough that it remained for several days. He refused to answer any question, and the matter became a City Hall mystery, which was treated in verse by Willis Leonard Clanahan, a Post-Dispatch poet of the time, with a jingle entitled, "Vos is Los Mit Louie's Eye?"

More important appointees of Mayor Walbridge were M. L. Holman as Water Commissioner, reappointed; B. H. Colby as Sewer Commissioner; C. H. Stone as Harbor Commissioner, and Franklin L. Ridgely as Park Commissioner.

The Filley hat was in fashion at the City Hall in Walbridge's day. When Ziegenhein succeeded Walbridge, he wore a black hat of the pattern of Filley's, and he continued to wear it after his break with "De Ole Man." Ziegenhein declared, and used to show an old photograph to prove it, that he wore a hat of that pattern when he was a young man, and before Filley had set the style. Filley was equally insistent that he did not wish his hat worn by Ziegenhein, and after "Uncle Henry's" famous discovery of the moon, which occurred after the removal to the new City Hall, Filley altered his hat pattern slightly.

The Zeigenhein administration remained in the old building only through its first year. In that time the ceremonial addresses of the Mayor became famous. These were delivered both at his office and at meeting places of the bodies which he was called to address. Whether it was a distillers' convention of a Methodist conference, the address was substantially the same.

"I am glad to welcome you," the Mayor would say. "Your meeting is an honor to our city. We want you to make yourselves at home, and if you get into any trwouble with the police, remember I've got two telephones in my house, and you call me up and I'll fix it for you."

The same robust sense of humor, sometimes unconscious, contributed to the later saying of Mayor Ziegenhein, which went around the world, "We got a moon yet, ain't it?" That was not the exact wording of his original utterance on the subject, on the autumn day when the city street lighting contract expired without a new system of lights in operation. But the phrase, printed with a Post-Dispatch cartoon, pleased him so that he quoted it repeatedly in the next few days, thus making it his own. The public laughed, too, and kept on laughing until the next spring, whe nit laughed the Mayor and his party out of office.

Central Traction Bill Passed in New Building

IN 1897-98, early in the Ziegenhein regime, the accumulated problems of the transit situation came to a head in the North and South bill, which outlined a system of street railway lines covering the city. It was apparent that this franchise was desired for trading purposes, rather than for actual use. The holder of such a franchise could force a consolidation of the different lines, precisely what was later done.

The Assembly passed the North and South bill, but Mayor Ziegenhein vetoed it, and there were not enough votes to pass it over his veto.

The North and South bill was soon followed by the Central Traction bill, a more ambitious measure of the same sort, which was actively backed by the late R. M. Snyder, Kansas City promoter. The word went about that this was the bill which was going through. It passed the Assembly, and was vetoed by the Mayor.

At this point, strictly speaking, the story of the Old City Hall ends. On April 11, 1898, with a ceremonial procession, the city officers and legislative bodies were removed to the New City Hall then only partly completed. On April 12, at their first meetings in the new building, the House and the Council received the Mayor's veto of the Central Traction bill. The House passed the bill over the veto, 25 to 3. In the Council, the fate of the measure depended on the vote of the last man named in the secretary's alphabetical-order roll call. This man was Frederick G. Uthoff, who had promised the Mayor to uphold the veto.

Uthoff's name was called three times before he voted aye, for the passage of the bill. He testified years afterward, in the trial of Snyder for bribery, that Snyder promised him $50,000 for his vote, and gave him the money, but borrowed it back from him to pay another member, and did not repay it. A proper investigation of this episode was deferred so long that the statute of limitations clearly protected all except Snyder, who was prosecuted on the theory that he had not been a resident of the state for the required period since the offense. The Supreme Court decided that the statute of limitations protected Snyder, too.

Describing the Central Traction vote, the Post-Dispatch said in its news columns April 13, 1898, "The New City Hall was officially dedicated last night to the boodling franchise grabbers."

The Folk boodle inquiry, a few years later, showed that the Old City Hall had been the scene of many boodle transactions. One member of the House of Delegates, it was related, sold his vote for a cookstove. But none of these boodle transactions in the old building was ever punished by the law. The Suburban and lighting deals, for which a number were indicted, and seven were sent to the Penitentiary, occurred after the removal to the new building.

Branches of the Health Department, left in the old building, have been removed one by one, but the Central Dispensary remains. In recent years, the second floor rooms have been used as temporary quarters for sufferers from contagious diseases, a Chinese leper being kept there at one time until he could be taken to quarantine.

"PROBLEMS OF THE PACIFIC" LIKELY TO ENGAGE CONFERENCE

undertake jointly to extend financial assistance to China for large public industrial undertakings and thereby limit or end the old "spheres of influence" doctrine, which has tended to violate the spirit of the open door. The formation of this consortium may be said to have paved the way for the larger agreements that may be reached at the coming Washington conference, in which China will participate as an independent country.

Owing to China's fear that the consortium is merely some new scheme for parceling out her territory among foreign nations, certain difficulties have arisen to prevent the smooth working of the arrangement. It is a safe assumption that efforts will be made to iron out misunderstandings in this connection.

Underlying all the problems of the Pacific is the fundamental question whether China shall be allowed to develop a democratic form of Government, under the complete sovereignty of her own people. If China is allowed to grow along these lines, it is held, there will never be a yellow peril to Western civilization. If, on the other hand, China should be militarized and her resources consolidated into one great empire of the yellow races, Occidentals say, a "rising tide of color" might threaten to engulf the world.

This could only happen if the militaristic party in Japan should fasten its doctrines permanently on that country and the other countries of the Asiatic mainland. Since the downfall of Germany and Russia, Japan remains as the only strong representative of the autocratic form of government. The most hopeful factor in the whole situation is the recent development in Japan of a liberal party which is opposed to the ambitious schemes of the militarists. The leaders of the liberal party have taken to heart the lesson taught by the German and Russian collapse. Given time, it is believed that they will overrule the junker element, whose intrigues are constantly involving Japan in difficulties

BIG VOTE EXPECTED IN CONSTITUTION ELECTION

Supporters of Proposal for State Convention Have Every County Organized for Balloting Aug. 2.

Text of Proposed Amendment Enabling Women to Hold Office

THE following is the text of Amendment No. 1, to be voted on in the election Aug. 2, which is the "proposed constitutional amendment enabling women to hold any office in this State:

"No person shall be disqualified from holding any office in this State on account of sex, and those provisions in the Constitution of Missouri requiring that persons, to be eligible for certain offices, must have been qualified voters for a certain number of years, shall not apply to women until after the Nineteenth Amendment to the Constitution of the United States shall have been in effect an equivalent number of years."

With the special election at which will be decided the question "Shall there be a convention to revise and amend the Constitution?" only two weeks away, the forces that are working for this cause have perfected their working plans throughout the State, and will endeavor to get out a heavy vote Tuesday, Aug. 2.

While there are many organizations that through their membership have for years urged the necessity of a revision of the 46-year-old organic law, the real direction of the present campaign is in the hands of the New Constitution Association of Missouri, with headquarters in the Federal Reserve Bank Building. This body, which is state-wide and nonpartisan in its membership, has obtained the co-operation of men and women in every county in the State, and, according to reports which have reached Xenophon P. Wilfley, the acting chairman of the Executive Committee, each of these counties has been thoroughly organized along the lines usually followed by the political parties.

In many of the principal cities of the State, such as Kansas City, St. Joseph, Hannibal, Joplin, Springfield, Mexico, Columbia, Moberly, Fayette, Boonville and others, the commercial organizations have taken active charge of the campaign. These organizations have appointed committees to act in the direct organization of workers in the county of which their town is the center of population. The State Bankers' Association also has appointed a special representative for each county, and virtually all the women's organizations of the State are on record in support of the movement.

The chief argument being used by the New Constitution Association this year is not the necessity of a revision of the Constitution, that matter having been settled at the election last fall through the adoption of Amendment No. 15 by a majority of more than 76,000, but the necessity of voting on the question at stake on Aug. 2 next. It is pointed out that this is the vital step in the many to be taken before a new Constitution can be realized. If this election is won, the remaining steps go forward of their own momentum, the machinery having been provided in Amendment No. 15.

If the election should be lost, the matter would not be submitted to the people again for another 20 years, that being the time specified through the constitutional amendment adopted last fall.

"Chimes" Week's Attraction at Summer Opera | Stage News Gossip Gathered on New York Rialto | New Screen Bills

Moulan Will Repeat His Character Role of the 1919 Season

Best Known of Season's List of Operas Will Be Performed This Week—"Sari" Final Bill Next Week.

MOST familiar of the eight works chosen for this year's municipal opera season is "Chimes of Normandy," in which the Forest Park singers will be heard Tuesday night and the five nights following. Ths will be the seventh week of the seson.

The "Chimes," equally with Balfe's "Bohemian Girl," was an annual attraction of Uhrig's Cave, the St. Louis open-air opera enterprise of 25 years ago. It has been sung by schools and amateur organizations here probably more than any other work. Two years ago it was one of the operas of the first municipal opera season.

In the 1919 production of the "Chimes" on the Municipal Theater stage, Frank Moulan appeared in the role of Gaspard, the miser. He will have the same part this week. This is not a comedy role, such as Moulan has had in the productions thus far this season, but a character part.

"Chimes of Normandy" was produced at the Folies Dramatique, Paris, in 1877, when the composer, Robert Jean Planquette, was 27 years old. At first the work was a failure, but later it became popular, the original company playing at the Folies Dramatique for 400 successive nights. So far as has been recorded, the opera has had over 6000 performances.

The first act takes place in an old Norman village during the progress of a fair. Henri, the Marquis of Valleroi, long an exile, returns to the village. In the first scene a number of village gossips are retailing scandals about Serpolette, who arrives in time to vindicate herself and retaliate upon the gossips.

Gaspard, the miser, has a plan for marrying his niece, Germaine, to the Sheriff, but she objects, saying that if she marries at all she must marry Grenicheux, a young villager who has saved her life. To escape this marriage, which neither of them desires, Germaine and Grenicheux become the servants of the Marquis, and are joined by Serpolette.

In the second act, investigation is made of the supposed presence of ghosts in the castle of Villeroi. The ghost proves to be Gaspard, who has concealed his treasures in the castle. When the miser is discovered, he becomes insane through the fear of losing his hoard.

In the last act the castle is restored to its old splendor and the Marquis takes possession as master. He give a fete and the villagers are invited, the crazy Gaspard being among them. Serpolette appears as a grand lady, with Grenicheux as her factotum, some papers found in the castle indicating that she is the lost heiress. After a love scene between Henri and Germaine, Gaspard, who has recovered his reason, discloses that Germaine, and not Serpolette, is the rightful heiress and the true claimant to the title of Marchioness. Gaspard's treasure is restored to its rightful owner. Germaine comes to her rights and is betrothed to Henri, and Serpolette remains with her as her friend.

The music of the opera is enjoyable throughout. Its most familiar numbers are Serpolette's rondo, "In My Mysterious History;" a fantasy, "Go, Little Sailor;" the legend of the chimes, "Alas, We Have Lost Excellent Masters;" Henri's grand aria, "I Have Thrice Made the Tour of the World," and his couplets, "Under the Armor From Top to Toe;" Serpolette's sprightly aria, "Viscountess and Marchioness;" the chorus with the chimes, a most graceful and interesting number closing the second act; and in the last act, Gaspard's song, "We Were Full Five Hundred Rogues;" Serpolette's rondo, "The Apple's a Fruit Full of Vigor," and Henri's romance, "A Servant, What Matter to Me."

The cast of characters is:

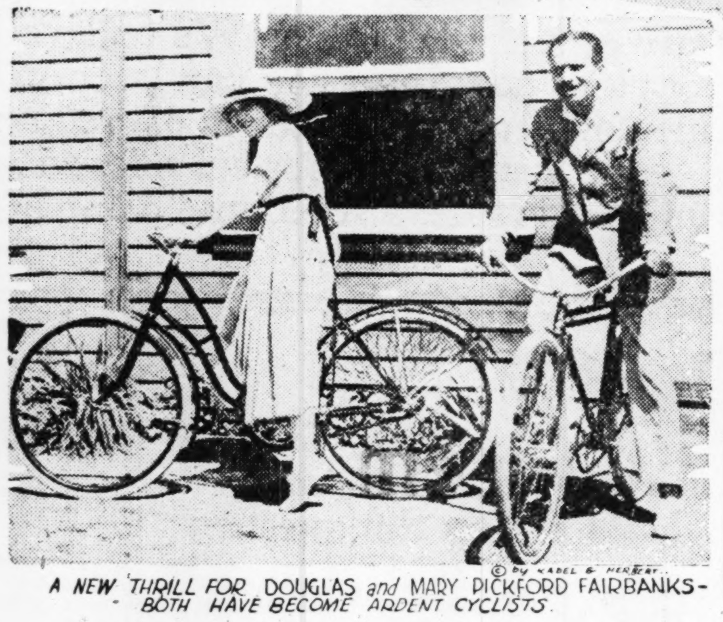
Serpolette, the good-for-nothing—	Ann Bussert
Germaine, the lost Marchioness—	Rhoda Nickells
Gertrude	Elva Magnus
Jeanne	Cora Stephens
Manette	Alma Menzes
Suzanne	Madelyn Young
Henri, Marquis of Corneville—	James Stevens
Jean Grenicheux, a fisherman—	J. Humbird Duffy
Gaspard, a miser	Frank Moulan
	Frank Moulan
The Bailli	Charles Galagher
Notary	Harry Hermsen

The final performance of the Gilber & Sullivan "Pirates of Penzance" will be given tonight. The eighth and closing week of the season is to begin Tuesday night, July 26, with Emmerich Kalman's gypsy love operatta, "Sari."

HAROLD LLOYD and MILDRED DAVIS in "AMONG THOSE PRESENT"

Signs of the times, as noticed by Wid's Daily, indicate that no more than 550 full-length photoplays will be produced in the next 12 months, as against more than 700 last year.

Which means that part of the "Fewer and Better Pictures" slogan is to be carried out, anyhow. Even if the "better" pictures remain unproduced, there'll be fewer bad ones to sit through.



A NEW THRILL FOR DOUGLAS and MARY PICKFORD FAIRBANKS—BOTH HAVE BECOME ARDENT CYCLISTS.

New Version of "Scandals" Snappy and Amusing

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, July 16.

EVERY aid to the earnest student of the chorus girl is given by George White's "Scandals," which offers a large variety of the species at the Liberty Theater. This attraction opened Monday night. Those who might be a bit shocked at discovery here to be a "choruspondent" are later reassured by that innocent child, Ann Pennington, that she is just a baa-aby. Again she is glimpsed at "The School for Scandal," learning the ways that are Broadway's.

It is inevitable that one of the episodes should suggest a current divorce suit. In fact, a great deal of the show is suggestive and some of it vulgar. But it is up to the minute and for the most part lively and entertaining, with flashes of humor in the dialogue written by Arthur Baer.

With her dimpled knees in evidence, little Miss Pennington is borne into view upon a huge tambourine and from that moment she danced often and well. She leads the chorus girls in a picturesque South Sea Island dance that has novelty in its favor. A Panama Canal scene fills the stage and the eye, and the production gains further effectiveness by resplendent costumes.

The best of George Gershwin's music is a song called "Drifting," and it is sung so well by a slender tenor named Floyd Garrett that even the robust outbursts of Victoria Herbert cannot destroy its charm. George White dances so cleverly that his portion of the evening's entertainment is all too short. Then there is Charles King to hearten the girls and struggle manfully with two or three songs that don't sound quite right. Aunt Gemima is a mountain of good nature and catches the swing of her ragtime songs inimitably, though it is not always possible to catch what she is singing about.

That acrobatic comedian, Lester Allen, manages by means of his feet to be the funniest man in the show, and he is at his best in a "Samson and Delilah" burlesque.

One of the greatest aids to the general effect of the revue is the shortness and snappiness of the scenes. They change quickly, have variety and give that same encouraging feeling the spectator has at a vaudeville entertainment. Whenever a number comes along for which he does not care particularly, he always has a springing hope that the next one will be more to his taste. And not infrequently it is.

It is the first new show seen on Broadway in a month.

Few Shows to Tour

David Belasco is sending out two companies next season and will make but one production for the road which will ultimately be seen in New York. Last year Mr. Belasco sent out eight companies. A. H. Woods some time ago announced that he would make eight productions this year as compared with the twenty-eight companies he had

FRANK MOULAN as GASPARD in "CHIMES OF NORMANDY."

"Luck Makes More Stars in Pictures Than Ability"

Naomi Childers Gives Some Rather Startling Inside Secrets of the Game.

By Marguerite Martyn.

WATCHING an actress play a part in the spotlight and talking to her at the same time, back in the darkened theater, was an experience somewhat different from other interviews with actresses. But an interview with Naomi Childers was bound to be different from other interviews with successful actresses, anyway. As a rule, skilled and habituated to the art of impersonation, they merely throw themselves into another role, rarely their own, for the newspaper audience. But Naomi, known to us since childhood, through all her early efforts and not a little success as an amateur actress here in St. Louis, scarcely could "upstage it," and catching her in the role of one of her own audience, and critical of herself on the stage, was to catch her doubly off guard. The film she was looking at was "Courage," in which she had the chief feminine role.

"I like to watch this piece because this director gave me the opportunity to work out each bit in my own way," she remarked. "Other pictures I've made I cannot endure to watch, where I feel I've been over-directed, that is, where the director has had me do things I wouldn't have done had I had my own way."

"You see I do not use a bit of makeup to make me seem matronly in this mother part, except that black band round my throat, and I leave it off toward the end," was another remark. "Yet, do I not look matronly? That is because I make myself feel matronly throughout the play. Nazimova says she makes herself look tall that same way."

"There, I like that bit"—(where the mother is embracing her son). "There is feeling in that bit, isn't there?"

"Now, I felt that"—(at the point where the son suspects his mother of having borne him illegitimately)—"I felt that bit of emotion, but it doesn't get across"—shaking her head in distress. "It is too repressed. Too refined. I should have exaggerated that emotion in the acting."

"Isn't that a lovely dress? That pose is full of drama. Clothes have such a lot to do with the way one feels. Unless I am dressed exactly for the part I cannot feel it.

"That's a good long shot. Isn't that a wonderful great spacious effect?"

"Poor dear!"—(referring to the man who plays the husband). "I had to do all the warming up to him. I could have done better with another man."

"He walks like a tough"—alluding to still another actor playing the part of the aristocratic parent who objected to his daughter's marriage with the boy of unknown parentage. "I was always amused at his walk."

"Oh, well, I am going to do much better in my next piece," she sighed as we turned to the manager's office for a little chat, uninterrupted, if possible.

There was a hint in her mood that, despite her gay little speech of greeting from the stage in the role of triumphal arrival in stardom since she left St. Louis ten years ago at the age of 16 with great hopes and expectations behind as well as before her; despite the fact that maturity has amply fulfilled her promise of beauty, a little added flesh having rounded out her figure without destroying its svelt sinuousness and without detracting, either, from her classic cast of features; despite evident prosperity betokened by the beautiful gown of blueish lavendar tulle and a dream of a plumed hat and an enormous solitaire diamond bespeaking, probably, the prosperity of her recently acquired husband; despite all these tokens of success, when she became confidential, there was, a hint of discontent in her attitude, which, as she remarked probably only bespoke the artist.

"It would be fatal to be contented, wouldn't it?"

"No, I haven't progressed as far

POLA NEGRI as THE FICKLE CARMEN in "GYPSY BLOOD."

"Gypsy Blood," "Love," "Love Madness," in Mid-July Film List

"Moonlight and Honeysuckle" Has a Milder Sound Than Some of the Other Picture Titles for This Week.

POLA NEGRI, whose portrayal of the character of Mme. Dubarry was the feature of the film, "Passion," recently shown here, is the star of "Gypsy Blood," this week's bill at the New Grand Central, which is also at the West End Lyric and Lyric Skydome today and through Tuesday.

"Gypsy Blood" is an adaptation from Prosper Merimee's original French story of "Carmen," rather than from the operatic or dramatic version of that famous romance. The producer's announcement says it was "filmed abroad by Ernst Lubitch, who directed 'Passion,'" and that many of the players in "Passion" also appear in "Gypsy Blood." Harry Liedtke, who had the role of Armand, Dubarry's early suitor, in "Passion," has the role of Don Jose, the Spanish dragoon who is captivated by the gypsy Carmen. There are massed scenes, in which large numbers of people appear. The scenes of the story, as of the "Carmen" story, are old Seville and the no-man's land of the smugglers in the Pyrenees.

FIRST RUNS ON VIEW.

New Grand Central and West End Lyric—Pola Negri in "Gypsy Blood."

King's—Mary Miles Minter in "Moonlight and Honeysuckle."

Missouri—Harold Lloyd in "Among Those Present" and "Proxies."

Capitol—Louise Glaum in "Love."

"Moonlight and Honeysuckle," featuring Mary Miles Minter, is the bill at the King's airdome for the first part of the week. The story in the stage version of which Ruth Chatterton appeared, is that of an Arizona ranch girl who goes to Washington after the appointment of her father as United States Senator, and who soon has two Washington suitors, besides one who followed her from the Southwest. The girl's method of reaching and announcing her choice is the theme of the principal comedy situation.

The Missouri Theater is offering a double bill consisting of Harold Lloyd's three-reel comedy, "Among Those Present," and "Proxies," a crook drama by Frank R. Adams, author of "The Time, the Place and the Girl," and of other musical comedies. Norman Kerry appears in the role of the hero, a former convict who has reformed.

"Love," a production featuring Louise Glaum, James Kirkwood, Joseph Kilgour and Laura La Plante, will be at the Capitol Theater this week, and will be at the West End Lyric and Lyric Skydome Wednesday, Thursday and Friday. The story is that of the sacrifice made by an elder sister for a younger one. The scenario was by Louis Joseph Vance, noted novelist.

Louise Glaum is also the star of "Love Madness," this week's bill at the Strand Theater. She appears in the role of a wife whose husband has been ensnared by another woman, and who has been convicted of a crime he did not commit, and condemned to death.

The downtown Central Theater shows "Courage," in which Naomi Childers, St. Louis screen actress, is featured.

The Pershing and the Shenandoah, today and tomorrow, have Constance Binney in "Such a Little Queen," and the Grand-Florissant Airdome, for the same night, has Ethel Clayton in "Sham." Bills today are: Arco and Lafayette, Edith Roberts in "The Fire Cat;" Gravois, Ben Turpin in "A Small Town Idol."

Through an error in advance press matter supplied by the Paramount company, the Post-Dispatch stated last Sunday that May McAvoy, who was to appear at the Missouri Theater in "A Private Scandal," was "one of the younger of the Paramount stars." Miss McAvoy appears only in films made for the Realart Pictures Corporation and "A Private Scandal" is a Realart film, which was released to a Paramount house for the week.

POLA NEGRI as HERSELF.

MISS NEGRI, because of her success in the German film, "Passion," and the more recent "Gypsy Blood," is one of the most interesting figures in the moving picture world. Though she has been featured as a Polish woman, she is really Pauline Schwartz, of Germany, whose name was Italianized when the film was released for the United States, Pola Negri being the Italian form of Pauline Schwartz, the anglicized form of both being Pauline Black. It was very fine acting that she did as Du Barry in "Passion" in which she was directed by Ernst Lubitsch, who also directed her in her part of Carmen in "Gypsy Blood." Another very superior bit of picture making by Lubitsch was "Deception," the story of Henry VIII and Anne Boleyn, which was seen in St. Louis recently.

What They Are Doing in the Movie Studios

THE United Artists Corporation is preparing a broadside of ambitious pictures for early fall release, namely "The Three Musketeers," with Douglas Fairbanks; "Little Lord Fauntleroy," with Mary Pickford as both the little Lord and his mother, and "Disraeli," with George Arliss. All three are nearing completion, it is said. For the last named Arliss has obtained the services of several who appeared in the stage production with him, especially Mrs. Arliss as Lady Beaconsfield, Margaret Dale as Mrs. Travers and Henry Carvill as the Duke of Glastonbury.

Rudolph Valentino, the Julio of "The Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse" and the Charles Grandet of "The Conquering Power," has gone to the Paramount camp, having begun work last week at the Lasky studio in the title role of "The Sheik," adapted from a novel by S. M. Hull.

Forthcoming productions announced by the W. W. Hodkinson Corporation are:

"A Certain Rich Man," a Benjamin B. Hampton picture; "The Man of the Forest," and "The Mysterious Rider," Zane Grey pictures; "The Light in the Clearing," from the Dial Film Co.; "The Face of the World," an Irvin V. Willat production; "Handle With Care," a Rockett production; "The Journey's End," and "Jane Eyre," produced by Hugo

Odd Facts About Picture Players and Films

THE smallest actress of the movies is Marguerite Clark, who is two inches less than five feet tall, and weighs but 90 pounds. Shadowland's tallest actress is Blanche Payson, who towers up to 6 feet 3 inches, and weighs 225 pounds. Alma Rubens' real name is Miriam Battista, and she was born in San Francisco. Her screen career dates back to the old Triangle days. She recently appeared in a very famous film in which mother love was the predominating theme. She weighs 130 pounds, has black hair and dark eyes, and is seven inches more than five feet in height.

Irene Rich did not begin her film career until after she was the mother of two children.

Kathlyn Williams was born in Butte, Mont., 37 years ago. She has blond hair and blue-gray eyes, is 5 feet 5 inches tall, and weighs 138 pounds.

She lives with her husband, Charles Eyton, in Los Angeles, Cal.

The first fairy story on the screen was "Jack and the Bean Stalk," which was made by the old Edison Company years ago.

As most producers do not squander money if they can help it, most auto thrillers are faked. When the high-powered auto containing the villain and the kidnaped heroine reaches the edge of the cliff both the auto and the camera stop. A wooden replica of the auto containing dummy figures replaces the real car and it is then shoved over the cliff. The camera man takes a picture of the fall and crash and then stops his camera long enough so that the actors can crawl under the wreckage, thus completing the illusion.

Often when a scene calls for a particularly dangerous piece of work a professional in that particular line is called upon to perform the stunt in place of the actor. This is called "doubling." Many screen stars, however, refuse to have anyone double for them regardless of the risk. Douglas Fairbanks is one of them.

The most successful submarine pictures were made by the Williamson brothers. A specially constructed boat was used from which a long steel tube descended into the water. At the end of the tube was a chamber of steel and glass, where the camera operator worked. The necessary light was obtained by lowering a number of very powerful electric mercury lamps.

Movie actresses are not picked because of the coloring of face and hair. The director selects types because of the form of their faces. Blondes are preferred because blond hair photographs dark, which contrasts well with their fair complexions.

Producers use inclosed stages and artificial light more often than open sets and natural light because the sun is continually changing its position and its light, therefore, is ever shining on a given object from a different angle, and as many of the sets are built of two sides only, it is practically impossible to work a full day on an outside set. In the studio, with the use of arc and spot lights, a company can work all day long and into the night, if necessary, without any variation in the lighting. When exterior scenes are filmed, outdoor locations are used because the natural change of light is then only as it should be. Uniform lighting is one of the most essential features of good photography in interior scenes.

A "dupe print" is generally composed of many pieces taken from old films and assembled to create the impression that it is a new picture. This practice is now almost a thing of the past.

A "still" is a photograph of a scene in a motion picture made with an ordinary camera for publicity purposes. It is called a "still" because, as in ordinary photography, the actors must keep still while it is being taken.

Q. What is the outstanding difference in the method of photographing ordinary motion pictures and animated cartoons?

In ordinary movie photography the camera is mounted on a tripod and can be swung on a horizontal axis in a semicircle. In photographing animated cartoons the camera is fastened above a table on a rigid frame with the lens pointing down. The drawings are placed under the lens.

Q. Who made the first motion pictures with a camera?

Edward Muybridge made the first motion pictures in California. As there were at that time no cameras capable of taking a succession of pictures in rapid order, he used 24 different cameras. These cameras were all set up in a row at equal distances apart. Thus a series of 24 pictures were made of a running horse. The horse, himself, actually took the pictures, as a string from each shutter of each lens was stretched across the track, so that the horse would break the string and automatically take the picture as he passed in front of the lens. To produce movies in this way now would require a row of 16,000 cameras.

For gentle breezes electric fans are used, while for strong winds motors are used with airplane propellers attached. Where the wind is but a gentle zephyr trees are agitated by means of a black string attached to them and pulled by a studio attendant out of range of the camera.

Figures of most of the film organizations dispel the general belief that stars absorb most of the revenues. Last year it cost one of the large companies $13,000,000 in all its departments and the stars received just 4 per cent of this, about $500,000. More than twice as much was paid for positive films as for stars' salaries.

On the stage rouge is usually used to accentuate facial beauty; in the films it is used to make the face appear thinner, to reduce the size of a double chin or to make protruding eyes appear deep set. More care must be taken in applying makeup for the pictures. The movie star, by means of the camera and screen, is brought close to his audience. Films cannot be retouched. Rouge is used to produce the effect of shadows because red photographs purple.

(Copyright, 1921, Thompson Feature Service).

Because of their success in recent productions Miss Agnes Ayres and Jack Holt have been signed as stars by Lasky. Who will replace Miss Ayres as C. B. de Mille's leading woman is not yet decided.

Waldemar Young, who wrote the scenario for "Experience," which was recently completed at the Paramount Eastern studio, has started work on the script for Thomas Meighan's next picture, "A Prince There Was," George M. Cohan's stage success.

Stage appearances are now popular with film celebrities on the West Coast. Among those rehearsing a new play by Victor Mapes for presentation at the Little Theater are Neely Edwards, Russell Simpson, Miss Kathleen Kirkham, Lincoln Stedman and Miss Olga Gray.

last season. Mr. Woods has recently limited that number to six. With the exception of "The O'Brien Girl" all the Cohan companies which were sure of a certain degree of success on the road have of course been withdrawn.

This has naturally suggested the question "Where will the cities outside New York get their amusements next year?" Main street will of course have to be satisfied with moving pictures. But how about the larger cities with a population of two or three hundred thousand? What will they do for their theatrical supply during the coming season?

Slowly echo is answering into the ears of the producing manager the one possible conclusion. They will have to come to New York for their theater going.

Farrar's Gray Wig

It did not seem possible that it could be Geraldine Farrar. Was she not to spend the summer in Holland and make the acquaintance of her husband Lou Tellegen's family? Did she not intend to sail so soon as her concert tour was at an end in order that he might be back to prepare for the production of Bataille's "Don Juan" at the Garrick Theater in August? But it certainly seemed like Miss Farrar with the irrestible smile and the flashing teeth. But how about the gray locks? This lovely presentment of the popular soprano undeniably had gray hair.

Yet as she smiled from the motor it was plainly Miss Farrar, gray hair or not. The locks were explained by the fact that gray wigs are just now the mode in Paris. Miss Farrar would be anything in the world but not unfashionable. So she is wearing a gray wig on occasions, even at the danger of seeming older than she is. But to be the last word of fashion the soprano would take even that risk. She had to give up her trip to Europe on account of the poor health of her mother.

Rehearsals De Luxe

Oliver Morosco sent the mechanical staff of the Morosco Theater to his summer home at Great Neck, L. I., last week to construct an outdoor stage on which he plans to conduct summer rehearsals of his two forthcoming musical productions, "Love time" and "Poor Letty." The first is scheduled to open on Aug. 23 and the latter on Sept. 15.

The Great Duse

A New York manager sends this from Milan:

"Saw the great Duse here last night in 'The Closed Door,' by Praga. White-haired and no longer young, she held a great audience spellbound. Only Julia Marlowe in our country suggests this superb quality of perfect combination of emotion and technic. How magnificent she is even when she sits silent. One hundred lire ($4.50) a seat!"

"Lightnin's" Popularity

More than 1,500,000 persons have seen "Lightnin" at the Gaiety, and 200,000 have sat and stood for "The First Year" at the Little Theater, according to box office counts.

New Belasco Play

David Belasco is the co-author, with William J. Hurlbut, of a play entitled "Timothy," which George Grossmith will present at the Shaftsbury Theater in London next October. Cyril Maude will have the principal part. According to report, Mr. Grossmith originally sought the English rights to "The Music Master" for Mr. Maude, but Mr. Belasco replied that eventually David Warfield would take that play abroad, and he sent along the manuscript of "Timothy" instead. It will be the first play of which Mr. Belasco is an author to open outside the United States.

Back to Stage

Bessie Barriscale will desert the films next season and appear here in a comedy by Howard Hickman, entitled, "The Skirt," which Richard Herndon is producing.

Eltinge Out of Luck

THE comparatively infrequent appearance of Julian Eltinge in New York and the other large cities is due, if one may believe an authority on the subject, to the change of fashions in the female impersonator. This style of comedian must, according to a vaudeville expert, keep step with the times in a surprisingly accurate fashion.

"The type of woman that Eltinge used to represent in his sketches," this booking agent said, "is no longer popular. The large, slowly moving stage beauty is as little in demand now in musical comedy as she is in vaudeville. Quite the opposite type is sought by the stage directors. The little, animated, fiery person with jazz in every gesture and expression is the kind of feminine aid that is now sought out. Nobody looks at the big girls any more. The most successful impersonators of the day therefore are the wise boys that copy and are able to copy—for it requires special physical qualifications—the girls that the public is now interested in. This sort of comedy was out of the question for Eltinge, so when he was taken ill in the West theatergoers were suddenly reminded that it had been some time since he had been in any of the large Eastern cities."

Luck of Actresses

The leading actress in a successful musical show is now receiving a weekly salary of $1750. There is no question as to her earning it. The production is bringing its managers a profit of $10,000 a week, so there has been no expression of dissatisfaction at the amount paid to her. But it is large for a young woman whose New York experience covers barely six years.

Another actress from a musical play which has just closed its run intends after a while to prepare for the operatic stage. But she will sing a few years more in operetta. "For by that time," she naively explained the other day, "if my salary continues what it is now at the least I will have an income of $5000 a year from my investments. Then I will be able to take my time in studying." Such is the rate of compensation for the youthful favorites nowadays, especially in the musical plays.

But it must be borne in mind that, large as is this compensation, there are few young women who are able to command it. The reverse side of this picture would show the office of the theatrical agents crowded with aspirants who think they are just as pretty, just as graceful and just as talented as their so much more fortunate sisters. But it is a long, long road until they get into the class just mentioned here.

Funeral For Mrs. Margaret Pauly.

Funeral services for Mrs. Margaret Pauly, 82 years old, widow of John Pauly, former alderman, who died suddenly at her home, 2246 South Grand avenue, Thursday night, after complaining of the heat, will be held at 8:30 o'clock tomorrow morning at Immaculate Conception Church, 1701 Longfellow boulevard. Six of her grandchildren will be pallbearers. Burial will be in Calvary.

Epsom Salts Like Lemonade

A few cents buys a handy package of "Epsonade Salts" which looks and acts exactly like epsom salts because it is real epsom salts combined with fruit derivative salts, giving it the taste of sparkling lemonade.

A tablespoonful in a glass of cold water whenever you feel bilious, headachy or constipated, will give you a splendid epsom salts physic without the awful taste and nausea. "Epsonade Salts" is the much talked of discovery of the American Epsom Association.

GOSLO

Sales Opportunity

Here is an immediate opportunity to earn from $1,000 to $5,000 per month in a legitimate selling field.

We are ready to market the GoSlo Safety Signal, a rear end automatic safety device which every automobile owner needs and ultimately will buy.

We have untouched territory open for men who can produce results. Such men should own an automobile and be able to finance themselves for a short period. Men who know the accessory, hardware and garage field would be especially well qualified. We don't want men who expect to earn less than $1,000 to $5,000 per month.

The men who get territory must convince us of their responsibility and capability.

Important Notice!

We regret to announce the postponement of Exhibition Chess Games to be played in St. Louis by

Samuel Rzeschewski
The Chess Marvel

We have just received a telegram from Mr. Charles Azenberg, manager for the young chess champion, as follows:

> Los Angeles, Cal.
> "Regret, owing indisposition, boy chess marvel will be unable to reach your city for Monday next. Will wire you during week other dates for exhibition."
> Charles Azenberg

In the Meantime We Are Making Preparations for This Most Interesting Engagement

We have received hundreds of letters from chess experts stating their desire to be contestants on one of the two days.

A committee is now making a selection of these twenty-four players and the names will be announced very shortly, together with the exact dates upon which the young chess marvel will appear at our store.

This undoubtedly will be one of the most interesting contests witnessed in our city, and everybody in St. Louis who desires to witness the games will be welcome.

There will be no charges for admission either to spectators or to contestants.

KEYS TAKEN FROM 10 HOTELS FOUND UPON PRISONERS

Ralph M. Davis, Arrested Here, and Wife, Held in Kansas City, Had Collection From Various Towns.

Keys belonging to 10 hotels in five cities were taken from Ralph Milton Davis, arrested here Friday morning, and his wife, Mrs. Henrietta Davis, who was arrested in Kansas City Friday night. Keys stolen from four St. Louis hotels were found in Davis' pockets, and keys belonging to six hotels in Kansas City, Des Moines, Salt Lake City and Omaha were found in Mrs. Davis' effects.

As has been stated, jewelry and clothing valued at $2000, which had been stolen from the room at Hotel Statler of Miss Naomi Childers, motion picture actress, were recovered in a room occupied by Davis at the Maryland Hotel. Clothing, jewelry and silverware, valued at about $2000 and believed to have been stolen were found in the room of Mrs. Davis at the Antoinette Hotel, Kansas City.

Identified as Ex-Convict.

Davis was identified by police records as Percy L. Grey, with a record of two terms in Massachusetts reformatories, four years in the Missouri penitentiary for grand larceny, and six months in the St. Louis workhouse for theft of a woman's purse here in 1912. He was indicted Friday on a charge of larceny in connection with the theft of Miss Childers' property.

A pair of handcuffs and a gold badge inscribed, "Lieutenant, American Detective League, Auxiliary to the United States Department of Justice," was found in the room of his wife in Kansas City. This caused the police to believe that Davis posed as a detective while robbing hotel rooms about the country.

Nearly 200 letters written by him to his wife also were found. One of these, written on stationery of Hotel Statler, on July 14, said that he was watching a room occupied by a woman in the hotel, but that the occupant did not give him much opportunity to enter. This is presumed to refer to Miss Childers' room.

Police Watch for Package.

In several other letters Davis complained that his wife had not sent keys for hotel rooms for which he had asked. The police were informed that Mrs. Davis had mailed a package to him at the Maryland Hotel and they are watching for its arrival.

Another letter said: "Things are breaking bad for me. They won't give me an even break by getting out of their rooms long enough for me to have a look around. I guess it is the hot weather."

In planning and preparing for this great project no effort or expense was spared and a total cash outlay of a half million dollars is involved.

The year 1921 is rewarding enterprise and daring. The institution with resources and foresight is in a position to obtain unheard-of advantages and thereby render an exceptional service to its patrons.

When the country was in the throes of the recent depression cash was at a premium, and leading furniture manufacturers anxious to immediately convert their stocks offered tremendous price concessions.

By an enormous cash expenditure we obtained these stocks at less than actual cost to manufacture, and as a result of our daring, based on confidence in the future, you can procure furniture of highest quality at way less than today's replacement value.

Do not confuse this with the ordinary "Clearing Sale," which usually includes a lot of odds and ends. Every piece and suite of Furniture offered here is new, fresh stock in every way up to our quality standards.

You have delayed buying, awaiting just such a sale. Here at last is your opportunity to obtain quality Furniture at less than replacement value, made possible by unprecedented conditions and our facility in turning them to your advantage.

"LUCK MAKES MORE STARS IN PICTURES THAN ABILITY"

as I hoped to when I left St. Louis. she said a little wistfully. "I realize that one of my shortcomings is oversensitiveness. I do not like to admit temperament. I hate temperament as an excuse. But I am sensitive to too many outside influences. I am hoping my new husband, who is very easy going and practical and workmanlike, will supplement or supply some of these attributes lacking in me."

"If you are not too sensitive to his domination, also," I was moved to suggest when she remarked that she had abandoned an opportunity to play in London in deference to her husband's interests requiring him to remain in New York.

She was married only about three weeks ago to Luther Anderson Reed, a playwright and scenario writer with at least one success, "Dear Me," to his credit and, according to his admiring wife, great prospects. Leaving him during the honeymoon to fill this engagement seems rather to contradict a susceptibility to outside influences, doesn't it? But we are not all able to fathom the really artistic temperament.

"I have a play in my head, too," confessed Naomi, "if I can only ever get down to writing it. It is called 'Anything But the Truth.' Do you not see possibilities in that title?"

It was her voice and elocution that we used to admire when she declaimed the classic lines of Iphigenia, Parthenia and Juliet.

"Have you entirely abandoned the spoken drama?" she was asked.

"I do not like to, but the pictures are full of temptations. The pay is so much higher and fame so much more easily attained and we all hope to get rich enough to do what we like some day. I had a part with H. B. Warner in 'Among Those Present,' and every time I came on the stage I received a bigger hand than the star himself. That was the first I realized how my fame had spread through the pictures.

"You spend six weeks on a picture and it is hard work for the time being, but you receive your money for it and are through with it, while in the legitimate, you go on playing the same part, monotonously for a year or more and do not receive so much money. Then, though you may work nine hours a day, you have your evenings free.

"There is a great element of chance, of luck, in getting into the movies. The luck and the chance have come to me, and I feel I would be foolish not to make the most of it. I see people, hundreds of men and women, with real ability trying, without success, to get on in pictures. Ability does not count for so much as on the stage. Much more often it is the chance, the luck of falling into the hands of a good director. Some of the most successful picture stars are crude, ignorant, unintelligent women who are entirely made by their directors.

"'If you are lucky'—I say to all who ask my advice about going into the pictures, but the chances are mostly against you, because the field is so overcrowded. The wealthiest people are going into the pictures as well as those who are willing to work for $5 a week. Hundreds and hundreds of them are hanging about the studios waiting for work. It is not altogether because the theatrical business is bad that so many are out of employment, but because there are so many more people in the business now than formerly, and so many more plays and pictures being produced than the public, however eager, is able to consume."

We were not uninterrupted in the manager's office and had finally to resort to an automobile for seclusion. The successful star is being fairly persecuted by adoring friends. Each one she greets with her well-known radiant smile, but—"I am being run ragged!"—she confessed behind her fan.

"My mother, who is so proud in showing me off to our old friends, cannot realize that talking to all these dear people is harder than the hardest day's work I ever did," she adds, "and our rooms at the Statler have been almost constantly filled. Talking to people absorbs my vitality more than any amount of work. I think it does any woman's if she'd only realize it. I can weep all day in an emotional role such as I have in 'Courage,' and it doesn't tire me so much as the sitting around in the studio talking to the other actors while waiting for my cue. I just must have quiet, for my work's sake, though it does isolate me from people whom I love."

WHAT THEY ARE DOING IN THE MOVIE STUDIOS

Ballin; "Rip Van Winkle," with Thomas Jefferson, a Ward Lascelle production; "The Foreigner," from Winnipeg Productions, Inc., and "With Flying Colors," with Irene Castle, a Hol-Tre production.

Will Rogers has completed his term with the Goldwyn company, it is reported, and will head his own organization for the production of two-reel comedies, thus reversing the order of stars whose ambition is to spread themselves quantitatively speaking, rather than concentrate on quality. Clarence G. Badger, who has directed the former Rogers pictures, will be associated with him, it is said.

Vera Gordon, the mother of "Humoresque," having wound up a vaudeville tour, is preparing to appear in another motion picture, as yet unnamed, to be presented by Harry Rapf.

"The Birthplace of Christianity," a seven-reel motion picture tour of the Holy Land, directed and titled by Thomas McVeigh, will be released soon, it is announced. Mr. McVeigh will manage its distribution from his office at 509 Fifth avenue.

The name of John Barrymore's next picture, which was directed by Marshall Neilan, has been changed from "The Lotus Eater" to "The Hidden Paradise."

Constance Talmadge has started work under the direction of John Emerson in the Emerson-Loos work, "Good for Nothing," and Norma will begin work next month in "Smilin' Through" under the direction of Herbert Brenon.

With the insertion of the titles by George Ade in Marshall Neilan's most ambitious production to date—"The Hidden Paradise"—this picture is now finished, according to announcement from the West Coast. "The Hidden Paradise," it is pointed out by the producers, offers one of the most notable aggregations of prominent stars. With John Barrymore in the title role, it marks the return of this noted stage star to the screen. Three generations are portrayed in the film by Mr. Barrymore, who is afforded the opportunity of presenting both the old man of 80 as well as the young idol of 25. In the supporting cast are six players who are stars in their own rights. They are Anna Q. Nilsson, who has been starred recently in independent productions; Wesley Barry, star of "Dinty"; Lucy Fox, Pathe star, borrowed through courtesy of Gilson Willett, and Colleen Moore. Another popular player in the cast is J. Barney Sherry, who has appeared in various recent Neilan pictures during the last year.

William Christy Cabanne's next production for R-C Pictures Corporation will be "The Barricade," the story of which was written by Dr. Daniel Carson Goodman, well-known photoplay author. Both are former St. Louisans.

What is expected by some to prove the novelty picture of the fall motion picture season was finished last week by Marshall Neilan. With the completion of "Bits of Life," details of which have been withheld by the producers during the production of the picture have just been announced by Mr. Neilan, who, by the way, makes his first appearance on the screen in this photoplay as an actor since "Daddy Long-Legs." One of the largest casts of prominent players ever assembled in a Neilan production is offered in this picture, including Wesley Barry, Lon Chaney, Noah Beery, Harriett Hammond, Rockliffe Fellows, James Bradbury, Fred Burton, Teddy Samson, Anny Mae Wong and many others of equal popularity among motion picture patrons. David Kesson is responsible for the exceptional effects in "Bits of Life."

According to the latest reports from the management at the Mack Sennett studios, there will be no shooting at the big Edendale plant during the months of July and August except such as may be required to finish "Molly O," and the two-reel Ben Turpin special now nearing their cutting stages, the former being directed by F. Richard Jones and the latter by Roy Del Ruth. With these finished and ready for release by Associated Producers, Studio Manager John A. Waldron says that a normal supply of Sennett product will be at the disposal of the country's exhibitors even though nothing more is made until September, which, he says, probably will be the case and the studio with regard to its picture-making activities will be closed.

EX-CONVICT, SOUGHT IN MURDER OF DETECTIVES, BROUGHT HERE

Oscar Olsen, former convict, who had been sought since last October in connection with the murder of City Detectives William A. Moller and Preston B. Anslyn in front of 3868 Juniata street the night of Oct. 16, and who was arrested in Pontiac, Ill., several days ago, suspected of being a box car thief, was brought to St. Louis yesterday.

He denied having anything to do with the killing of the detectives and said that he could prove by witnesses that he was employed in Chicago throughout last October.

Olsen had been sought because he had a shuffling gait, which corresponded with the description of one of two men who ran away from the scene of the murder. He told the police that he had acquired the gait in his work as a waiter. He jumped a bond here in February, 1920, when he was under a burglary charge. He told the police that he left St. Louis because he feared prosecution under the habitual criminal act, having been convicted of burglary on a former occasion.

Hot Summer Sun Trying On the Complexion

How to Protect Your Skin and Bring Roses to Your Cheeks

A Free Oatmeal Prescription Does Its Work Overnight. You Can Prepare It at Home.

New York—Exposure to sun, dust and wind has a very bad effect upon the skin and complexion. There is a way to overcome this. "It is my own discovery and takes just one night to get such marvelous results," says Mae Edna Wilder when her friends ask her about her wonderful complexion and the improved appearance of her hands and arms. "You can do the same thing if you follow my advice," she says. "I feel it my duty to tell every girl and woman what this wonderful prescription did for me. Just think of it. All this change in a single night. I never tire of telling others just what brought about such remarkable results. Here is the identical formula that removed every defect from my face, neck, hands and arms. Until you try it you form no idea of the marvelous change it will make in just one application. The prescription, which you can prepare at your own home, is as follows:

"Go to any grocery store and get ten cents' worth of ordinary oatmeal, and from any department or drug store a bottle of Derwillo. Prepare the oatmeal as directed in every package of Derwillo. Before applying Derwillo cleanse the skin thoroughly with a good cleansing cream. (Liska cold cream I have found to be the best). The first application will astonish you. It makes the skin appear transparent smooth and velvety. I especially recommend this method for dark, sallow skin, shiny nose, freckles, tan, sun spots, coarse pores, rough skin, ruddiness, wrinkles and, in fact, every blemish the face, hands and arms are heir to. If your neck or chest is discolored from exposure apply this combination there and the objectionable defect will disappear as if by magic. It is absolutely harmless and will not produce or stimulate a growth of hair. Since short sleeves are in vogue it is necessary to have beautiful hands and arms, and no matter how rough and ungainly the hands and arms or what abuses they have had through hard work and exposure to sun and wind, this combination will work a wonderful transformation. Thousands who are using it report the same results I have had."

Miss O. C. says: "My complexion was poor and my skin rough. My neck, chest, hands and arms were dark from exposure. The very first application of this wonderful Derwillo-oatmeal combination convinced me that my poor complexion and skin blemishes would soon be a thing of the past. In a few weeks all these unsightly defects had entirely disappeared, and I shall always use it to keep my complexion at its best all the time. I have recommended it to my girl friends and they are just as enthusiastic over it as I am. We all use it before going to the theater, dances or parties and it's wonderful what a difference it makes in our appearance."

Mrs. G. V. writes: "Oatmeal and Derwillo have worked miracles with my complexion. I had many despised wrinkles and a sallow, rough skin. My hands and arms were covered with freckles. After eight weeks' use of Mae Edna Wilder's wonderful complexion prescription these objectionable defects have entirely vanished. I look ten years younger, and advise every girl and woman to try it and feel confident after one or two applications they will use it continually and be just as favorably impressed with it as I am. I recommend it to all of my friends."

NOTE—To get the best effect be sure to follow the complete directions contained in every package of Derwillo, and it is so simple that anyone can use it, and so inexpensive that any girl or woman can afford it. Department stores and druggists guarantee that there will be a noticeable improvement after the first application or they will refund the money. It is sold in this city at all toilet counters under a money refund guarantee, including Wolff-Wilson, Judge & Dolph, Johnson Bros. and The Enderle Drug Co.

Mother! look at Child's tongue

Give "California Syrup of Figs" only—Say "California"

Hurry, mother! A teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs" today may prevent a sick child tomorrow. If your child is constipated, bilious, feverish, fretful, has a cold, colic, or if stomach is sour, tongue coated, breath bad, remember a good "physio-laxative" is often all that is necessary.

Children dearly love the delicious, "fruity" taste of genuine "California Syrup of Figs" which has directions for babies and children of all ages printed on the bottle. Beware of counterfeits. Mother, you must say "California." If you don't say "California" you may get an imitation fig syrup.

This Fire-Fighter Writes This

"I have used several packages of Cadomene tablets and found them very beneficial, and have recommended them to several members of th fire department, who also speak well of the results. Most respectfully, Louis J. Eagle, Fire Marshal, Lansdowne, Pa."

Cadomene should be taken by any one who has symptoms of impoverished blood and weak nerves, like the following: Nervousness, sleeplessness, irritability, weakness, nervous indigestion, headache, backache, trembling at slightest mental excitement or physical exertion, cold extremities, uncalled-for worry or fear, lack of energy and "high spirits."

Cadomene supplies iron and phosphorous with other tonics that build up blood and Nerve Force. Take them and see how quickly they bring astonishing benefit to your poor "frazzled" nervous system. All good druggists sell them.

$1 SAVINGS ACCOUNTS TO BE GIVEN AWAY

Christy Mathewson Sends Autographed Baseballs to Aid Tuberculosis Benefit.

Several of the St. Louis banks have donated savings accounts to the Tuberculosis Society of St. Louis to be given away as presents to purchasers of souvenir score cards at the tuberculosis baseball game at Sportsman's Park, July 27. These accounts are for $1 each. They are among the many gifts which firms of St. Louis have donated to help make the Tuberculosis Society's annual benefit a success.

Another interesting donation received yesterday is a set of official baseballs autographed by the famous pitcher, Christy Mathewson, who is under treatment for tuberculosis at a sanatorium in Saranac, N. Y. "Matty," as he is known in baseball, has written a cordial letter to the Tuberculosis Society, stating his desire to help swell the fund for fighting tuberculosis in St. Louis.

Baseballs to Be Auctioned.

These baseballs will be auctioned off at the game, probably at the close of the army-navy championship match and just before the game between the Cardinals and Philadelphia is called. Mathewson, Manager Branch Rickey of the Cardinals and Manager Tyrus Cobb of Detroit were officers in the gas and flame division of the army in France.

Members of the Tuberculosis Society were much gratified last week to get volunteer donations of presents from a number of the factories and wholesale houses where health talks have been given in the last year.

The baseball game committee has arranged to set aside a section of the grand stand for the use of the disabled soldiers if tickets for their admission can be provided, and now is asking generous St. Louisans to buy the tickets for these men. Mrs. Frank V. Hammar of the St. Louis Red Cross has arranged for their transportation to and from the ball park, and already a few checks for soldiers' tickets have been received by the committee. Last year many persons who could not themselves attend sent their tickets to the disabled service men and the committee hopes the same thing will be done this year.

The 300 matrons and girls who have charge of the sale of souvenir score cards on the grounds will meet this week to plan their part of the work.

No War Tax on Tickets.

The Internal Revenue office in St. Louis has notified the committee that tickets to the Tuberculosis Society's benefit will be exempt from war tax. Tickets now are on sale at the headquarters, Tenth and Locust streets. The committee has announced that the first 1000 tickets sold will entitle the purchasers to additional presents similar to those going with the souvenir score cards.

In addition to the two baseball games—between the teams from the Great Lakes Naval Training Station and Jefferson Barracks and the Cardinals and Philadelphia, there will be a parade and review, clown performances, a concert by the combined bands from the Great Lakes Naval Training Station and Jefferson Barracks and a "surprise" entertainment in front of the grand stand.

TEN NEGROES TO BE APPOINTED AS PROBATIONARY PATROLMEN

Uniformed Men Will Walk Beats in Negro Districts—Many Applications Received.

Ten negroes are to be appointed as uniformed probationary patrolmen, to walk beats in negro districts, within the next 30 days. For years there have been eight negro special policemen, who wear civilian clothes, attached to detective headquarters.

"Every race and nationality can best be handled by men of the same blood," President Miller of the Police Board said. "I have been thinking for some time that we ought to have negro policemen to handle our negro population. New York, Chicago, Detroit, Kansas City and many other large cities have them. Negro policemen will better understand the peculiarities of their own race and will keep order better. They will create a greater respect for the laws. They will patrol beats entirely inhabited by negroes, such as some on Finney avenue and Pine, Chestnut and Market streets. They will be under the command of district captains. The negro special policemen are under the direction of Detective-Sergeant Michael Callahan, a white man, who is nationally known for his knowledge of negro crooks."

Miller said that many applications for places as negro patrolmen have been received and that about 150 applicants will be needed to select from. The applicants will undergo the usual mental and physical examinations and those appointed will receive $100 a month as probationaries, with the expectation of permanent appointment at $140.

A company of eight negro firemen was appointed several months ago by Director of Public Safety McKelvey and they were assigned to duty at Engine Company No. 24, 1214 Spruce street. More than 20 negroes have been employed as uniformed mail carriers for years, delivering mail generally in negro districts.

This Makes the Curl Stay in Your Hair

The silmerine method is unusually popular just now, according to the druggists. This is largely due to the warm weather and because women are now spending so much of their time out of doors. This simple method not only produces the loveliest, natural looking curls and waves, but it keeps the hair in curl no matter how hot or how moist the day, nor how hard the wind blows.

All one need do is to wet a clean toothbrush with liquid silmerine, draw this through the hair before doing it up, and the hair will dry in just the sweetest waves and crinkles. This will also keep the hair beautifully soft, silky and lustrous. A few ounces of liquid silmerine will last for months.

WILLIAM BUDER TAKES OFFICE

Dr. Jordan Assumes Duties as Hospital Commissioner.

William Buder, appointed by Mayor Kiel as Assessor, to succeed Louis Wolbrinck, assumed the office yesterday. His office was filled with flowers which were sent by friends and employes. He has been deputy assessor at $3300 a year. In the new position he will receive a salary of $5000 and fees of $10,000 for collecting the State income tax. A bill is pending in the Legislature to increase the salary to $8000 and eliminate the fees.

Dr. G. A. Jordan, who has been Assistant Health Commissioner, took office as Hospital Commissioner, succeeding Cleveland A. Shutt, who resigned. He, too, received flowers.

Grabs Package From Mail Wagon.

Edward Willis snatched a package from a parcel post wagon at Ninth and Olive streets at 9:30 a. m. yesterday and ran. John Brandt, an employe of the Board of Education, caught him. Willis said he took it because he was hungry and had slept on the courthouse steps the night before for lack of a better bed. The package contained a woman's sport coat. Willis waived preliminary examination and was held on the charge of theft from a mail wagon.

SANITARIUM PATIENTS USED TO CLEAN COURTS BUILDING

Volunteers Are Taken to Place in Ambulances and Work Is Said to Help Them.

The Department of Public Welfare recently adopted a policy of using inmates of the City Sanitarium (hospital for the insane) in the performance of work about the buildings and grounds of various institutions of the department. Last week a half dozen men were in the Municipal Courts Building, cleaning the offices of Hospital Commissioner Snutt and washing the painted walls of various divisions of the Health Department. The latter work will be finished next week.

These patients are taken to the Municipal Courts Building in ambulances under the care of guards. Extra lunch is provided for them in baskets and at noon they are taken to the city jail for a hot meal.

Director Cunliff said the use of the patients was in line with the best thought of the day in the handling of some persons of weak mentality.

"We have been giving employment to patients for some time at the sanitarium and lately we began to take some for employment to other institutions, such as Koch Hospital. All the best private sanitariums for the treatment of these sufferers provide work for them as diversion, exercise and recreation. The patients are not compelled to work. It is entirely optional.

"It is offered to such as are physically capable to perform some duty and they are permitted to elect whether to stay in their wards or go out and perform light duties. We find it takes their minds off their troubles and is beneficial for them. The city is about to spend $175,000 for a municipal farm to provide employment for those of its insane who are capable and willing to do something.

Body of Drowned Youth Recovered.

The body of Hugh Keaney, 20-year-old son of Bart D. Keaney, 2844 St. Vincent avenue, who was drowned in the Meramec River Thursday afternoon when a canoe capsized, was found yesterday half a mile below where he lost his life. William K. McCaslyn of 3836 Lindell boulevard and William Phelan of 2844 St. Vincent avenue, friends of Keaney, who had been searching for it, found it floating after dynamite had been exploded.

ELECTRICAL WAGE DEMANDS MAY TIE UP ALL BUILDING

Meeting Set for Tomorrow by Building Employers' Association to Determine Upon Policy.

SOME FAVOR CEASING CONSTRUCTION WORK

Agreement for $1.25 Hourly Scale Expired Friday and Workers Demand Its Continuance.

Following failure of the Electrical Employers' Association and a group in the Electrical Workers' Union to reach an agreement concerning wages, which resulted in 350 employes remaining away from work yesterday, the Building Employers' Association announced that it will hold a meeting tomorrow afternoon to determine what policy it shall pursue relative to the situation.

There is a sentiment among some of the employers that an ultimatum should be sent to the strikers that, if they fail to return to work at a designated date, all work on building construction now in progress will be stopped by the employing contractors.

Members of Union Quit.

When the 1920-1921 wage contract, under which the electrical workers were receiving $1.25 an hour on an 8-hour day basis, expired Friday night and the members of the Electrical Employers' Association refused to sign a new contract for a year at the old wage scale, the 350 members of the union employed by 27 firms represented in the employers' association refused to go to work. They rejected a proposition by the employers to continue at work without contract at $1.25 an hour pending adjustment of a blanket wage scale for all members of the building crafts.

As is known, the Building Employers' Association and the Building Trades Council have held several conferences at which the employers have tried to induce the building unions to accept a 10 per cent reduction in wages. Recently, the Building Trades Council rejected a proposition by the employers to submit the question of wage reduction to the individual members of the unions affiliated with the Building Trades Council.

Employers' Offer Rejected.

Floyd Lyle, secretary of the Electrical Employers' Association, stated yesterday that the association had gone so far as to agree to continue the old wage scale of $1.25 an hour providing the members of the union would continue to work without contract pending a final settlement of the building crafts and building employers' but that the union informed them that under no conditions would they continue working unless an agreement similar to last year's agreement was signed to run for one year.

Couple Divorced Twice in 8 Months.

By the Associated Press.

SPRINGFIELD, Mo., July 16.—Mrs. Amanda Rector was granted her second divorce within eight months from Preston Rector here today.

It was the eighth time the Rectors' marital troubles had been brought into Judge Owen Patterson's division of the Circuit Court. Six petitions filed by Mrs. Rector were withdrawn at her request.

Last December Mrs. Rector was granted a divorce. Within two weeks she and her former husband remarried. They separated again in less than a month and Mrs. Rector sued again, charging abuse. Preston is a wealthy farmer residing near Bois d'Arc, Mo.

CALL MONEY AT 6 1-2 PER CENT IN JULY A SURPRISE

More and More Apparent That Heavy Government Expenditure Is One of Greatest Drags on Country's Business.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, July 16.—The Evening Post, in its copyrighted weekly financial review, says:

"Continuation of a slow and spotty condition in business is brought out by current trade reports. Heavy industries, such as steel making, show continued or intensified stagnation. The manufacture of essential consumers' goods, such as clothing, on the other hand, goes on at a fair pace. Thus the amount of cotton consumed by the country's textile mills during June, although distinctly short of that used a year ago, was slightly greater than the amount consumed during May. Margins of profit in these busier industries are, however, small.

"These circumstances explain the existing stock market stagnation. The public is not sufficiently confident of our industrial companies present and prospective ability to earn profits, and public buying of stocks consequently is suspended. This leaves a market composed chiefly of operations by professional traders, and not a broad one at that.

Forces at Work.

"Perhaps the most interesting development of the week is the appearance in several markets of the early manifesations of certain of the large general forces from which has been expected in the long run. Settlement of the British coal strike, which occurred on June 28, for example, has now definitely made itself felt in the cotton market. Spot buying at Liverpool has been large, the whole European textile market shows a more cheerful tone, and cotton futures have made a halting advance on this side of the water. This better buying of our raw materials also had a marked effect on the foreign exchanges. Sterling has lost over 15 cents since the strike settlement and the other European moneys have declined. Such a development has been anticipated by the best British observers, who have pointed out that the first effect of a settlement would be replenishment of stocks of raw materials and that exchange, consequently would suffer.

"Another assurance that the avenues of international trade are being reopened and that better things are in the making for Europe comes from Germany. It has been apparent for some time that the latter country has decided to fulfill its reparation obligations. An additional sign of a desire to regain a place in international position and credit now takes the form of an earnest endeavor to place foreign loans. The Reichsbank announced during the week that a loan of 150,000,000 gold marks had been obtained in Amsterdam, and negotiations for credits appear to be making progress in this country. The importance of this news lies in the fact that Germany apparently realizes that to obtain credits and regain her position she must meet her obligations. She has decided that such a policy is worth while.

"A little reflection shows, of course, that the week's developments have their drawbacks. Better European buying lowers the exchanges and so tends to bring its own limitations. Drouth and crop damage in Europe are helping the American farmer to better wheat prices; and their immediate effect on our situation is, accordingly good. In the long run, however, they mean reduced purchasing power abroad, which of course means a less active market for our own exports.

No Refunding Issue.

"A somewhat puzzling situation has existed with regard to the money market. June saw a distinct easing of rates, call money going to 5 per cent on the Stock Exchange and to 4 per cent in the outside market. A temporary tightening, over the end of the half year was expected, but that the rate on the exchange should rise to 6½ per cent during the second week of the month was not anticipated.

"Heavy demand for currency over the holidays probably is a part of the explanation and the status of Government borrowing doubtless is another. It is worth while remembering that when the Treasury redeemed $430,000,000 in Treasury certificates on June 30 it offered to receive subscriptions to $500,000,000 in new certificates and three-year notes. Actual subscriptions amounted to over $700,000,000, and of this the Treasury accepted in the neighborhood of $625,000,000. As no refunding issue is offered to take care of the July 15 maturity of $133,000,000 in certificates, it appears probable that the Treasury accepted enough in June to cover its July obligations.

"It is more and more apparent that heavy Government expenditure is one of the greatest drags on the country's business. For this reason the administration's strong stand for economy and against fresh financial burdens is good cause for congratulation. For the sake of our foreign and general trade, however, it is to be hoped that equal wisdom will develop with regard to the tariff."

Saturday's Market Quiet.

"The character of trading on the stock market in today's short session was unchanged from that of the first five days of the week. Professional operators with a view to evening commitments over the holiday were carried out in a quiet way. Irregularity at the opening was followed by a spell of dullness which lasted until the close and left prices little changed. The market was practically without feature, operators on the short side apparently having abandoned their attacks on industrial specialties to await week-end developments. The foreign exchange market took on the dull aspect of stocks. Sterling was unchanged at the opening, but later declined ⅜c to $3.61⅞ for checks. Continental rates followed the course of sterling, French bills selling at 7.79½, Italian lire at 4.50 and German marks at 1.42¾. Active trading in the wheat yesterday was followed today by an attempt at evening up over the week-end.

"A decrease of $20,775,650 in the surplus reserve of the Clearing House banks this week brings the total for this item down to $13,324,350. Loans for the week are lower by $55,307,000. Net demand deposits have increased $35,020,000 while time deposits have decreased $5,227,000. Reserve deposits at the Reserve Bank ar $16,127,000 less, while Government deposits have increased $85,201,000."

Wall Street News and Comment

—SPECIAL DAILY—

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, July 16.—For all the business done today the Stock Exchange might just as well have been closed. It was the prevailing dull spell at its extreme, intensified by the customary inertia of a midsummer half-holiday. During the greater part of the time prices were almost stationary. There were one or two exceptions, such as Atlantic, Gulf & West Indies, in which there was rather active selling. But even in stocks which had been pressed downward most persistently in the course of the week there were no signs of further pressure. The steel shares were steady, including Bethlehem B, which faced quite a test in the announcement that working forces had been cut down at the Fore River plant, owing to falling off in Government contracts.

Here and there desultory short covering caused some hardening of prices, but there was not enough business doing for the day's market to be considered as of any importance at all. Trading in the foreign exchanges was almost equally insignificant. German marks held steady, while sterling went lower. Some realizing sales appeared in the cotton market, but the downward tendency was not checked.

Wall Street has sunk this week into the familiar apathy of the midsummer period. There has been no great amount of selling, that is real selling, but there has been still less in the way of new buying. Consequently, rices, where they have moved at all, have been inclined to sag, with some positive weakness here and there among specialties.

With the Federal Reserve ratio up to 61.6 per cent—the highest since the early spring of 1918—with such evidences of deflation as this week's decrease of $103,000,000 in discounts and $68,000,000 in circulating notes, with the record of $346,000,000 added since the first of the year to our stock of gold, there seems little cause to worry about the autumn money market.

The English demand for cotton has increased with the settlement of the strike at the Lancaster mills, and this improvement, actual and prospective, in the export movement, along with the severe shrinkage in the new crop, has radically changed the cotton price outlook from what it was a month ago. Cotton is up 2 cents and is pointing higher.

The sugar trade has seemed all along to be in the most desperate state of all, yet even here there have been signs of recovery for the first time in months. Prices have been advanced.

The Bond Market.

Compared with the stagnation on the Stock Exchange, trading in bonds this morning was fairly active. Price changes were trifling, however, and if anything, realizing sales by dealers were more of an influence than fresh buying. In the railway list the more active issues like Great Northern 7s, Burlington collateral 6½s, the new Canadian Northern 6½s were all the same as last night.

There was a sale of Louisville & Nashville 7s "sellers 15 days" at 104½, which was one half point above the last regular transaction and well up to the high record. New York Central debenture 6s, which have been in demand for several days, were slightly higher at 90½. Denver & Rio Grande refunding 5s at 43¾ were up a fraction, while Baltimore & Ohio 5s were slightly lower. Armour 4½s were off fractionally at 70. Central Leather 5s sold at 89 as against yesterday's high of 90. United States Rubber first and refunding 5s at 77½ were down a half point from the high of the week. There was a sale of Pacific Telephone 5s at 84. Traction bonds were slightly easier.

Foreign Exchange and Domestic Money

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, July 16.—Business in the foreign exchange market narrowed down teo an extremely small volume during the past week and while there were extensive fluctuations it was commented on that the only transactions were at the extreme points on each movement, an instance being a fall in demand sterling from $3.64, at which a purchase was made, to $3.62, without an intervening transaction. Similar wide fluctuations were noted in French and Italian exchange, and were apparently explained by an entire absence of interest on the part of banking dealers. There was a fair amount of commercial business and a belief prevailed that foreign governmental agencies were in the market all through the week although displays of strength in both wheat and cotton were attributed by speculative interests in those markets to covering of shorts and reports of unfavorable weather conditions.

There was a special movement in German exchange early in the week, on which marks some from 1.27 to 1.37. This movement started in London with orders from German banks to sell dollars and buy marks in that market, and was continued in this market, but the movement did not last a full nour in the two markets. A good part of the gain was retained after the active trading ceased. About 50,000,000 marks were bought in this market on the advance. The movement was preceded and followed by statements that Germany had arranged for a credit of $150,000,000 gold marks in Amsterdam. But financing by or for other nations has been followed by disappointing conditions, chiefly attributed to the fact that the credits and loans arranged simply provided for a settlement of debts already contracted.

The movement of other rates, while irregular was to lower levels. Demand sterling, which sold at $3.66½ on last Saturday, declined to $3.62 in this market, and to $3.61½ in London on Monday. A rally to $3.65 followed this decline, but at the end sterling became heavy again, demand yielding to $3.61⅞. Leading continental rates followed sterling closely in its variation, checks in its variations, checks on Paris falling to 7.71 on Monday and lire checks on the same day yielding to 4.48.

Spanish had a sharp spurt on Thursday morning, but lost its gain before the forenoon ended. Argentine exchange yesterday was quoted at the new low of 28.95.

Sterling was unchanged at the opening Saturday but later declined ⅜c to $3.61⅞ for checks. Continental rates followed the course of sterling, French bills selling at 7.79½, Italian lire at 4.50 and German marks at 1.42¾.

Prime mercantile paper Saturday was quoted 6¼ to 6½ per cent.

In the foreign exchange market the following rates prevailed:

CURB MARKET STEADY, CHANGES IRREGULAR

Trade is of Small Volume—Price Movement Small in Mining List.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, July 16.—Business was at a standstill on the Curb exchange today. Many traders were absent and commission houses had only a few orders. The professionals found it difficult to make profits because of the unusually small dealings and the fact that price movements were confined within narrow limits. The tone of the market was steady and changes were irregular.

A small gain was recorded in Anglo-American Oil. International Petroleum continued heavy, small sales at the market causing the stock to sell down to the lowest price touched in some time.

Goodyear common attracted some attention, moving up on moderate purchases. United States Distributing was a heavy seller, and there was moderate activity in Sweets Company. Many of the recently active stocks were practically neglected.

In bonds there was a comparatively dull inquiry for a number of issues. The tone was steady.

Mining shares were quiet and price changes small.

Dry Goods Market.

NEW YORK, July 16.—Cotton goods markets held steady. Trading was lighter for a short day. The Amoskeag company offered 32-inch staple and fancy ginghams for spring 1922 delivery, on substantially the same basis as current values. They will be for the jobbing and cutting trades. Burlaps continued quiet and somewhat easier. Knit goods showed little change. There were reports current of earlier openings on wool goods than have been talked about.

ALL OF HARDING ON DISARMAMENT IS MARKET FACTOR

inancial London Places Proposed Conference in First Place—Bank Rate and Irish Problem Other Influences Awaited.

pecial Copyrighted Cable to the Post-ispatch and New York Evening Post.

LONDON, July 16.—Three principal ctors are now operating on the arkets, namely, hopes of a lower nk rate, the Irish conference, and oposed meeting at Washington dur-g the autumn. Concerning the first ctor, while it is possible that we ay have a 5½ per cent rate before ng, any resulting effect probably ould turn out to have been discount-d in the main. The ultimate result f the Irish conference is doubtful and is almost inconceivable that a set-ment will be along lines constitut-g a favorable factor for the mar-ts.

Feeling Is Hopeful.

The final factor, however, namely, resident Harding's proposed confer-ce on disarmament, is the most im-rtant of all, and contains infinite ssibilities of a favorable character. he attempt being made by the Times take a partisan advantage of the tuation by censuring the idea of loyd George and Curzon going to ashington is much deprecated in ancial quarters, even in those usual-y hostile to the Premier. It is con-ered that the conference necessari-y must be prolonged because of the mplexity and magnitude of the con-derations involved.

Feeling in the best quarters, how-ver, is hopeful, partly because any-hing initiated by the United States least carries an assurance that the estion will be considered on sound, siness-like lines and with reasoned dgments. It is also believed that y the time the conference meets it ill have become increasingly evident at a restoration of some form of orld-wide political conference is es-ntial to the recovery of international rosperity and the full re-establish-ent of international credit.

s autumn approaches the full ef-ts of the coal strike are expected be revealed. Your exports are like-y to increase as a result of the be-nning of the revival in trade here, t because our stocks of raw ma-rials are low, our unfavorable trade alance is likely to be emphasized. nless the situation is entirely domi-ated by German reparation payments decline in sterling is expected. ence, even if the bank rate should e reduced shortly to 5½ per cent, a fresh rise in the autumn is probable.

More Borrowing Possible.

National finances also are likely to how increasingly the effect of the rike in diminished revenue, thereby ecessitating further Government bor-rowing. Cash subscriptions to new reasury bonds are believed at present o be comparatively small. The bank-ng half-year fulfills expectations, all ividends being maintained.

onsiderable criticism is heard here f Gustav Cassell's proposal to sta-lize the exchange and currencies, ecause of fear that a labor govern-ent might use the fact of a huge ternal war debt as a reason for iting down the value of the pound erling. At present no such proposal definitely mooted, but the situation that direction should be watched osely.

SPREADS FEATURE TRADING IN WHEAT FUTURES AT CHICAGO

CHICAGO, July 16.—Opening at about yesterday's closing figures, today's wheat market was easy at the start but soon developed activity. July started at $1.30½ to $1.31, Sept. at $1.32¼ to $1.33 and Dec. at $1.36¼ to $1.37.

The spreads proved attractive to local traders and there was buying of July and selling of September at 2 cents difference with buying of Sept. and selling of December. Under this dealing price fluctuations became so rapid that the official figures frequently were out of line with the prices being paid in the pit.

Market news included cooler weather over the grain belt and further reports of blight and black rust in Manitoba.

The weaker tendency persisted in the face of support on declines and toward the end the support ceased, the close was near the low point. July wound up at $1.29½ to $1.29¾, Sept. at $1.30¾ to $1.31, and Dec at $134¾ to $135.

Corn was fairly strong at the start and maintained this position throughout the first hour. Opening prices were virtually unchanged from yesterday's close, with July 63⅛c, September 62c to 62⅛c, and December 61c to 61⅛c. There was some selling on resting orders at around 63c for September, but commission house buying offset this and the option advanced to 64¼c.

Corn climbed steadily throughout the session and closed strong, with July 65¼c; Sept 64c to 64⅛c, and Dec. 62½c to 62⅝c.

Oats shared corn's strength. The start was even with yesterday's finals, September being 41½c to 41⅝c.

Provisions were higher on the continued bulge in hog prices at the yards. Best grades of hogs today were the highest in more than three months.

Pork and lard were up 15c to 25c on change and ribs started 2½c higher.

WHEAT UP SHARPLY ON CROP DAMAGE REPORTS

Black Rust in Northwest Said to Have Cut Prospects—Drouth Abroad Factor.

Reports of precarious crop conditions on both sides of the Atlantic swept the wheat market wildly upward during the past week.

Sharp curtailments of supplies of new wheat were indicated by privately reported severe outbreaks of black rust in the spring crop belt couth as well as north of the Canadian boundary. Moreover, it was claimed that owing to excessive heat many thousand acres in that region would not yield as much as five bushels an acre. With Great Britain, France and other important European countries drouth stricken, and with no exports looked for from Russia, prices jumped in a single session nearly 7c. Fields in North Dakota which a fortnight ago seemed free of black rust were reported as having since become badly infected, and in surrounding states and also Canada, according to current advices, heat damage was beyond repair by rains and cooler weather which had intervened. As an immediate result, September and December deliveries reached the highest prices yet this season. July at Chicago, however, lagged owing to storage difficulties rendered acute by labor trouble at elevators.

Rains in the corn belt eased the corn market somewhat. Oats were firmer in response to crop damage reports.

Provisions ascended with hogs and grain.

Wheat Lower Saturday.

More favorable weather in the spring wheat territory, with some better crop reports from there, with the heavy receipts of wheat, caused some of the big longs to take profits, and the wheat market was weak and lower Saturday. There was enough bullish news, however, to cause frequent reactions, and the market was fairly broad. The export demand holds up remarkably well. As exporters were the only buyers of cash wheat in the local market, prices were 1c to 3c lower. Early sales were at the lowest prices, and soft winter suffered the most decline, as hard wheat was only 1c to 2c lower.

Cash corn was in good demand, with offerings light, and prices 1c to 2c higher. News in regard to corn was bullish. There was a good export demand.

Cash oats were in fair demand, with offerings light, and prices 1¼c to 1½c higher.

St. Louis grain receipts Saturday were: Wheat, 319 cars local and 64 through; corn, 31 cars local and 2 through; oats, 18 cars local and 2 through; hay, 310 tons local and 86 through.

Northwestern car lots Saturday were: Minneapolis, 147; Duluth, 70; Winnipeg, 186.

HOG PRICES HIGHER IN TRADE FOR WEEK

Reach Top of $11—Values Irregular in the Cattle Market.

RECEIPTS.

	Last Wk.	Prev. Wk.	Year Ago.
Cattle	18,000	8,200	23,400
Hogs	43,000	38,400	52,700
Sheep	22,500	11,200	19,600
Horses	300	150	2,000

Cattle receipts for the week just closing show a total of 18,000 against 7980 the same period the previous week, and 22,500 the corresponding time a year ago. The sharp upturn in prices the previous period caused many traders to look for a flooded market the current week, but the country surprised them. Not only was the recent advance retained, but in many cases further price gains have been recorded. The steer supply has been considerably heavier than the previous week, most or all of the increase coming from native territory. Quality also showed decided improvement. For the week, the good corn-fed beeves in the $7 class and up are generally 25c higher. Plain to common "green" or grassy steers under $7 were somewhat slower sale and irregular, averaging about steady for the week.

Heavy beeves sold at $7.25@8.35 mostly, and best yearling at $7.75@9.25.

About 100 cars of Texas and Oklahoma steers got in this week, and quality averaged somewhat better than the preceding week. Trade in Southwestern steers averaged 15@25c higher. The 1400-pound Texas cattle sold at $8.10, the highest price paid for steers out of that State since early in April. Bulk of the Texas and Oklahoma grassers sold at $5.50@6.35, with some light kinds down to $5.

Good Demand for Bulls.

There has been a good demand for bulls all week, and it was a sellers' market from day to day. Offering very light with an almost complete absence of carlot receipts, odd head comprising the daily supply. General bull market up 25@50c. Good to choice strong weight bulls cleared from $5@6.10. Fair to good bulls sold from $4@5, with little common canner or light weight kinds from $2.75@3.75. The cow trade has been in good shape all week, as each day saw limited runs and buyers were out for supplies. There was a broad shipping demand which helped considerably. Generally market on bulk of the cows is at 25c higher for the week. Choice beef cows sold mainly from $5.50@6.25, with real fancy kinds from $6.50@7. Toward the close some of the buyers were out of the market and there was weaker tendency on plain grassy cows.

There has been a very light supply of canner cows all week, the offering consisting mostly of odd lots. Compared with the low time a couple of weeks ago, the canner market reflects improvement, averaging close to 50c higher. Good canners now selling around $1.75@2 were in the $1@1.25 class at the low time.

Calves and yearlings in liberal supply, about 6500 getting in. Tendency of prices was downward and general market off $1 to $1.50 for the week. At the close best veals cleared at $10, fair to good $8.50@9.50, heavy calves $5@7.50 and canners $1.50@2.50.

The general trade in most of the stocker and feeder grades closed around 25c higher. Some of the real plain kinds failed to show that much advance. Compared with the low time three weeks ago, most of the stocker and feeder cattle are form 50@75c higher. Some real good feeders weighing a little under a thousand pounds sold out of second hands at $7. Bulk of the trade, however, has been in 600 to 800 pound stock moving in a general range of $4.50@5.50. Plain stockers have sold from $3.50@4.50. Stock cows moved at $2.50@3.50, and heifers at $3.25@5, the latter for strictly prime.

Hogs Sell Up to $11.

Official receipts of hogs for the current week have approximated 45,000 head, a heavier run than was received the previous week by some 5000 head. A year ago today there were over 52,000 on sale. There were minor fluctuations in the trading early. Opening prices were higher, but the two subsequent days found value slumping. This decline was only followed by gains, and Friday the market jumped to the highest levels since last April.

As compared with Friday a week ago the market showed an advance of $1.10 with a top of $11. Packers and orders were in the competition late and it was indeed an active affair. The bulk of the best offerings late sold from $10.65 to $10.85. Good light pigs remained favorites and were invariably the most active sellers. Mixed and butchers quotable from $10 to $10.50, with heavy hogs selling from $9.50 to $10.25. Roughs from $9 to $10 and lights from $9.50 to $10.25 chiefly. Good native, immune stock pigs sold from $9 to $10, but the common southern types were slow and sold mostly around $7.50 to $8.50, with poor movement.

Sheep Are Steady.

Owing to the fact that the supply was quite liberal last week and made up almost entirely of lambs the market broke to the extent of around $1 on all lambs, but the trade for sheep remained on a steady basis. The week opened on a steady basis with best lambs at $10@10.50, but later they were going in droves at $9@9.50, and good grade of lambs were selling at $8.50@8.90 fair offerings $8.00@8.40, culls, $4@5, with the common little culls at $2.50@3.

Sheep sold without change all week and are now bringing the same as for the past month. Fat handweight ewes sold to the killers at $4, heavy and plain grades $2.50@3, breeding ewes $4.75@5.25, stockers, $3, choppers, $2.50@2, and bucks $2. The week closed with the supply well cleaned up.

HORSES AND MULES—The horse market was again on a quiet basis today. Buyers were scarce and save for a few sales to outsiders on the street there was nothing done to speak of. Mules still remained quiet and no sales of consequence were reported.

COTTON MARKET FIRM AT CLOSE OF WEEK

Cotton Goods Trade News More Favorable—Some Southern Selling After Rise.

NEW YORK, July 16.—Rather more favorable week-end reviews of the cotton goods trade and the week-end statistics indicating a better volume of distribution caused some buying at the opening of the cotton market this morning and first prices were steady at an advance of 4 to 9 points. Houses with Wall Street connections were moderate buyers, but there was some Southern selling and prices eased after the call under scattered realizing for over the week-end. October contracts sold off from 12.95c to 12.88c, or 2 points net lower.

Sales of print cloths in the Fall River market for the week were estimated at 90,000 pieces. Manchester cables reported an improving demand for cloths from China and India. Spinners' takings of American cotton last week amounted to 223,781 bales, against 164,476 last year and 157,460 for the same week two years ago.

The market was quiet but firmer late in the morning on coverings and a little trade buying, with October selling up to 13.07c. The close was within a few points of the best, with the tone firm at a net advance of 6 to 16 points.

Cotton futures closed firm; July, 12.34c; October, 13.03c; December, 13.46c; January, 13.46c; March, 13.74c.

Cotton Steady at New Orleans.

NEW ORLEANS, July 16.—Too much rain in the Atlantics and a continued large export movement gave the cotton market a good tone today, and in the first hour of trading prices were advanced 16 to 17 points, October rising to 12.59c. Shipments of 25,-137 bales out of Galveston gave point to rumors of large July spot commitments there. The rains in the eastern belt gave prominence to reports from South Carolina that the weevil was spreading over large areas in that State.

Enough liquidation came into the market from the long side to cause recessions of about 10 points, but in the late trading another steady period developed following the receipt of Manchester cables saying that trade in both cloths and yarns was increasing and prices went back to within a point or two of the early high levels.

New Orleans Spot Cotton.

NEW ORLEANS, July 16.—Spot cotton steady. Quotations revised. Middling unchanged. To arrive, 556 bales. Sales on the spot, 648. Low middling, 10.13c; middling, 11.88c; good middling, 12.88c.

The POST-DISPATCH is the only St. Louis evening newspaper giving the Associated Press news service.

SIXTH MISSOURI WILL HOLD ANNUAL REUNION WEDNESDAY

Event Will Mark 23d Anniversary of Mustering in During the War With Spain.

The Sixth Missouri Association will hold its annual reunion at the northeast corner of King's highway and Manchester avenue, Wednesday evening, to celebrate the twenty-third anniversary of the muster into the United States service of the Sixth Missouri Volunteer Infantry, Spanish-American war. It was at that time the only Missouri regiment to see service in a foreign country, and was stationed at Camp Columbia, about eight miles out from Havana, Cuba.

The Sixth had for its Colonel a Missourian—Letcher Hardeman, an officer of the regular army. The late Gen. Harvey C. Clark was Lieutenant-Colonel; Maj. Jacob J. Dickinson, publisher and editor of Reedy's Mirror, was senior Major. Fifteen of the officers and men of this regiment were later commissioned in the regular army, and subsequently served in the Philippines. Many of these performed conspicuous service here and in the late world war.

Lieutenant-Colonal Archie Miller, who met his death recently in an airplane disaster in Washington, was a First Lieutenant in this regiment. Theo. Schultz, a Captain in this organization, is now Lieutenant-Colonel and Zone Finance Officer, Fifth Corps Area, stationed at Fort Benjamin Harrison, Ind. Col. Warren L. Mabrey, who served as a Sergeant, was a Major in the late 140th United States Infantry.

Robert E. Lee, secretary of the St. Louis Auto Dealers and Manufacturers' Association, was a Captain. Many others prominent in business and civic affairs in this city served in this regiment. Capt. E. H. Lofhagen is the president and Charles W. Seaman, secretary.

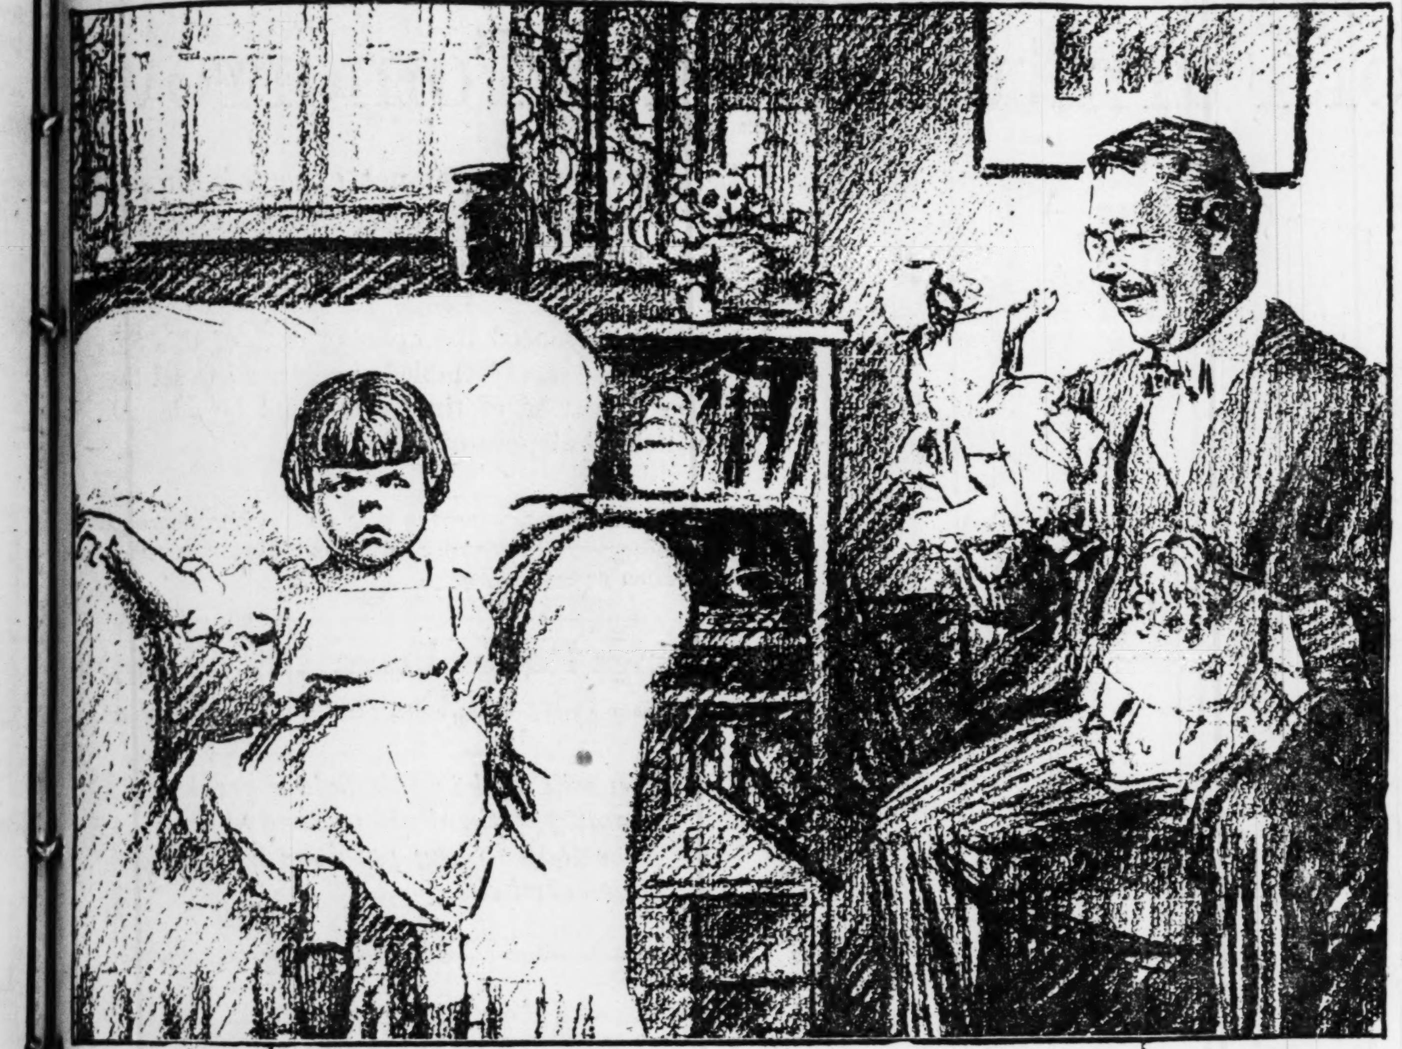
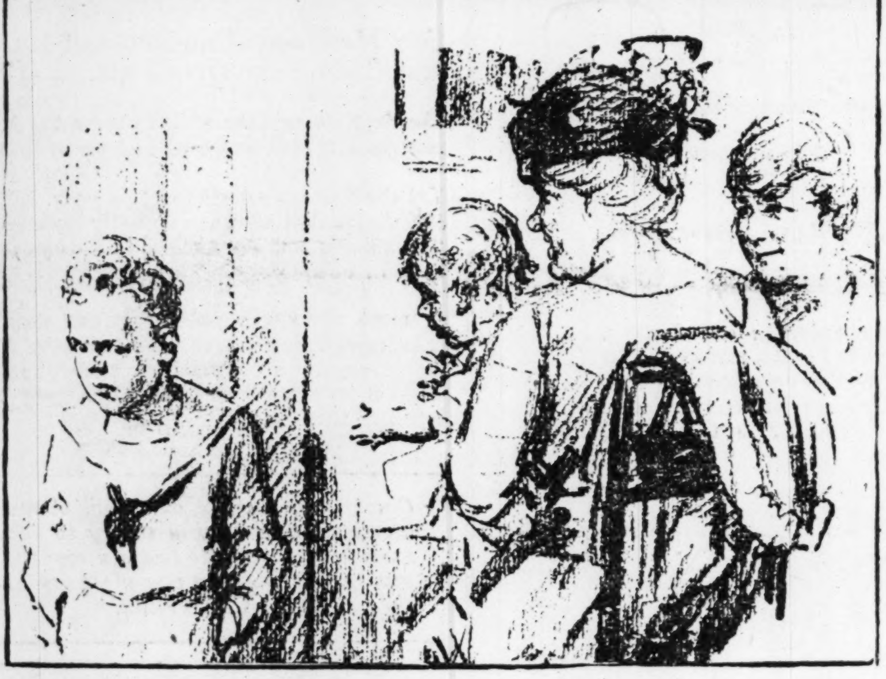
Making the Kids Happy

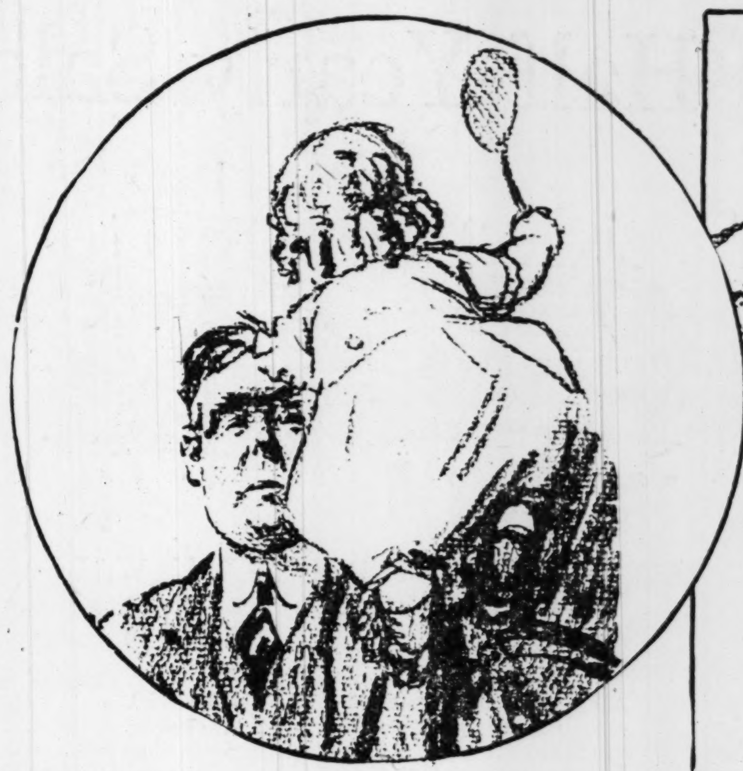
Drawn by W. E. Hill
for the Sunday Post-Dispatch



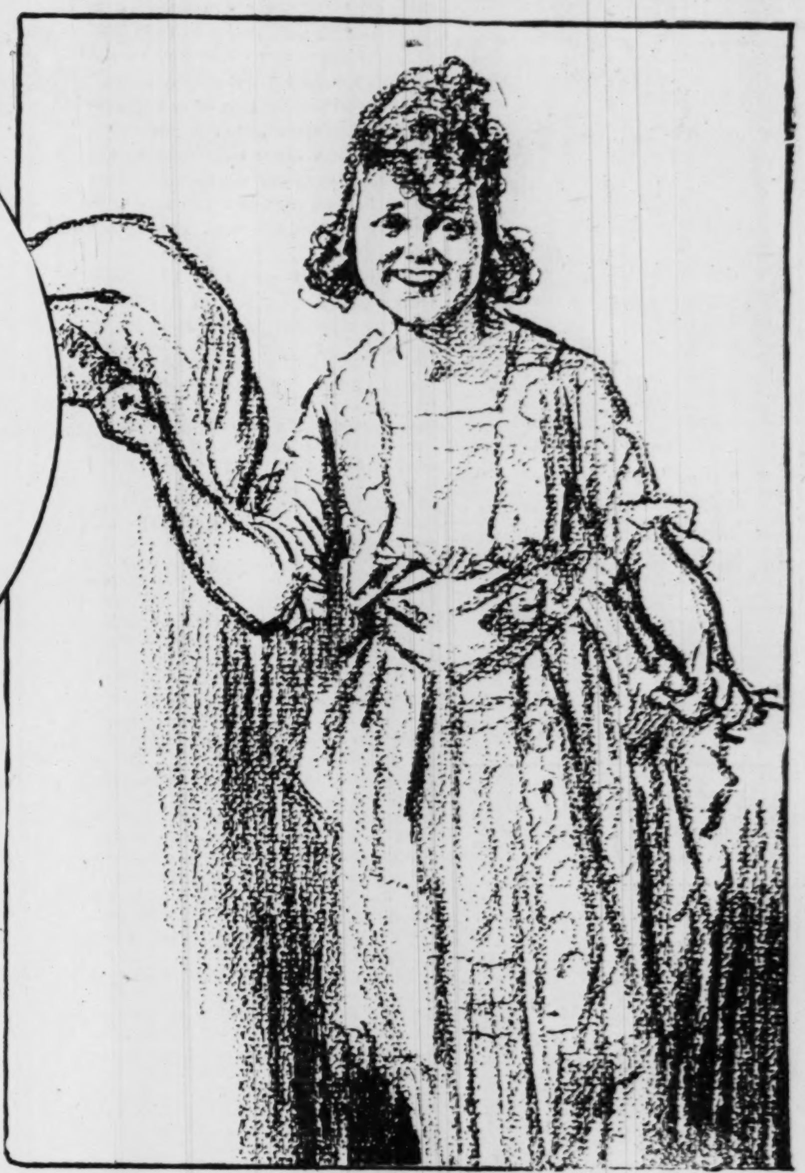
Uncle Will Bibbs is one of those people who know just how to treat children. Make believe you're a child yourself — and all that. Uncle Will is holding an imaginary conversation between two of Ethel's dolls in falsetto with baby-talk trimmings. Ethel doesn't know when she has been more ashamed of anything, but this is one of Ethel's good behavior days and she will probably let Uncle Will enjoy himself.



Mrs. Fritch is calling with Baby Fritch on Edgar's mother, and Edgar and Baby Fritch are expected to sit down in the corner and have a perfectly riotous time of it. Baby Fritch wants to kiss Edgar and she is being so cunning, saying: "Babe want go kiss kiss. Boy kiss Babe." Mrs. Fritch and Edgar's mamma think Edgar should be tickled to death and meet Baby Fritch half way.

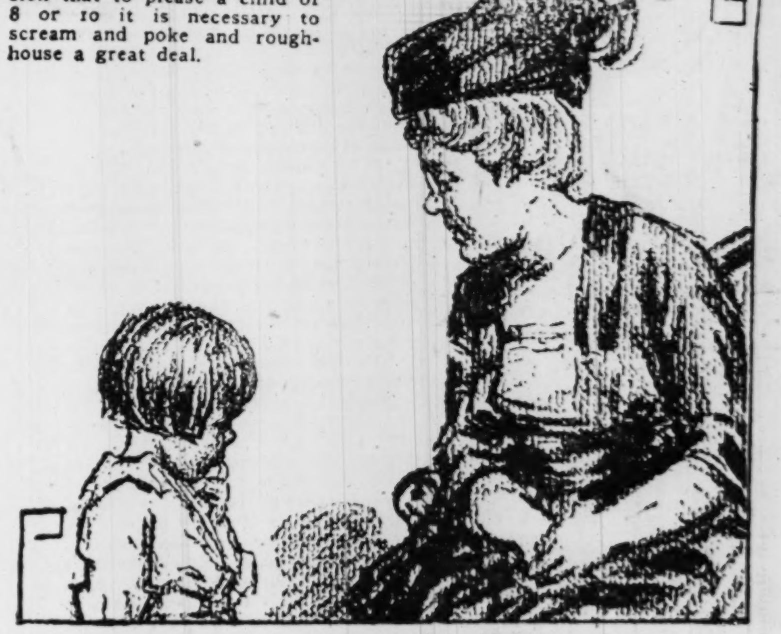


Mr. Wurty is deathly afraid of very small children, and they get on to it as soon as they meet him. Whereupon they proceed to walk all over him, both literally and figuratively, and have a beautiful time. Edna is after a fly which lit on Mr. W.'s bald spot. It is such fun for Edna to use the fly swatter on Mr. Wurty!

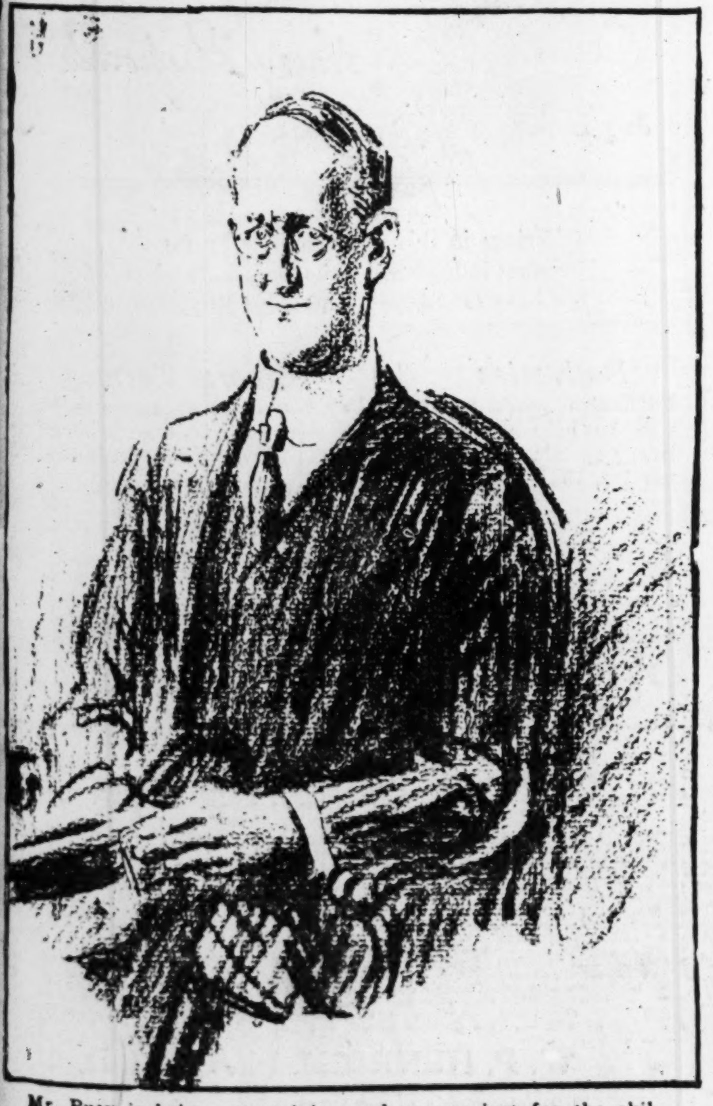


"I know somebody who's going to get tickled in a minute!" screams Cousin Frances Glower from around a corner, just when Irwin is deepest in "The Sign of the Four." Cousin Frances is under the impression that to please a child of 8 or 10 it is necessary to scream and poke and rough-house a great deal.

"Oh, Sarah, do look at him now! Why don't you have him wear a bang! Oh, doesn't he look like a cherub with his hair like this!" (business of kissing and hugging Harold). The affectionate relative who loves to show Harold how much she loves him. Harold is not so crazy about it.

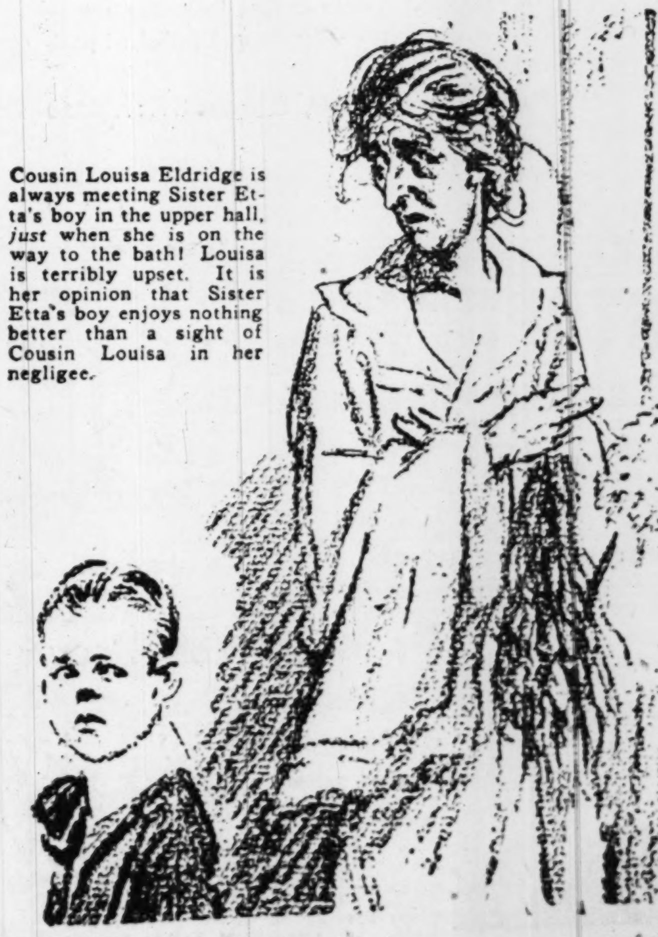


Second Cousin Zella Clover is giving Madelyn a happy ten minutes. "She doesn't look like her Aunt Margaret a bit. Not so b-r-i-g-h-t. Who do you look like, sweetness? Uncle Tobey? Oh, Madelyn's lost her tongue; I do believe Madelyn's lost her tongue," etc.

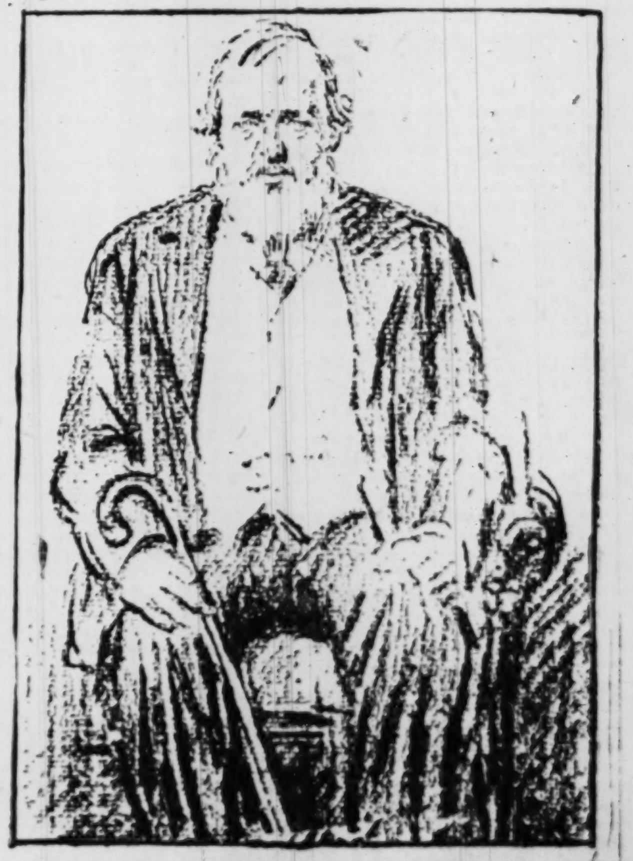


Mr. Ruey is being entertaining and snappy just for the children's benefit. Mr. Ruey hates children and they know it. "I wonder," begins Mr. Ruey, "if a certain little boy, not so very far off, can tell me the population of the State of Iowa?" Then Mr. Ruey will go on to say how he is sure these little folks must be very, very good little folks, with such a splendid papa and mamma. "I don't believe," Mr. Ruey adds, turning to the children's mother, "these little people ever have an unkind, selfish thought!"

The sob stuff. "How would you like to come and be my little girl—I haven't any little girl—aren't you sorry for poor Miss Nickils? Think of poor Miss Nickils in a big house with no little girl around!" This is Miss Nickils' idea of what children like.



Cousin Louisa Eldridge is always meeting Sister Etta's boy in the upper hall, just when she is on the way to the bath! Louisa is terribly upset. It is her opinion that Sister Etta's boy enjoys nothing better than a sight of Cousin Louisa in her negligee.



The affectionate relative. Uncle Tobias Glow is one of those champion wet kissers. Loves to be very friendly with the little tots and hold them on his lap and ask what they have learned at Sunday school.

CARELESS SHAMPOOING SPOILS THE HAIR

Soap should be used very carefully, if you want to keep your hair looking its best. Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and ruins it.

The best thing for steady use is Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo (which is pure and greaseless), and is better than anything else you can use.

One or two teaspoonsful of Mulsified will cleanse the hair and scalp thoroughly. Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, which rinses out easily, removing every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excessive oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves the scalp soft, and the hair fine and silky, bright, lustrous, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo at any pharmacy, it's very cheap, and a few ounces will supply every member of the family for months. Be sure your druggist gives you Mulsified.

CITY TO BE ADVERTISED IN 90 NEWSPAPERS

St. Louis' Advantages as Market for Buyers Will Be Exploited in 18 States.

Advantages of St. Louis as a market for buyers in St. Louis and Chicago trade territory are outlined in an article on this year's $50,000 Municipal Advertising Campaign in the current issue of "Greater St. Louis," the official publication of the Chamber of Commerce, issued yesterday. For the first time, according to the article, advertising is to be undertaken in competitive trade territory, notably that of Chicago. The article says:

"The second series of advertisements that form a part of this year's $50,000 Municipal Advertising Campaign are ready for publication. They will appear in 90 newspapers in 18 States, beginning next week. Each newspaper will run two insertions. One stresses the advantages of St. Louis' central location in terms of freight rates and the other sets forth the advantages that accrue to merchants who buy in this market by reason of the excellent package car service maintained.

"The heading across the top of this advertisement says: 'Goods Laid Down From St. Louis Cost Less.' The advertisement continues: 'From market to you by freight—almost like express.'

Key to Greater Sales.

"'Money saved in trips to market and in freight rates means better prices to your customers. Reasonably priced merchandise this fall is going to be the key to greater sales. St. Louis is your nearest big market. Nearness to you makes the freight haul shorter than from any other principal market. The tremendous open stocks, and the compactness of the St. Louis wholesale district, makes selection easy from wide varieties and saves time and hotel bills for you.

"'Two other important elements enter into your fall buying: (1) seasonable goods of correct styles—St. Louis aids buyers in securing seasonable and timely merchandise by depicting the latest modes in its annual Fashion Show; (2) the time it takes the merchandise to reach you after you buy. For stock replenishing this is especially a vital factor.

"'St. Louis simplifies these problems for you, as it does most of your buying troubles. The time element is solved when more than 1200 package cars leave St. Louis every night by through freight, by which mixed shipments reach you on almost the same basis as express.

Originated Package Car Idea.

"'St. Louis originated this time-saving convenience for the buyer, and today has the best package-car delivery in the United States.'" A map showing the extent of St. Louis' package car service and number of days for delivery to the verious sections of the country is shown.

"'The growth of St. Louis,' concludes the advertisement, 'has been based upon a continually expanding demand for dependable merchandise in your territory. St. Louis business houses have for more than a century specialized in the particular demands of your section of the country, and therefore are better qualified to meet your needs and requirements.'

"The purpose of this series of advertisements," it is stated, "is to encourage fall buying in St. Louis. For the first time, advertising in competitive territory is being undertaken. Heretofore advertising efforts have been confined to that portion of the United States which was the natural St. Louis trade territory on account of its proximity and the resulting short freight haul. Now merchants and manufacturers farther north, in what has been considered Chicago territory, will be told of St. Louis' advantages.

"The policy of the Municipal Advertising Campaign this year has been to stress the idea that 'goods properly priced overcome merchant apathy.' This year, perhaps more than at any other time, the merchant is seeking properly priced goods. He is buying on a margin so close that even the price of the trip to market is taken into consideration, not to mention the ever-present question of freight rates.

Definite Program Outlined.

"At a recent meeting of the Committee on Municipal Advertising upon which are representatives of the Chamber of Commerce, Advertising Club and city administration, a definite program for the expenditure of the remainder of the advertising fund was decided upon. The industrial phase of the campaign is to be carried on in the national magazines such as System, the Nation's Business, World's Work and Printers' Ink.

"Advertising in the foreign trade field will also be continued. The principal efforts of the 1921 campaign will be toward arousing interest in St. Louis as a market for the Mexican business man. In view of the cordial relations created by the 12-day tour of Mexico by the party of 112 St. Louis business men, under Commerce, it was deemed particularly appropriate at this time that a special effort be made to capture Mexican business.

"As was done last year, advertisements of St. Louis will appear in New York newspapers. It is thought essential that St. Louis and its efforts to attract new industries and new business be brought to the attention of Eastern capital. The facilities in St. Louis for river and rail shipments and for the transfer from river to rail and vice versa, will be made a part of the advertising appeal. Another special booklet similar to the brochure 'St. Louis as a Manufacturing Center,' issued in connection with last year's campaign, also is contemplated."

Few Merchants Can Boast of Increased Business This Year Over Last.

The first six months of 1920 were the largest business months this firm had ever had up to that time.

Yet the first six months of this year, 1921, ending July 1st, shows that we have actually delivered more furniture than in any six months or half year since we have been in business.

A most remarkable showing, and credit is due our salesforce, factory men, managers, in fact, all of our employes, for accomplishing such phenomenal results when most merchants have fallen 'way behind in their business this year.

Commencing with our Semi-Annual Sale tomorrow we are going to try to accomplish the same results for the last six months of 1921, by giving our patrons the most up-to-date furniture at unheard-of values.

Rupture Kills 7,000 Annually

Seven thousand persons each year are laid away—the burial certificate being marked "Rupture." Why? Because the unfortunate ones had neglected themselves or had been merely taking care of the sign (swelling) or the affliction and paying no attention to the cause. What are you doing? Are you neglecting yourself by wearing a truss, appliance or whatever name you choose to call it? At best, the truss is only a makeshift—a false prop against a collapsing wall—and cannot be expected to act as more than a mere mechanical support. The binding pressure retards blood circulation, thus robbing the weakened muscles of that which they need most—nourishment.

But science has found a way, and all truss sufferers in the land are invited to make a FREE test right in the privacy of their own homes. The PLAPAO method is unquestionably the most scientific, logical and successful self-treatment for rupture the world has ever known.

The PLAPAO PAD when adhering closely to the body cannot possibly slip or shift out of place, therefore cannot chafe or pinch. Soft as velvet—easy to apply—comparatively inexpensive. To be used whilst you work and whilst you sleep. No straps, buckles or springs attached.

Learn how to close the hernial opening as nature intended so the rupture CAN'T come down. Send your name today to PLAPAO CO., 560 Stuart Bldg., St. Louis, Mo., for FREE trial Plapao and instructive information.—(c) P.-L.

He Is Looking 'Em Over Again

"Eight years of stomach and liver trouble reduced me to a walking skeleton. My skin was dried up and as yellow as a twenty-dollar gold piece. I was filled with gas and had severe pains in my right side. I could not think and had lost all ambition to do anything. Doctors' medicine did not touch me. My cousin advised Mayr's Wonderful Remedy, which snatched me from the grave. I have gained sixty pounds, eat like a hired man and am looking 'em over again." PILES CURED WITHOUT THE KNIF By Dr. Henrich's Method TO STAY CURED

No Cutting. No Pain. No Chloroform. No Hospital. No Danger. No Loss of Time. Consultation and Examination Free—Tell Your Friends.

PILES, Fistula, Fissure, Rectal Ulcers and Constipation are permanently cured by my Mild Medical Method. Let me show you how it can be done.

Rectal Diseases are sources of infection to the general system. The Colon and Rectum is the receptacle of the body wastes. It has a better sympathetic nerve supply than any other organ of the body.

On account of this fact there is a greater train of symptoms, such as Headache, Stomach and Heart Trouble, Backache, Dyspepsia, Loss of Appetite, Drowsiness and many Nervous disturbances. Marvelous comfort and many wonderful cures of distant organs are brought about by my scientific and skillful Rectal Treatment without knife, scissors or chloroform.

Consultation and examination costs nothing. So don't delay. Call any day except Sunday, in the Scott Building, between 9 a. m. and 4 p. m. No Sunday hours; I go to church.

BIG ULCER ALL HEALED

"Now I Can Walk," Says Mrs. Southcott of Medina.

Here is another letter that makes me happy," says Peterson of Buffalo. "One that I would rather have than a thousand dollars."

"Money isn't everything in this world. There is many a big-hearted, rich man who would give all he has on earth to be able to produce a remedy with such mighty healing power as Peterson's Ointment, to sell at all druggists for 60 cents a large box."

Read this letter, written February 14, 1918, by Mrs. Albert Southcott of Medina, N. Y. It seems like a miracle, but it is true, every word of it.

I know it because I get similar letters almost every day from people who have used my ointment for old sores, eczema and piles.

Is it any wonder I am happy!

Peterson Ointment Co., Inc., Buffalo, N. Y.

Dear Sirs:—

"I was an untold sufferer from an old running sore and ulcers. I had tried most everything without any relief from pain. A friend told me of your wonderful ointment and the first box took away the pain that had not left me before in years, and after using just nine dollars worth of the salve I am cured. The ulcer was 9 inches by 6¼ inches, is all healed and I can walk. Never, never will I be without Peterson's again.

"You may use this to recommend your ointment if you wish. I cannot say enough to praise it." Yours truly, Mrs. Albert Southcott, Medina, N. Y. Mail orders filled by Peterson Ointment Co., Inc., Buffalo, N. Y. Judge & Dolph, E. A. Medder, Enderle Drug Co. and Wolff-Wilson Drug Co. will supply you.

Remember, I make this statement after handling nearly a half-million cases of eczema and devoting 12 years of my life to its treatment. I don't care what all you have used nor how many doctors have told you that you could not be cured—all I ask is just a chance to prove my claims. If you write me TODAY I will send you a FREE TRIAL of mild, soothing, guaranteed treatment that will surely convince you as it has me. If you are disgusted and discouraged, I dare you to give me a chance to prove my claims. International MOTOR TRUCKS
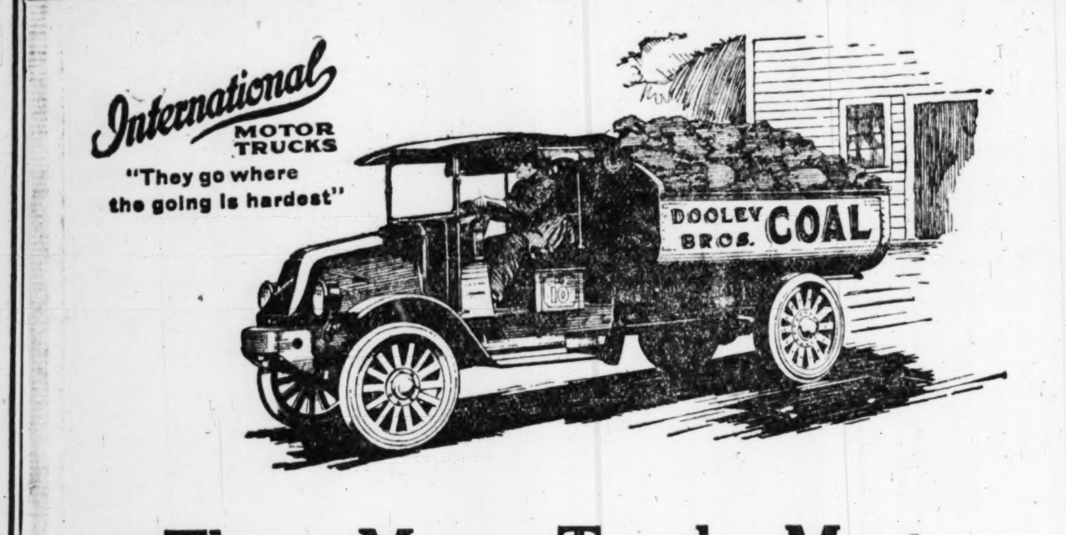
"They go where the going is hardest"



These Motor Trucks Must Be Ready for All Emergencies

WOULD YOU rather have a truck which will last the regular length of time under easy service, or one built to live the full period where traffic conditions are uniformly difficult the year around?

International Motor Trucks had to be built to endure the severest conditions, because our 92 branch houses are no respecters of territories. Their salesmen and dealers cover the mountains and deserts, swamps, forests and hills, high altitudes and low—wherever there is work to be done. For years they have demanded motor trucks that would work anywhere, at anything, and stand up under it.

The result is this: If your requirements are the most destructive to hauling equipment, here is the truck built to do your work as a regular thing. If your work is easy the International will give you two or three times the average life for other trucks. Thousands of trucks in service have proved this. Which would you rather have?

Prices 'Way Down

On June 11th, a substantial reduction was made in International Motor Truck prices, ranging from $900 on our Model 101 to $100 on our Model 21. At these new prices the International line is the lowest-priced line of quality trucks on the market. Will you permit some member of our organization to tell you more about International Motor Trucks and Service?

EVERY CAR OWNER WANTS TO RIDE ON GOOD CORD TIRES

Two Reasons Why Some Can't:

Because "Standard" Cord Tires are oversize, and a fabric tire user must buy at least two Cord Tires to run opposite to each other or car is out of balance.

Because "Standard" Cord Tires, being oversize, must sell for approximately 40% more than fabric.

We have overcome these two points by manufacturing and offering to our trade a complete line of Cord Tires made the same, size for size, as fabric tires. This line we sell under our registered trade-mark.

SECOND REDUCTION MADE ON CHEVROLETS

The second reduction within the past two months on all models of the 4-90 and F.B. Chevrolet passenger cars, effective at once, was announced Friday by the Chevrolet Motor Co.

The new reduction ranges from $10 on the 4-90 roadster to $310 on the F.B. coupe and sedan.

The new price of the 4-90 roadster and touring car is $625. The coupe and sedan have been reduced to $975. The former prices being $1155 and $1195 respectively.

The F.B. coupe and sedan have been reduced $310 and now lists at $1575, while the touring and roadster models which formerly sold at $1185 are now priced at $975, a $210 reduction.

PIERCE ARROW HEAD PREDICTS GOOD TIMES

Following the recent reduction in the price of a majority of cars and trucks and now that prices have again been stabilized to a great extent, George W. Mixter, president of the Pierce Arrow Motor Car Co. of Buffalo, N. Y., predicts a general revival in both the passenger and commercial car business.

This is proven by the steady continuation of our business, says Mr. Mixter, which is increasing in volume each week. During the past two months business has been on a upward climb and is now better than at any time this year.

An idea of the healthy condition that now exists in our organization can be seen by the large cash balance now in bank, which is one million and a quarter, and our current assets, which are two and four-tenths times our bank loans.

During the past month we have been consistently increasing our operating force and expect July will be closer to normal than any month this year.

Jordan Running Full Production.

In June the Jordan Motor Car Co. of Cleveland produced and shipped over 200 cars more than in any month in their history. May also was a peak month, showing a 26 per cent production gain over their best previous month.

FORDS RUN 34 MILES ON GALLON GASOLINE

Start Easy in Coldest Weather—Other Cars Show Proportionate Saving.

A new carburetor which cuts down gasoline consumption of any motor and reduces gasoline bills from one-third to one-half is the proud achievement of the Air-Friction Carburetor Co., 486 Madison St., Dayton, Ohio. This remarkable invention not only increases the power of all motors from 30 to 50 per cent, but enables every one to run slow on high gear. It also makes it easy to start a Ford or any other car in the coldest weather. You can use the very cheapest grade of gasoline or half gasoline and half kerosene and still get more power and more mileage than you now get from the highest test gasoline. Many Ford owners say they now get as high as 45 to 50 miles to a gallon of gasoline. So sure are the manufacturers of the immense saving their new carburetor will make that they offer to send it on 30 days' trial to every car owner. As it can be put on or taken off in a few minutes by anyone, all readers of this paper who want to try it should send their name, address and make of car to the manufacturers at once. They also want local agents, to whom they offer exceptionally large profits. Write them today.

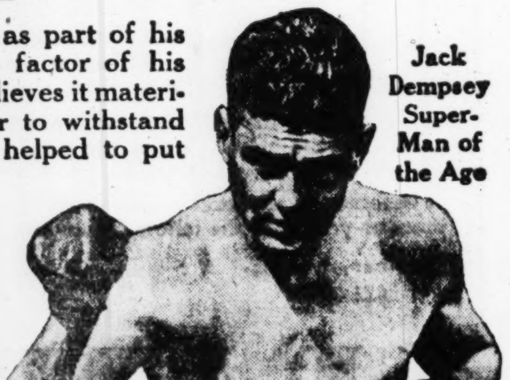
How I Won And How I Lost—Told By Dempsey and Carpentier

Dempsey says, Nuxated Iron used by him as part of his training was in his opinion an important factor of his phenomenal victory over Carpentier as he believes it materially helped to give him that mighty power to withstand Carpentier's hardest hits and that it also helped to put added punch behind his own blows.



Jack Dempsey Super-Man of the Age

JACK KEARNS,
Manager for Dempsey

Jack Kearns, Dempsey's Manager, says: "Knowing what Nuxated Iron had done for Dempsey in the Willard fight I strongly insisted that he use this wonderful strength and blood builder as a part of his training for the fight with Carpentier, and I believe it was an important factor in building up Dempsey's superhuman strength, power and endurance which were such important factors in winning his easy victory.

In the great fight Carpentier hit Dempsey with swift powerful blows that had the speed of gun fire. The yelling mob saw him land his famous right on Dempsey's jaw, yet Dempsey never flinched but relentlessly he tore after the Frenchman with his old ripping tearing, merciless power, landing terrific punches on head, body and jaw until Carpentier quickly weakened and then another powerful punch and again Dempsey showed himself to be the superman of the age—the greatest Champion the world has ever known.

The London Daily Mail, of July 4th, quotes Carpentier as saying "Dempsey is the most powerful man I have ever met in the ring. He is incredibly strong. To hit him is like hitting a mountain. To take his punches is like feeling the wallop of an avalanche. If I were asked what lead to my defeat, I would say the two tremendous blows Dempsey landed on the nape of my neck. I was not the same after that."

Dempsey says, "I feel I won through greater power, endurance, fighting skill and strategy. I took Carpentier's hardest blows on my chin and while they knocked me back they did not daze me in the least. I am sure Carpentier has not the endurance to stand the hard blows that I can stand, neither has he the strength to deliver them. I understand his methods of training are entirely different from mine. While I believe in scientific boxing still I never lose sight of the important fact that other things being equal it is the man who has the greatest strength, power and endurance that is going to win. In building up these three most important things there is nothing like filling your blood with good old strength-giving iron. In preparing for my great fight with Willard I used Nuxated Iron as part of my training, and I felt that it was such benefit to me that afterwards I used it, whenever I felt I was not quite up to the mark, to help restore my strength, energy and vigor; and when I commenced training for my fight with Carpentier, the supreme test of my life I again took Nuxated Iron and I believe it was an important factor in helping me to win so easily my great victory and I would advise people who are in a weakened condition to try this wonderful strength and blood builder."

When a man so strong and physically fit as Dempsey uses Nuxated Iron, how much more important is it that thousands and thousands of others who so greatly lack physical strength, power and endurance, should avail themselves of its benefits. Nuxated Iron not only contains strengthening organic iron for the purpose of enriching the blood but it also contains the principal chemical constituents of active living nerve force in a form which most nearly resembles that in the brain and nerve cells of man so that Nuxated Iron may be said to be both a blood and a nerve food. If through worry, overwork, constant nervous strain, grief or too much excitement your blood has become impoverished and your nerve force exhausted, you will find that a short course of Nuxated Iron will often produce most surprising results. It has been used and highly endorsed by former United States Senators, Members of Congress, Judges of United States Courts and many prominent people; even Rome having highly endorsed its use. It is now being used by over 4,000,000 people annually.

MANUFACTURERS' NOTE: From the above article the reader must not infer that Nuxated Iron will make a giant in strength or a world's champion out of the average man; but Nuxated Iron will greatly increase the red blood corpuscles and by so doing increase your strength, power and endurance, and supply increased nerve force to the starving nerve cells. You can try Nuxated Iron on our absolute guarantee that if it does not increase your strength, power and endurance in two week's time and give you perfectly satisfactory results your money will be refunded. Beware of substitutes. Look for the word "Nuxated" on every package. Nuxated Iron for the blood and nerves is sold by all druggists.

NUXATED IRON ENRICHES THE BLOOD-GIVES YOU NEW STRENGTH AND ENERGY

OVERLAND'S VICTORY AIDS AUTO INDUSTRY

The injunction granted the Willys-Overland company against Akron-Overland Tire Co. in the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for the Third District, sitting in Philadelphia, has established a point of law which will have a far reaching effect in the future values of automobile trade-names, according to legal council who have reviewed the decision.

Shortly after the Akron-Overland Tire Co. sought to sell stock in their organization Willys-Overland company asked an injunction from the United States District Court for the District of Delaware. This court granted the injunction which now has been upheld by the Court of Appeals. Under this decision Akron-Overland is restrained from using the name Overland in their corporate title, on their stock certificates, or in any form in connection with their product.

The court held "that the use of the word 'Overland' by the defandant * * * is calculated to lead the public to believe that the goods, stocks and securities of the defendants are the goods, stocks and securities of the complainant."

The court also held "that it necessarily followed that when the defendant company sought to describe also its ventures by the trade-name 'Overland,' that it was calculated to confuse the public mind and enabled the defendant to draw to itself, and to draw from the plaintiff, the exclusive trade-name and trade good will which the plaintiff, by a business course of years, had given to the word 'Overland' in connection with the automobile industry."

M'NIECE-HILL TO CONTINUE EXHIBIT

The special exhibit of the cut open chassis of the new Wills Saint-Clair car along with several complete models which has been held in the showrooms of the McNiece-Hill Motor Co., the local distributor the past week will be continued for several more days.

The display of the chassis shows the overhead valves and cam shaft drive, a new design in motor car construction, as well as the motor, which embodies a dozen basic patents held by C. Harold Wills.

The car is constructed of Molybdenum steel, giving it a maximum degree of strength and sturdiness, combined with light weight. As a result, unusually low gasoline consumption and reduced wear on tires is claimed by the factory.

Magnetically controlled headlights and a light to illuminate the rear of the machine when backing up are some of the many refinements incorporated in the Wills-St. Clair. The factories are in Marysville, Mich., the city which has been created as a name for the new car, and its builders.

STORY OF PRICES TOLD BY CHARTS

Anyone interested in prices will find some unusual disclosures in a set of charts just released to the Tate Motor, Inc., by Dodge Brothers.

The charts are not confined to automobile prices, as might be assumed from the fact that they were issued by an automobile manufacturer, but show clearly and accurately the remarkable variations in the cost of hundreds of commodities over a period of seven and eight years.

If, by any chance, your salary has been recently reduced and you are inclined to grumble, try the simple experiment of comparing your present salary with your salary in June, 1920, when the peak was reached in the prices of most commodities. If you are making as much now as you were then, you are still 41 per cent ahead of the game, according to one of the charts, which shows a decline of 41 per cent from June, 1920, to June, 1921, in the prices of 321 commodities. If you have been reduced 10 per cent, you are 31 per cent ahead.

NEW DISTRIBUTOR FOR ALEMITE LUBRICATOR

Announcement of a change of ownership and personnel of the Alemite Lubricator Co. of St. Louis, distributor for the Bassick Manufacturing Co. product for Eastern Missouri and Southern Illinois was made Friday by the new officials.

The new company, of which F. H. Kentnor is president and J. W. Skelton sales manager, will continue the business under the same name and will occupy the same quarters at 2822-24 Locust street.

The Alemite lubricating system has recently been adopted as standard equipment by many of the leading makes of cars, trucks and tractors. With this system it is claimed you are able to lubricate your car thoroughly in from 15 to 25 minutes. Alemite fittings are now made up in sets for individual cars, trucks and tractors to take the place of all types of grease or oil cups.

The local company will also distribute the gassolator, Shur-Lite cigar lighter and Bassick graphite and penetrating oil for springs.

FRANKLIN'S NEW RECORDS.

All previous records for single-day shipments of Franklin cars was broken June 30 when the Franklin Automobile Co. of Syracuse, N. Y., sent out 138 cars to their dealers throughout the country. The former high mark was 110 cars, which left the Franklin factory on Dec. 31 last.

The factory also reports a record delivery of 132 cars by their dealers to customers on July 1, and a new month record for June, when 1031 cars were shipped by the factory. This exceeds the number shipped in June of last year by four.

Automobiles Are Ferocious.

Says a motor traffic magistrate: "Automobiles are ferocious animals." Bet he caught his judicial finger between the chain and the sprocket teeth and forthwith imagined the darn thing had bitten him.

Moon Sales Manager Returns. Mr. F. H. Rengers, general sales manager of the Moon Motor Car Co., has just returned to St. Louis from a four weeks' business trip through the East. Mr. Rengers made the trip in a 6-48 Moon touring car and traveled approximately 2850 miles, visiting 14 States and two or three points in Canada.

HIGHWAY REGULATIONS CLOSELY OBSERVED

With many states adopting legislation regulating truck tire equipment and carrying heavy loads on public highways, authorities are becoming increasingly active in checking up to see that load limitations are not exceeded.

Under the plan first used by most states having such regulations, motor cycle officers when they suspected an operator to be piloting a load above the maximum, hailed the offender and all proceeded to a public scales. In the majority of cases the truck was not overloaded and the tire equipment was of the correct size and type. So, considerable inconvenience, not to say expense, was unnecessarily involved.

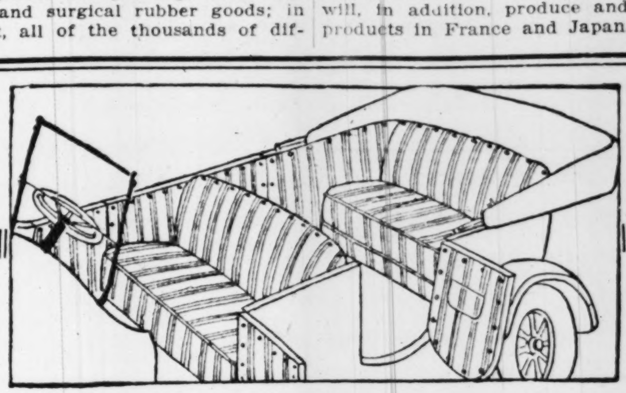
According to a truck tire official of the Firestone Tire and Rubber Co., there is now coming into general use by these states an ingenious and most practical machine known as the loadometer, which is a combined jack and weight indicator. Placing one beneath each axle the truck and load is lifted clear of the road and at the same time weighed. When this operation is completed the type and size of tire is checked up to see if same comes within the State law for the weight recorded.

These tests not only enable the authorities to enforce the law and assist in its preservation, but they bring out the interesting fact that truck tire dealers are demonstrating their qualification as transportation experts, for instances are rare, if not non-existent, where the truck's tire equipment has been found out of accord with State regulations, or the wrong size and type, according to the standard of transportation engineers.

GOODRICH ORGANIZES FOREIGN CORPORATION

The announcement of the organization of the International B. F. Goodrich Corporation marks another widening of the field of activities of the big rubber manufacturing concern which recently rounded out its fiftieth year.

The new company, which has just been incorporated under the laws of New York with an authorized capital of $10,000,000, will represent the B. F. Goodrich Co. in all foreign countries except Canada. It will take over the parent company's interest in factories (with selling organizations) located in France and Japan, as well as its selling subsidiaries in Great Britain, Italy, Spain, South Africa, Straits Settlements and Porto Rico, acquiring distributors in all foreign countries. It will handle all the products of the parent company—tires for automobiles, trucks, motor cycles and bicycles; rubber footwear; conveyor and drive belts, hose and packing, water bottles and surgical rubber goods; in short, all of the thousands of different products now being made by the B. F. Goodrich Co. at the Akron, O., factories will come within the scope of the new company which will, in addition, produce and sell products in France and Japan.



Why Seat Covers Are Essential

Because complete enjoyment of Summer motoring depends so largely upon convenience and personal comfort, the use of Seat Covers has grown in amazing fashion.

For Seat Covers eliminate the necessity of sitting on hot, sticky, leather cushions, equally uncomfortable and distasteful. From a utility standpoint they are fully as necessary, in protecting light and dainty dresses from grimy upholstery.

Our "tailored" Seat Covers are fashioned to fit the individual car, and in their fresh, bright colorings and trim, snug appearance, add a crisp look of smartness and refinement. Prices are governed by fabric qualities, the workmanship being uniform, and in each case based on a fair margin of profit.

The new Hupmobile price of $1485 saves you exactly $200 on the touring car, for example.

That is important; but the greater value which you buy at this saving is much more important.

By greater value we mean the low repair costs, the wonderful economy, the ability to keep going, the long life, and the high resale prices for which the Hupmobile is so well known.

You Can Now Get Just the Visor you've been wanting

Most automobile visors are attached to a car in somewhat the same way that some people tie a suitcase to the running board.

They want the suitcase and you want a visor. But nobody likes the appearance of either.

The visor you have been wanting, but could not find, at last is available—the Lane Auto Visor.

By conforming to the good looks of a car in lines, finish and every way, the Lane Auto Visor is a real part of a car, and not like an awning that has been arbitrarily stuck on.

In materials and workmanship, the Lane Auto Visor is equal to any part of your car.

The visor curtain is sun and weather-proof top material—the quality used on Packard and Cadillac type cars. All metal parts are black enameled, baked on like your fenders.

The visor can be put on any make of car, open or closed model, in ten minutes—attached to the stanchions of the windshield with metal grips which make it absolutely firm and secure.

Once used, it becomes as essential as lamps. It keeps the sun out of your eyes and it protects you from the fellow who won't turn on his "dimmers."

Open car models, $11.00 Closed car models, $12.00

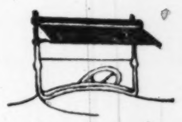
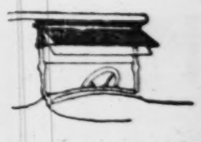
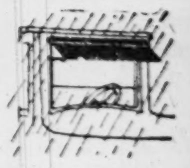
You roll the curtain up, like you would a window shade, and it is as inconspicuous as the part of the top that projects over the windshield.



With the top of an open car put back, the visor remains on the windshield as serviceable as ever.



You can open the windshield for ventilation with the visor up or down and the visor is never in the way.



Just as the visor keeps the sun out of your eyes, it keeps the glass of the windshield clear in a rain.

MOTORISTS TO BE GIVEN ROAD AID

The West is looking to the greater comfort of the auto traveler and his family as they journey from the East and the South to the national parks. Aside from indorsing the fundamental principles embodied in the Townsend bill pending in Congress for a Federal system of highways, the National Park-to-Park Highway Association took a step in that direction recently in its Salt Lake City convention.

The 150 delegates from 11 Western States declared a willingness toward supporting the association's desire to co-operate with interstate and transcontinental highways, based on mutual benefit and advantage to road associations generally.

This means that travelers using any one of a dozen transcontinental highways, traveling overland, will be informed beforehand as to just where the cross-country highways touch or intersect the master circle highway linking the national parks of the West. This information is now being furnished free by the National Park-to-Park Highway Association, 1608 Broadway, Denver, Colo. A road guide just issued also gives information concerning free auto camps.

JAPAN INTRODUCES NOVEL SALES PLAN

Speaking of the community idea, consider the Japanese concern that is doing business on a basis of selling an Oakland six touring car to 200 Japanese.

The company was organized in Japan with an initial capital of $150,000. The initial purchase of the company was 55 Oakland six touring cars, which have been sold to 11,000 Japanese. Strange as it sounds, here is the plan under which the company operates.

Each stockholder in the company pays $10 and in return receives a one year's interest in an Oakland six touring car. The year has been divided into days and hours and a specific time allotted for each stockholder to take a ride. For example, a man is notified that his time will be from, say every other Thursday from 11 o'clock to 3. The plan has been carried out with the 200 owners of each car so that four people go out with the driver during the hours allotted to them, so many times each year, at a total cost of $10 each. This arrangement nets the Japanese concern $2000 for each car sold and gives the Jap automobile enthusiasts the satisfaction of being a car owner in return for the very modest investment of $10.

SOCIABILITY TOUR TO START FROM DULUTH

Automobilists of Minnesota, North Dakota and Montana are preparing for the longest and most important joint tour they have ever undertaken—a sociability run beginning at Duluth, Minn., July 25, and concluding at Glacier National Park.

The trip will be made over the Theodore Roosevelt International highway route through these States, officials of that organization having been instrumental in fostering the proposition.

Nearly 200 motorists will make the start from Duluth, and by the time the party reaches Glacier Park it is expected there will be 300 or more in the run.

This tour will be a potent factor in cementing better relations between the various communities, in addition to boosting the highway and motoring generally, in the belief of the Roosevelt International Highway Association officials who last week conducted a pathfinding trip.

Every city, town and hamlet is enthusiastically behind the tour, and receptions, good roads rallies, banquets, parties and other festivities will mark every stop. Many improvements are being made over the Roosevelt highway, especially in Minnesota, under the new Babcock trunk highway system.

Holmes in New Quarters.

The Holmes Motor, Inc., distributors of the Holmes air-cooled car, are now located in their new and larger sales and service quarters at 2926-28 Locust street. The building was formerly occupied by the Standard Automotive Corporation.

Don't Be a Road Hog.

There is nothing so annoying and discouraging to the man who is learning to drive his new car than the "road hog." And he is equally disgusting to the experienced motorist. And road hogs are not confined to the ranks of passenger car drivers; truck drivers are often guilty of hogging the road. Courtesy is one of the first requisites of car driving. Give the other fellow plenty of room—it may keep him out of the ditch.

The Motor Car the Thing.

Few inventions have done more for the health of the nation than the automobile. There's nothing more invigorating than a brisk spin in the fresh, germ-proof air. Whether used as a convenience, for vacation tours, for day outings and picnics, or for motor camping, the automobile offers a change of scene, mental rest and relaxation and a wholesome effect on the eyes. Even fatigue from driving is a good, healthy, tired condition.

Danger of Short Circuits.

There is frequently danger of short circuits in the battery because of the fact that one of the terminals is located near the metal handle used for lifting the battery. To obviate this danger it is only necessary to slip a short length of rubber tubing over the wire at the point where the contact might be made. To do this the tubing should be slit lengthwise, slipped over the wire and taped firmly into place.

Tires Mistreated in Winter.

Bang! You hear this sharp signal of a tire blowout often at this season of the year on country roads. Where traffic is heavy it's sometimes as difficult to find a vacant space for repairs at the roadside as it is to "spot" a parking space on the city streets. In the early summer, tires that have been mistreated during the winter months develop structural weaknesses and the first long trip usually causes them to "pop." A spare tire is a wise precaution.—Goodrich Topics.

The Most Beautiful Car in America

A Safe, Sane Investment

Our five passenger "Glenbrook" is a new 1921 car—not an old model re-painted and re-christened for the selling season. Keep that point in mind please. It amounts to a positive guarantee against sudden and unwarranted depreciation.

Furthermore, the price has been reduced to $1635. You have only to look at the car to realize that no greater value was ever offered before, during or after the war. In fact, no such car was possible until 1921.

These are hard facts, and they are very important. Give them a little consideration and you will understand why the "Glenbrook" is so universally regarded as a safe, sane and profitable investment.

Statistics show that 75 per cent of the pedestrians knocked down and killed or injured by autos last year were hit when crossing the street at some point other than a street intersection. If you must "jay-walk," keep your eyes open and don't blame the motorist if he hits you.

STOVE COMPANY'S PLANT BOUGHT BY COTTON CONCERN

Firm Affiliated With United Drug Company Acquires Property at Valley Park It Now Occupies.

BUILDING ACTIVITY IN FALL PROBABLE

Forecast Indicates Money Will Be Plentiful and Sales of Lots Lead to Belief Homes Will Be Built.

By Berry Moore.

The Absorbent Cotton Co. of America has purchased the plant of the Wilson Stove and Range Co., at Valley Park. The purchase includes 15 acres situated at the corner of Marshall avenue and Fifth street. The transaction was effected by the switch property department of the Mercantile Trust Co., of which John F. Schopflin is manager. The price paid was not disclosed.

The Absorbent Cotton Co. is a subsidiary of the United Drug Co., which recently erected a $3,000,000 plant on King's highway, just north of Natural Bridge avenue. The Absorbent Cotton Co. manufactures medicated cotton exclusively for the United Drug Co., and had occupied the plant at Valley Park under a lease.

The transaction is noteworthy as exemplifying the success of the United Drug Co.'s enterprise in St. Louis. Construction of the King's highway plant was financed by the Mercantile Trust Co.

The hot weather, together with the fact that many realtors were either at the convention of the National Association of Real Estate Boards held in Chicago, or had gone to summer resorts, had the effect of reducing the week's operation in realty circles.

Trading on Small Scale Brisk.

Trading on a small scale doubtless will flourish for the remainder of the summer, owing to highly favorable conditions affecting real estate, but nothing important is expected to transpire before fall, or until the moneyed contingent has returned to the city. Then business conditions, indications are, will have greatly improved. The last quarter of the year is going to be marked by many substantial operations, judging from the number of plans in architects' offices, although the majority of them are as yet in the abstract.

There are numerous projects for office and mercantile buildings, hotels and apartments, several of which are contemplated on a pretentious scale. Some of these were planned before, but the requisite capital was not forthcoming for them, as result of the money stringency. With the supply of money in larger volume, the indications are that many of them now will be carried to a successful conclusion.

The regular supply of money for such purposes in St. Louis is to be supplemented, it is said, by loans from life insurance companies, which are making substantial advances for construction in other large cities. The Prudential Insurance Co. is now making building loans in 43 cities and is seriously considering St. Louis in this respect, especially in view of the greatly improved real estate situation here, but the money of this company will be available for home building rather than for business projects, though it will not be averse to lending its surplus for the latter, provided they are on a sound basis. The outlook is that by fall there will be no deatrh of money for construction.

Rents Remain Firm.

The high rentals which now prevail, as a result of the cessation in construction, constitute the vertebrae of the stronger real estate situation in both the residential and business districts. While rentals are expected to continue firm, no advances in them are contemplated, except in instances in which increases have been precluded by leases. At least agents are not advocating further advances; owing to adverse business conditions, notwithstanding the fact that the demand eclipses the supply, but they have not heretofore always been able to control the desire of landlords.

Edward L. Bakewell reports sales of apartments for the week aggregating $200,000. The high rentals have precipitated a demand for apartment buildings and flats for investment and speculation, according to Bakewell. Many buildings of these types can be bought at relatively low prices, in view of their higher revenue power, he declares.

A salient feature of the movement is the acquisition of lots in the residential districts in all parts of the city, according to Everett Davis, president of the Davis Realty Development Co., one of the longest established companies in the suburban field in St. Louis. Thus the inference is that much home building is under consideration.

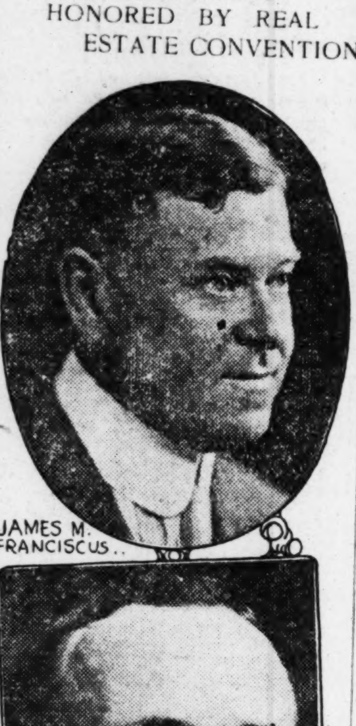
According to Davis, more than $80,000 worth of lots in Maryland terrace were sold by his company during the last week. Most of the lots have been purchased for improvement as homes, which will be of the same high character as those erected by Davis in this subdivision in compliance with the restrictons.

This addition sets a high standard appealing both to the utilitarian and esthetic, the majority of houses erected here reflecting the ideas of Davis and the best architects with whom he has colaborated in evolving the plans.

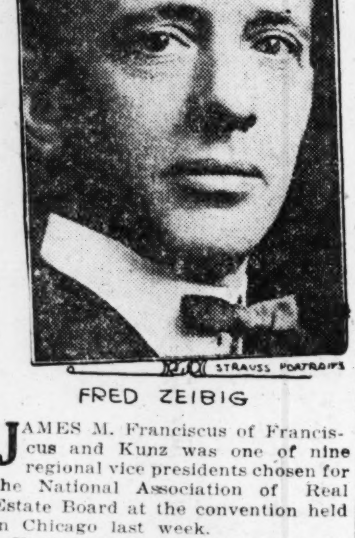
J. I. Epstein has just completed three six-room houses on Pershing avenue in Ames place, which are both attractive and unique in that they virtually constitute an apartment building on two floors. The houses contain three rooms on the first floor, while there are three rooms and a bath room on the second floor.

The Anderson-Stocke-Buermann Real Estate Co. is completing some very attractive 4-room apartments on Kingsbury boulevard in Ames place. Also a number in North Parkview, notably at Cates and East Gate avenue.

TWO ST. LOUISANS HONORED BY REAL ESTATE CONVENTION



JAMES M. FRANCISCUS.



FRED ZEIBIG

James M. Franciscus of Franciscus and Kunz was one of nine regional vice presidents chosen for the National Association of Real Estate Board at the convention held in Chicago last week.

Fred G. Zeibig of Cornet & Zeibig was elected by the St. Louis Real Estate Exchange to represent it on the National Executive Committee.

San Francisco was selected as the 1922 convention city. Cleveland and El Paso realtors who had made strenuous bids for the next conclave seconded the selection of the California city when convention sentiment seemed unanimously in favor of it.

The convention adjourned late yesterday after breaking all previous records for business gatherings.

Irving B. Hiett of Toledo, O., will guide the destinies of the association until the next convention. He will succeed Fred E. Taylor of Portland, Ore., as president. The eight other regional vice presidents elected are: J. W. Work, Evanston; Robert Jamison Jr., Birmingham, Ala.; John T. Sloan, New Haven, Conn.; Ira High, Boise, Ia.; George C. Keller, Flint, Mich.; Robert D. Clow, Jr., Camden, N. J.; A. Dean Parker, Toronto, Ont., and Albert Kearn, San Francisco. Tom Ingersoll was renamed national secretary of the association. Ivan O. Ackley of the Chicago Real Estate Board was chosen chairman of the Finance Committee and Hiram S. Cody national treasurer.

There were 4373 delegates in attendance, 20 per cent of whom were women.

Ben M. Lowenstein has closed the sale of the Gignoux home, 3664 Page boulevard, a large, double 14-room residence with center halls and stairways, which originally cost nearly $30,000 to build. The building was erected by the late Alexis Gignoux, a former well-known citizen, who was one of the original parishioners of the St. Alphonsus Rock Church.

In those days—about 30 years ago—Grand avenue was the fashionable West End thoroughfare and promenade. On Sunday afternoons it was to St. Louis what Lindell boulevard, King's highway and Union boulevard are today.

In the same block with the former Gignoux home is the former Dunker mansion which was recently enlarged and improved at considerable cost and converted into a commodious community center building.

The purchaser, J. E. Hodges, contemplates converting the home into an apartment building when construction costs justify the improvement.

All partiese to the transaction were represented by Ben M. Lowenstein.

T. C.—The Children's Crusade refers to that disastrous expedition undertaken in 1212 by large bands of children from France and Germany, for the purpose of recovering the Holy Sepulchre. The movement was begun by itinerant priests, who promised the children divine assistance and miraculous intervention. History states that 50,000 boys and girls took part in the fatal journey. The German division, after great hardship, reached Genoa, where, disappointed in the expected miracle of a dry path through the sea, they dispersed, some remaining and being absorbed in Genoese families, others with difficulty making their way home. The French band, after similar experiences, reached Marseilles, where some traders offered to take them free of charge in seven ships to the Holy Land. Two of the vessels foundered on the voyage, two others reached Alexandria, where the traders sold all of the children into slavery, and none were returned.

Can You Measure Up— For a Real Position?

If you are self-satisfied, lazy, lack initiative, tact, courage, determination, cannot think or act, and have a wishbone instead of a backbone, and are diseased with fear, then don't use up your time or mine in asking for an interview.

BUT

If you are anxious to get ahead, and have the qualifications necessary to a successful business life, and are as big as you think you are, then I would be glad to talk the matter over with you. The opportunity is along sales lines, but it is not absolutely essential that you must have had sales experience.

If you are a REAL MAN, then investigate by calling 1303 Boatmen's Bank Bldg., asking for Mr. Halverstadt.

Jimmie Newell Says:
"That's Like Giving 'Em Away!"

The General Sales Manager of the Newell Motor Car Company walked into President Jimmie Newell's office and said to him: "If we continue to sell as many Stearns and Paige cars as we have in the past two weeks, we will have to sell the cars we trade in much faster."

Jimmie said: "Well, go ahead and sell them."

The General Manager said: "We ought to reduce the price so they will move quickly."

Jimmie said: "Make up your figures and show them to me."

The General Manager walked out—slashed the prices—brought the list back and showed it to Jimmie, and Jimmie said:

"THAT'S LIKE GIVING THEM AWAY"

Below in this very advertisement you will find Reconditioned Cars priced in such fashion that, as Jimmie Newell says, "It's like giving them away!"

First come—first served—on the big lot at the Northeast Corner Jefferson and Locust.

Reconditioned Cars—Prices Slashed

Buick, 1919 Coupe	$1400
Buick 1918 Roadster, with Winter top	900
Cadillac Phaeton 55	1700
Cadillac Model 53, 5-passenger	600
Chandler Dispatch, 1918	1200
Chevrolet, Baby Grand Roadster, 1919	700

Oakland, 1919, Roadster	600
Overland 4, Sedan, 1920	700
Haynes, 1915, Touring	400

Look at this motor and compare this car with a new Haynes. If you are in the market for a Haynes car do not fail to look at this one.

Packard Twin 6, first series, Sedan	$1400
Paige, Glenbrook, 1920 (Original cost $2100)	1300
Paige Roadster, 1920 (Original cost $2100)	1400

Stearns Coupe, 1918 (Original cost $3000)	1500
Stearns Chummy Roadster, 1919 (Original cost $2100)	900
White Touring, 1916	1000
Hudson Cabriolet, 1917	1600

This car has been run only 6000 miles. Formerly owned by Governor Gardner. Not used very much by the Governor during his administration; therefore, a bargain.

In looking over the above list of cars you cannot really appreciate what they are. The age of most of these cars, as far as the year is concerned, does not do them justice.

If you are in the market for a reconditioned automobile, by all means look at our cars.

We will give you the name of the former owner and you can satisfy yourself as to the condition of the car.

Bring a mechanic or anybody you choose to help you buy, because the more you know of automobiles, the better our values will appear to you.

Our list of reconditioned cars consists of: Buick, Cadillac, Chandler, Chevrolet, Dodge, Detroit Electric, Ford, Haynes, Hudson, Marmon, Oakland, Overland, Packard, Paige, Stearns, Stutz, Studebaker, Westcott.

New photograph of Sigrid Holmquist, motion picture star from the land of Scandinavia, now in this country.

YOUNG LOCHINVAR

As Scott would have written it in these days when the movies are out after rough stuff

By JAMES J. MONTAGUE

ILLUSTRATIONS by LEMEN

ONE.

Oh, Young Lochinvar galloped out of the West
With a couple of pistols tucked under his vest,
And aside from these playthings, he weapons had none
He rode all unarmed, and he rode all alone,
Till he got to Tucson, where he switched to a car
That waited the coming of Young Lochinvar.

TWO.

He stepped on the gas, as he sped o'er the plains,
He shot past coyotes and passenger trains,
But ere he alighted at Netherby's Creek,
The Jane that he longed for was pledged to a hick
For a laggard in love and a dastard in war
Was to wed the fair Ellen, of Old Lochinvar.

THREE.

So boldly he entered Jake Netherby's shack
That the guests and the parson were taken aback,
Then spoke the old father, somewhat in a huff
"You can't put this over! Your work is too rough.
If you've come here for red eye, step into the bar
You'll feel more at home there, John J. Lochinvar!"

FOUR.

"I've come for your daughter, and also my rights!"
Young Lochinvar cried, as he shot out the lights.
"But just give me a drink, and arrange that I'm fed,
And I'll peaceably stand here and watch the gal wed.
There are Janes on the plains better looking by far
That would wed me tomorrow," said Young Lochinvar.

FIVE.

He stood by the wall, and he glanced at the bride,
Who gave him the office, and tenderly sighed
He went to the bar and poured in a long shot
And murmured "Doggone her! I love her a lot!"
Then he pulled out a pistol and bumped off her pa.
A hot-tempered roughneck was Young Lochinvar

SIX.

And while the poor bridegroom still stood by the door
And muttered, "Such scenes are a terrible bore!"
The newcomer shouldered the cloak of the bride,
Well knowing the fact that the gal was inside.
And ran through the gate, which was gaping ajar
And he never came back, did the Young Lochinvar

SEVEN.

There was mounting of nags by old Netherby's hands,
For they chuck a big bluff in those wild western lands.
But did they tag after our friend? They did not!
For ranch hands dislike very much to be shot.

To Phoenix Young Lochinvar rode with the gal,
And married her over at Red Eye Corral.
So daring in love and so deadly in war,
Have ye e'er heard of hero like Young Lochinvar?

There IS an Area in the Brain Which Decides Your Morals, Scientists Assert

Century-old dispute settled, say physicians who cite cases in which wounds in forehead have transformed normal men into crooks, vagrants and profligates—"Moral center" said to be situated over right eyebrow in right-handed persons, and vice versa—Difference in convolutions too delicate to be detected by microscope, but may determine whether one is Florence Nightingale or Lucrezia Borgia -o- -o- -o-

ST. FRANCIS OF ASSISI renounced the world, modeled his life as nearly as possible upon that of Jesus of Nazareth and became famous as a paragon of holiness. Cesare Borgia murdered his brother, dealt in poison and the strangler's cord, and became famous as a monster of iniquity. Light and darkness could not be more opposed than these two characters. Yet, science now informs us, the difference between a saint and a criminal is merely a matter of a little cluster of cells at the front of the brain.

That certain regions of the brain preside over divers functions of the body has long been known. There are centers definitely charted which control the senses of vision, sound, smell, touch and taste; there are other centers which animate the various muscles of the body.

But even scientists have hesitated to believe that in the material brain there is a specific group of cells which determines automatically whether an individual is upright or wicked. The moral sense has been acclaimed by philosophers as the highest faculty of man; theologians commemorate it as the surest evidence of kinship between man and his Creator. Who would not have natural scruples against affirming that the distinction between a Florence Nightingale and an Eva Catherine Kaber is simply one of cell structure—a difference which the most powerful microscope could not detect?

But now comes an announcement not only that a "moral center" exists in the brain, but that its definite position has been determined. This "cortical region for the control of morals" is situated in the right frontal lobe of the brain in right-handed persons, and in the left frontal lobe of those who are left-handed.

It is no charlatan, no phrenologist, who makes these assertions. It is Dr. William Browning, a distinguished neurologist and author of New York, who, in gathering his data, had the assistance of many other reputable physicians. His discoveries were not blazoned in the lay press, but saw the light in the columns of that conservative and professional journal, the Medical Record, of New York.

He presents a formidable array of cases in which persons, formerly well-behaved, turned into rogues, thieves, forgers and profligates after injuries due to external violence had been inflicted on one side of the forehead or the other. He has no hesitation in propounding the following conclusions:

1. Brain injury can invalidate moral control, and be practically a cause of criminality.
2. There is a limited region in the brain which acts as controller of the individual's morals.
3. This center is situated wholly in one or the other of the two frontal lobes.
4. It is always on the so-called silent or recessive side of the brain; that is, in the right frontal lobe if the person is right-handed, and vice versa.
5. The center, in its action, is inhibitive.
6. Destruction or impairment of this center leaves the individual morally unguided.
7. This center also controls certain restraining mental attributes, such as fear, conservatism and the humane instincts.

Dr. Browning, with daring logic, proceeds to the conclusion that, in cases of such injuries, the surgeon's knife may prove more efficacious in saving souls than moral teachings and sermons, though these, he admits, still have their uses. This, he says, "becomes an inviting field for the neuro-surgeon; if there is a chance that the lesion is relievable, it is worth taking. Surgical approach is easy, and there is little to lose, whatever the result."

One of the most striking cases adduced by Dr. Browning is that of a man who was graduated high in his class from one of the best technical schools in the country, and then entered the army, where he made an admirable record as an officer.

While on service in the Philippines, he suffered a severe wound from a bolo on the right side of the forehead, just above the eye. The thrust penetrated the right lower frontal convolutions of the brain. Physically he made an excellent recovery. But from the time of the injury he became morally transformed.

He was arrested for forgery and placed in a sanitarium. He was released, and was again arrested for forgery. This time he was sent to the State Reformatory at Elmira, N. Y. On being set free, he drifted from his family connections and was arrested for impersonating an officer. All trace of him has been lost for some years.

Another instance of complete moral collapse following an injury to the brain is contributed by Dr. John L. McCumber, of Brooklyn, former superintendent of the King's Park Asylum. Until reaching his thirty-third year, James McB., a truck driver, worked steadily, was sober and honest, and provided well for his wife and four children.

But in that year his truck struck a hole in the pavement and he was thrown on his head, striking a stone. He was found to have suffered a depressed fracture of the right frontal bone.

After this injury he gave himself up to drink, which previously he had been unable to tolerate, worked irregularly or not at all, and neglected his family. He was arrested several times for fighting, intoxication and theft, and became an incorrigible liar. Soon, he descended into the lowest sort of vagrant, deserted his family and disappeared.

Another case is that of an individual who was normal in morals, habits and disposition until his twenty-second year, when he accidentally shot himself with a revolver. The bullet entered his head at the tip of the nose, ranged upward behind the forehead and emerged through the upper right side of the occipital bone. Physically, the result was paralysis of the left side of the body; morally, he turned liar, thief, forger. Because of these criminal tendencies he was committed to an asylum for the insane.

A peculiar feature of these cases is that, although the moral faculties are destroyed, the intellectual ones remain unimpaired. In the case described immediately above, the patient was found to have an excellent memory, to talk freely and readily and to possess no delusions or hallucinations.

In several of the cases, lesions of the brain were caused by instrumental injuries at birth. Such is that of a youth, heir to a large fortune, and the son of a man of exceptional integrity. This youth, before he was 21, in one year ran up bills amounting to $14,000; he thought nothing of buying $20 worth of candy a night for the nurses of a training school his father was interested in. He became "the most picturesque liar in the world" and a frantic profligate. At the same time he had fine manners and was excellent company. He was a "wonderfully glib talker," who "could sell anything," but would put the money from the sales in his own pocket.

Another lad, similarly injured at birth, developed a strain of recklessness. When 14 years old, he wagered that he could drive up Broadway in New York at 60 miles an hour without being arrested. He did it and won the bet, by bribing a fireman to let him drive a fire department automobile. He stole valuables from his father and mother and ran up extravagant bills. "Only environment and careful guarding," states the report, "keep him from being a criminal." He is described as intelligent and gentlemanly, with very polished manners.

Dr. Browning tells of a girl, with healthy parents and three normal sisters, who, at the age of 4, was struck on the left side of the forehead with a brick. She is left-handed. At the age of 17 her delinquency became so incorrigible that she was committed to a correctional institution which could not keep her because of her violent outbreaks of temper.

She was placed under observation, but was found to be in no way insane, so that she was transferred to the neurological service. "An operation," the report concludes, "would doubtless show that there is a scar tissue underneath the forehead which acts as a source of irritation."

A boy, when eight years old, fell against a gate, injuring his left forehead. He is extremely left-handed. His parents and a brother two years older are persons of sterling character. He began stealing money at home. He stole from the purse of a seamstress. He stole money from a man so that he could play pool, and then, to clear himself, stole a ring from his mother. He went home drunk at the age of 15, and became such a liar that no one would believe a word he said. Yet he has "the sweetest and most lovable disposition," and is very penitent over the wrongs he does.

"The suggestion," says Dr. Browning, "that there is such a thing as a moral center in the cerebral cortex brings up an echo of many disputes in which a majority of psychiatric and psychologic lights have shown conclusively (at least in their own estimation) that not only is it nonexistent, but that is is quite out of the realm of conceivable possibility. * * * But the cases cited are evidence that there is a limited region in the brain which acts as controller of the individual's morals.

"The center may be imperfect through faulty development, accident at birth or injury in later life. It is doubtless enfeebled by lack of use."

Dr. Browning holds that impulses to wrong deeds do not rise in the "moral center," but are conceived and executed in the other hemisphere of the brain. The "moral center," when normal, acts as a restraining force. This, he says, "shows the control of morals to be identical with the well-recognized form of nerve-function called inhibition."

Therefore, crime and sin, in modern scientific phrase, will be newly defined as "aberrations due to loss of normal psychic inhibition."

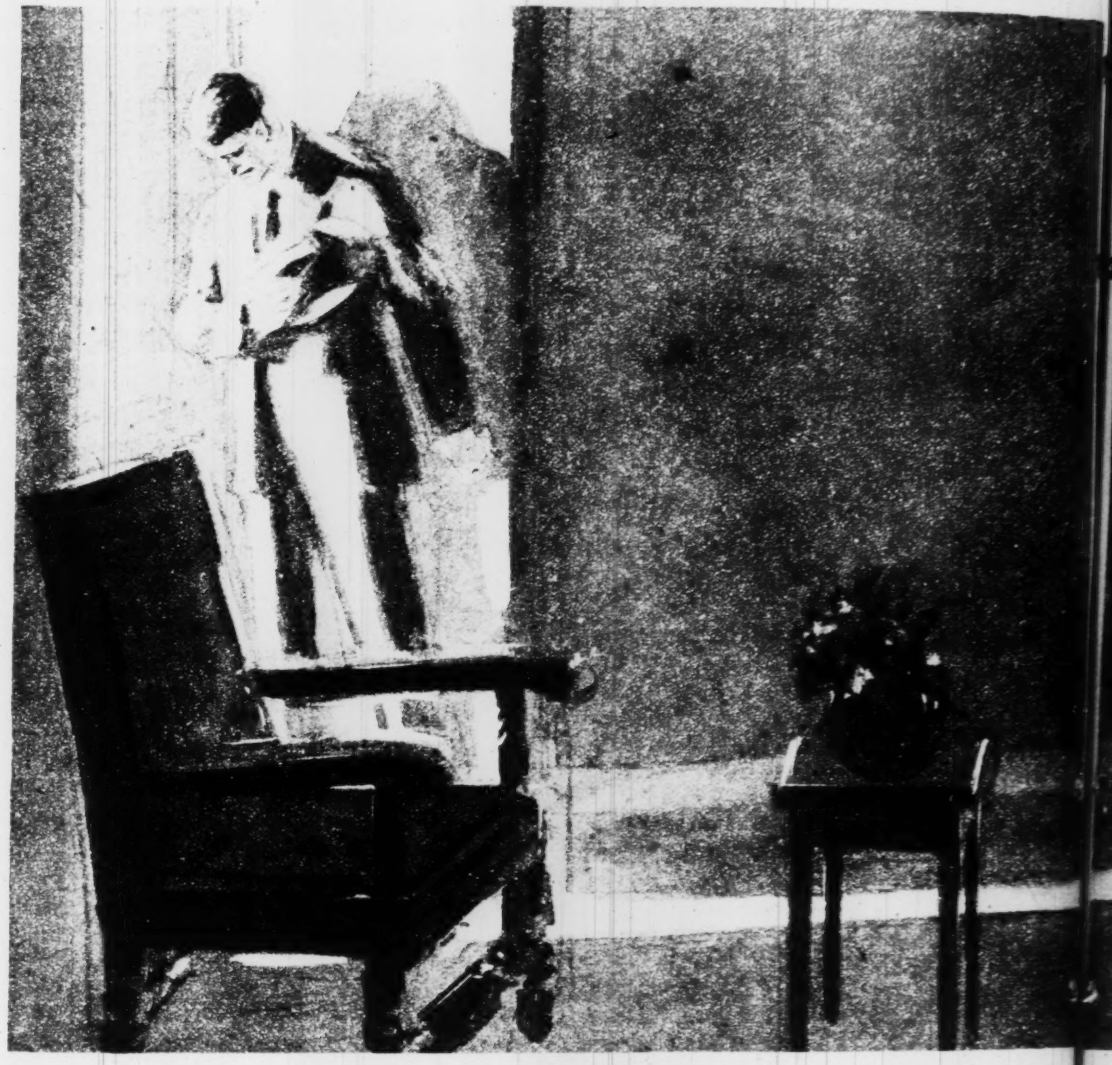
Michigan Supreme Court affirms conviction of man who placed within wife's reach, at her request, a poisonous drink and declared him guilty of murder in the first degree—The case of a noted Philadelphia doctor who aided his niece to end her misery and other instances of euthanasia—Four differing opinions of St. Louisans



"By this act he deliberately placed within her reach the means

HIDDEN in the pages of a recent issue of a musty law journal, deep among cases heavy with the ponderous phrases of legal terminology, were found the following two paragraphs, alive with human tragedy:

> HUSBAND MIXES POISONOUS DRAUGHT FOR WIFE AT HER REQUEST.—A wife, who was a helpless invalid, desiring to put an end to her suffering, requested her husband to prepare a quantity of paris green so that she could drink it and place it on a chair within her reach. He did as requested, and the wife, after partaking of the mixture, died in a few hours. She had once before tried to commit suicide by taking carbolic acid. The husband was charged with the murder of his wife, and convicted of murder in the first degree on his plea of confession and on testimony taken in open court, and duly sentenced to prison at hard labor and in solitary confinement for life.
> The Supreme Court of Michigan affirmed the conviction in People vs. Roberts, 178 Northwestern Reporter, 690. The opinion was written by Judge Bird, who, after discussing the technical questions raised, said: "We are of the opinion that when defendant mixed the paris green with water and placed it within reach of his wife, to enable her to put an end to her sufferings by putting an end to her life, he was guilty of murder by means of poison within the meaning the statute, even though she requested him to do so. By this act he deliberately placed within her reach the means of taking her own life, which she could have obtained in no other way, by reason of her helpless condition."

Thus again is raised the old, old question of euthanasia, which has been very much alive since the time of the first man to resolve that pain could be worse than death, and which has been practiced in various forms, from the Spartans, who mercilessly eliminated the weak, to Dr. Harry Haiselden, who permitted the Bollinger baby in Chicago to die rather than save it for a life of pain and deformity.

Brutus, falling upon his sword rather than face the jeers of Rome; and the Samurai, committing hara-kiri upon the grave of the Mikado, had far simpler problems to settle than that of the man who must choose life or death for another.

Time has not altered the division on this poignant theme. The same motives, instincts and arguments that separated the views of the Greek philosophers are found on this page in the divergent opinions of four St. Louisans marked by their accomplishments in the field of original thinking.

Here we have represented the four main aspects of the question. First, strangely enough, a physician, member of a profession constantly under the charge of materialism, is heard declaring that never is death justifiable to end pain, and that in no case could he excuse a person for placing the means of suicide within reach of a sufferer.

Next comes a venerable philosopher, declaring that there is a pitch of agony which warrants self-destruction, but that no such condition could ever justify another in contributing to the act. In the third phase we have a woman, a writer of romance, who asserts that the man was justified if he was convinced that his wife's case was hopeless, and, lastly, a writer and scholar, who affirms that the man simply permitted the woman to exercise her own judgment, and in so doing was morally right.

While practically the entire weight of the Christian church and of legal opinion is squarely against euthanasia in any form, it has had, and retains, some formidable proponents, including the heads of some of the leading medical institutions in the country. During the storm that broke over Dr. Heiselden's head in the incident of the Bollinger baby, he asserted that euthanasia was frequently practiced by physicians in the cases of incurable sufferers, although the fact was kept secret.

One of the famous cases that became known was that of Miss Julia C. Curtain, member of a wealthy and aristocratic family of Philadelphia, who was bitten by a pet dog and infected with hydrophobia. In the prospect of certain death, and, to end the terrible agonies into which she was thrown, her uncle, Dr. Roland Curtain, and her cousin, Dr. Roland Curtain Jr., assisted by another physician, administered ether constantly to her for eight hours, until she died.

The inevitable clamor arose. "Murder!" was the accusation hurled at the physicians from many quarters, to which the uncle challengingly replied: "I have no hesitation in saying that I shall employ anesthesia in all future cases of hydrophobia that are given to my care. It is my opinion that a physician who would not make use of anesthesia when he knows that a case of hydrophobia is sure to be fatal, is needlessly cruel."

An odd feature in the history of the conflict for and against euthanasia is the contrasting receptions accorded instances of the actual practice of it. The facts would strongly suggest that the dramatic elements in the individual cases strongly determined the public attitude upon them.

For example, virtually no criticism greeted the euthanizing in 1913 of a man in McKinney, Tex., although the widest publicity was given the case. E. N. Presley, a clerk, was pinned beneath debris in the collapse of a department store. The ruins caught fire, and the blaze reached the imprisoned man's feet. The most desperate efforts failed to extricate him. Meantime, he screamed piteously for somebody to shoot him.

After some hesitation a physician administered a strong hypodermic injection, which soon caused Presley's death. Presley's wife arrived on the scene a few minutes later, and, even in the excess of her grief, held the doctor blameless.

In 1911 there occurred in Florida a case of two Shakers, a brother and sister, who administered a drug that resulted in the painless death of their sister, an incurable sufferer. Because of the Shakers' conviction against the taking of life, it was obvious that their course resulted only from the most compelling circumstances. They were, however, prosecuted.

Likewise, in New York, about 1915, occurred a case where physicians declined to perform an operation upon a baby to save its life, it being certain that the child would be a hopeless imbecile if it survived. The incident resulted in an announcement by the Association of Coroners that any physicians, nurses or other persons attempting to exercise the power of

"WOULD EXPECT MY WIFE TO DO IT FOR ME."

HARLAN EUGENE READ, writer and bibliophile: Legally, Roberts was properly convicted. The moral question is a different one. If Roberts loved his wife, and she was hopelessly and helplessly invalid, he had a moral right to make it possible for her to end her own suffering.

I would expect my wife to do such an act for me, in such an extreme case; and I would do it for her if she, in full possession of her faculties, requested it. I would do it for a horse or a dog. So would most men who love.

The act of suicide was hers. Her husband did not assist her in it. He simply refused to use his superior strength and advantage to force her to live and suffer against her will. He declined to force her to obey his own opinion. He granted her the freedom to act as she willed. If she was sane, or if he believed her so, he was morally justified.

"Act of Kindness," Says St. Louis Woman Author

MISS SHIRLEY SEIFERT, St. Louis author: You've no right to ask a man or woman to live unless you can provide them with a reason for wanting to live. I could never be hypocrite enough to say: "You must live," to one in whose condition I myself should prefer death.

I do not believe that one individual has the right to lay down a law of life and death for another individual. The question is one that you must settle for yourself, and I shouldn't thank anyone, who interfered with my decision.

I fail to understand that sort of sentimentality that would chloroform a dog or cat, and yet would compel a human being to live on in misery. I don't understand it, and I haven't a great deal of patience with it.

It is easy enough for one in the vigor of life to utter grand pronouncements. It is easy to say, "Live! Life is everything!" and then go on about your affairs, enjoying life to the fullest, and forgetting the matter. But it is quite another thing for the sufferer that you have left behind to face the daily grind of pain and futile agony.

I have known some invalids to lead very beautiful and even useful lives. These things are inspiring, and one can well admire that sort of courage. On the other hand, I have seen persons for whom life held nothing, and to whom death would have been a blessing. In either event, it was the invalid's own problem.

This man's first duty was to endeavor to make life tolerable for his wife, and furnish her with some inducement to live. If he earnestly tried to do that, and found her still determined to die, then his act was a kindness, and required true nobility and courage.

life and death over babies in the city would be prosecuted for murder.

Of course, the physician in such a case always enjoys a certain immunity not possessed by individuals who acted as Roberts did. There probably is no law under which a physician can be prosecuted for refusing to perform an operation. He can always hide behind the declaration that such an operation would have been against his expert judgment, and, in such a case, what man's opinion is better than another's?

Physicians in Iola, Kan., in 1915, withheld treatment from an infant whom they pronounced a helpless imbecile, and, with the consent of its parents, permitted it to die. Again there appears to have been little criticism, which further supports the suggestion that the elements of drama in individual cases powerfully influence sentiment concerning them.

Several years ago the question was raised in vivid and dramatic fashion by Miss Anna S. Hall of Cincinnati, who had a bill legalizing euthanasia introduced in the Ohio Legislature. Her action followed the death of her mother, who had been for years a sufferer from cancer. Summoned before the committee, she made this statement:

"I am told that this bill is inhuman. Let him who makes this charge watch, as I have watched, over the bedside of one loved, when the sufferer is beyond the reach of human help, and, while the minutes of life drag by in tortured lengths, while the revered lips sob fervent prayers for death. Let him look full into the eyes of his mother, when she begs of him that he end her suffering and her life. Let him be aroused, through the long night, as I was aroused, by those awful cries calling upon God in agonizing tones to send death and peace. Then if he says this bill is inhuman I will withdraw it."

Already the principle had been indorsed by Maud Ballington Booth, Dr. Charles H. Eliot, now president emeritus of Harvard; Dean Harold Williams of Tufts Medical School and Dean Edward Bradford of Harvard Medical School. Close upon Miss Hall's agitation came an announcement by Dr. Charles Eliot Norton, friend of Longfellow and Lowell, and formerly professor of literature at Harvard, saying:

"The principle that it is a duty to prolong every human life as long as possible, at whatever cost, has hitherto been generally accepted. Its main support has been the doctrine of the sacredness of human life.

"The doctrine and the practice have both been pressed too far. There are lives to which every reasonable consideration urges that an end be put. It is not to be hoped that a superstition so deeply rooted in tradition as that of the duty of prolonging life at any cost will readily yield to argument or reason or the pleading of compassion, but the discussion of the subject in its various aspects may lead gradually to a more enlightened public opinion and to the consequent relief of much misery."

Miss Hall's bill was beaten, and Dr. Norton's declaration drew a flood of criticism upon him. Such passages as these occurred in the published interviews with prominent personages that followed:

"I do not think it justifiable for any man to commit murder in order that the future of the human race may not be compromised."

"Human life is something we have no right to tamper with."

"Human life is a trust committed to our charge. It is not for us to decide how long or short it should be. We do not belong to ourselves but to an order beyond."

"It may not only be lawful, but highly commendable, to lessen pain at the approach of death by the use of anesthetic, to the end that one we prize may pass away as peacefully as possible, but to take human life outright as a means of destroying pain—never! It were murder, pure and simple!"

This devastating censure did not shake the advocates of euthanasia. Mrs. Booth, Miss Hall and their associates continued urging painless death for the hopelessly insane, malformed and imbecile infants, incurably diseased, and the victims of accidents who beg to be relieved of their suffering with death.

Dr. Norton reiterated that "no reasonable man should hesitate to hasten death in the case of mortal disease, such, for example, as cancer, when it has reached the stage of incessant severe pain, and the patient desires to die. The prolongation of life, in such a case, by whatever means, is mere criminal cruelty."

Dr. Bliss, the alienist whose interview appears on this page, admitted that he had seen instances where this might appear to be true. He recalled the case of a woman, suffering from cancer, who, upon lapsing into unconsciousness and approaching death, was temporarily revived by desperate efforts of the physicians at her bedside. Her brother, his face white and drawn at the spectacle of her agony, exclaimed:

"Gentlemen, that may be scientific, but it isn't human!"

Miss Seifert, the author, who expressed the view that suffering may morally justify death, was also speaking from contact with a most intimate personal experience. Years ago a younger sister, 9 years old, suffered a severe spinal injury in a fall. It soon became apparent that if she survived it would be for a life of helplessness and pain.

"As terrible as it was to lose her, I can conscientiously say that her death came as a relief to me," said the author. "I firmly believe that to have wished her a life of torture and depression, in preference to losing her, would have been a mark of the most soulless selfishness."

And so the conflicting opinions go. "How barbarous! Whose business was it but theirs?" exclaimed one commentator at the drastic sentence imposed upon Roberts.

"Human life is sacred; it is one thing we must not touch," replied another.

More than one attempt has been made in modern times to legalize euthanasia. A bill was introduced in the Iowa Legislature in 1906 providing for the extermination of incurables. It provided elaborate safeguards against possible mistakes, but so violent was the invective and ridicule which met it that it was withdrawn. Under its provisions any person of more than 10 years of age, if of sound mind, must voluntarily request that his life be taken by artificial means. Three reputable physicians, including the one in charge of the case, and the coroner would then diagnose the case, and if they agreed that it was hopeless, they must so apprise the guardian or the nearest of kin. If the latter agreed to the exercise of euthanasia in the case, an anesthetic would be administered by the four doctors.

If the subject was an infant, or was of unsound mind, then initiative in the matter would have to be taken by the nearest of kin. In no case could the State itself have initiated the process of euthanasia. In withdrawing the bill the author of it, a physician, nevertheless made a speech in justification of his position.

"I would simply make lawful that which is already practiced by the greatest physicians and surgeons in the land," he declared. "At the risk of being convict-

HUSBAND NOT JUSTIFIED, CONCLUDES DR. SNIDER.

DENTON J. SNIDER, St. Louis writer and philosopher: Institutions have always demanded men's lives. A certain church, which so inflexibly sets its face against suicide, has always demanded obedience from its followers, even unto death, and their leaders have been among the most daring in offering themselves for almost certain death in pestilence and the missionary field. Nations ask men to die for them, and sometimes when they object they take them, as in the late war.

These institutions generally declare, on the other hand, that a man has no right to end his life for reasons personal to himself. I do not agree with that. I believe that there is a point at which suffering justifies extinction.

This, however, is not the question here. The question is not whether the woman was justified in her act, but whether her husband was justified in contributing to it. I believe not. He assumed the function of deciding that her case was hopeless. I do not believe he had any right to make such a decision. The course of disease is too uncertain. To my mind, he was morally delinquent. I could not have contributed to her act, although, in her place, I might have acted as she did. I feel, however, that the punishment was terribly harsh.

Husband Was Wrong, Declares St. Louis Alienist

DR. M. A. BLISS, alienist: The opportunities and means for the relief of human suffering are so many and pronounced, through anodynes and opiates, that it is not necessary that any person endure prolonged torture. Furthermore, I have observed so many cases where patients who had been given up for lost later recovered that I should shrink from pronouncing a case hopeless.

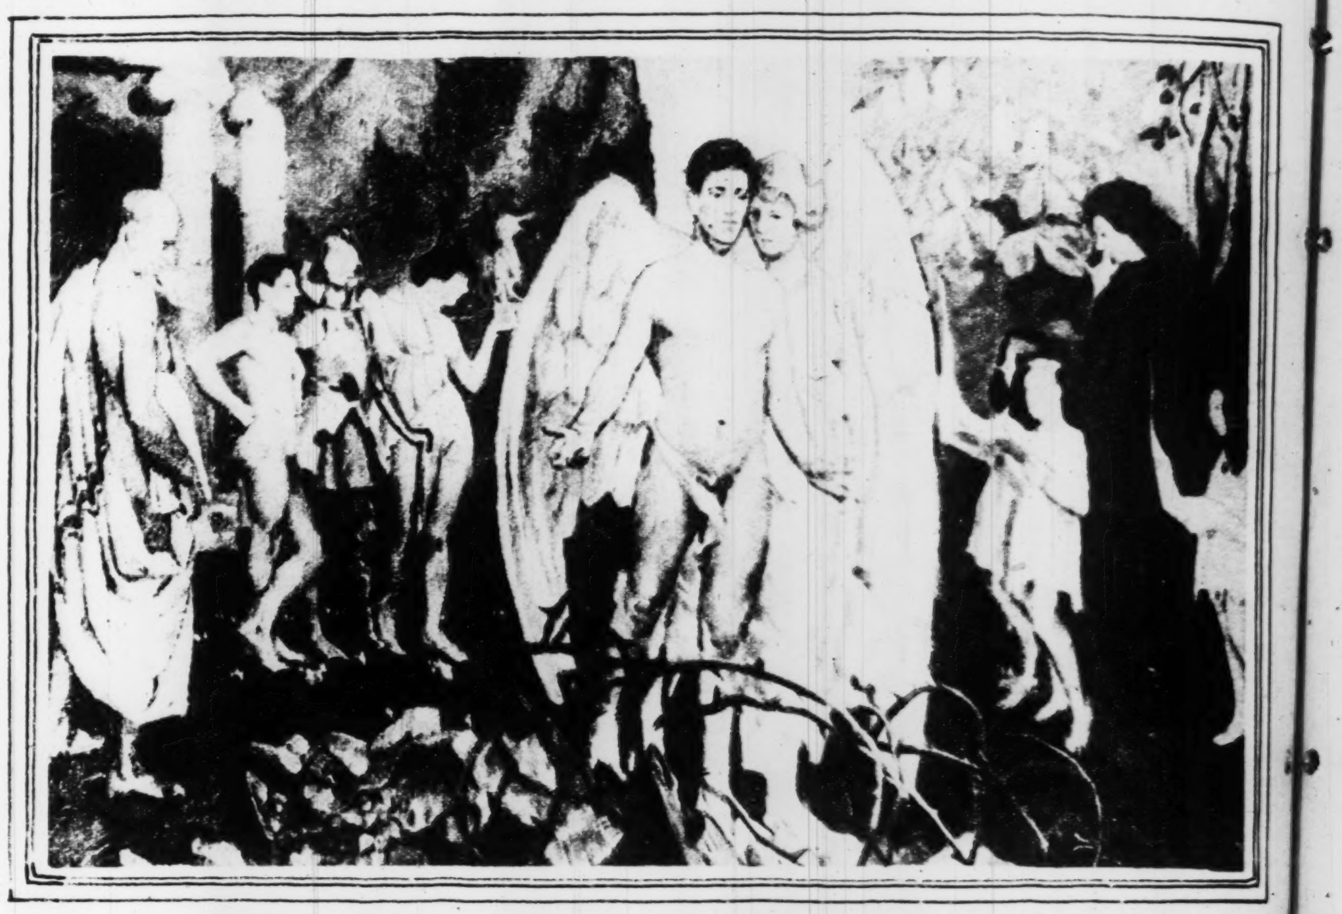
I have had cases where the pain was so great that I administered sedatives virtually without limit, but never, in 31 years of practice, have I observed a case in which I felt that the patient would be justified in ending his or her life. I cannot conceive of such an instance, and, consequently, I cannot conceive of a set of circumstances under which a man would be morally justified in placing the means of suicide within reach of his wife, if he had reason to believe she would use them.

I am convinced that somewhere deep in this man's consciousness, even though it may not have appeared, was a desire to be rid of her. I suspect that he regarded her resolution to die with a certain amount of complacency.

In my opinion, no individual has the right to elect between life and death. The individual's view, in such a case as this, is always distorted. Roberts should not have allowed his wife to have her own way, regardless of how insistent she was upon it. Perhaps this is not wholly logical, but men do not act upon wholly logical impulses. Their opinions more often are instincts resulting from environment, training and heredity. The whole tendency of the medical profession has always been toward the conservation of life, regardless of circumstances.

When Aladdin's Lamp Visited an Artist in His Garret

The genie was merely a postman, and the only magic "ring" was that of a doorbell, but this simple enchantment sufficed to waft young painter away from hunger and destitution to three years in Rome, as winner of American Academy scholarship.



"A Tribute to Heroism," the painting which won for Frank Schwartz a three-year art course in Rome, and $1000 a year during his studies. The hour before the good news came he had decided to sell all his personal belongings to a second-hand dealer for two dollars.

IT IS not only in romances that a good fairy brings an invitation to the Prince's ball for Cinderella, as she grubs in the ashes, or that a genie fetches an enchanted lamp to starving Aladdin. Occasionally, in real life, fate orders things as dramatically and magically as if it were bent on creating another tale for the "Arabian Nights."

One recent morning a tall, slender youth, not much past 20, wearing the smock and flowing black tie of an artist, sat drooping with despair in the squalid attic of a tenement at 356 East Nineteenth street, New York City. Crumpled in his nerveless hand lay a note from the landlord, threatening him with eviction if he did not pay at once a month's overdue rent—$12. At that moment life was at its darkest for Frank Schwartz, this struggling young painter. For years he had pursued, hungry and destitute but indomitable, what had seemed to shine as the star of genius and fame. But the star—alas!—had proved only a treacherous will-o'-the-wisp, and had now betrayed him into the quicksands of failure. Soon he would be thrust into the streets—a penniless vagrant.

But it is sometimes at the very moment when fortune is coldest that the tricksome jade has already decided to change her sneer into a smile, and to fling herself into the arms of the lover who had followed her with such desperation. So it was with Frank Schwartz. Just as he gave up all hope, gifts beyond his wildest hopes were suddenly showered upon him, all within a few hours.

The annunciation came from no glittering fairy, dashing up in coach-and-six, with a star-tipped wand. Neither did a smoky afrit tower from a bottle, terrible and obsequious. But a prosaic postman, on his prosaic morning rounds, stood in the street below with an envelope in his hand. The postman handled many envelopes every day. How could he suspect that this was an enchanted missive, and he himself a messenger from fairyland? His ring at the doorbell was matter-of-fact.

Five flights up the tinkle of the bell pierced feebly to the senses of Frank Schwartz, drowned as he was in hopelessness and grief. He arose listlessly, trudged down flight after flight to the door, and took the letter. For a moment he stood looking forth sadly upon the children at their play in the street. Then, without opening the envelope, he toiled upwards again to his attic.

Suddenly that abode of gloom was startled by a whoop—a boy's whoop of rapture. Could it have come from the room of that poor, strange lad in the attic, who worked so hard at his painting and had so little to eat? So wondered little Nancy Brown, daughter of the housekeeper of the tenement.

As she peeped from the door the artist fled past her like a tornado. He was bounding down the steps four at a time. In a moment the door banged behind him.

For, on opening the envelope, he had found that it contained a wonderful message. It was from the American Academy in Rome, and it announced that Frank Schwartz had won the coveted Prix de Rome with his painting, "A Tribute to Heroism," on which he had labored for months. This prize bears an allowance of $1000 a year for three years, free tuition in Rome, and traveling expenses to and from that capital of art and history.

Panting from his run, young Schwartz burst into a second-hand store in First avenue, a block away, seized the dealer by the sleeve and dragged him along to the tenement. In a few minutes all of the tawdry fittings of the attic room had been sold and the artist, with two dollars in his pocket, left his prison forever—a free and successful man.

He bethought him to telephone his thanks to Roscoe Guernsey, executive secretary of the American Academy in Rome, which has offices at 101 Park avenue, and discovered that he was due for a second stroke of good luck. Guernsey informed him that Barry Faulkner, in charge of the Tiffany Foundation for artists at Oyster Bay, had virtually decided upon Schwartz as the recipient of a summer course there as another reward for his prize-winning picture, "A Tribute to Heroism."

Scarcely had Schwartz left his attic when a short, gray-haired man came, puffing up the stairs, and knocked at Mrs. Brown's door. In a gruff, guttural voice he demanded: "Is Frank Schwartz here?"

"No, he's just left, running as fast as he could, he's that happy," answered Mrs. Brown.

"I think he is my son," said the visitor. "I must find him. I have not seen him for seven years." He had read of the prize won by his boy in a newspaper of the afternoon before, which had the news before it reached the artist. And thus it was, as a third gift of fortune in one day, that Frank Schwartz was reunited with his father, after years of estrangement.

The Schwartz family formerly lived in Chicago. Frank had studied at the Chicago Art Institute against the wishes of his father, who desired him to go into business, where he could make money. Seven years ago the mother died, and the elder Schwartz, who was a waiter, went to New York to seek work at his trade. Frank was left to shift for himself. Since that separation they had had no word from each other, until the father happened to see his son's name in a newspaper.

Letters found in the boy's room showed that he was desperate for lack of money. It appeared that he had served in the army in France as a member of the camouflage section, and that after being discharged from the service he was stricken with pneumonia. He was unable to work; doctors advised him to leave the city, but he had no funds.

He left several bills behind, which his proud father discharged on the spot.

Blood Poisoning Resulting From Having Tooth Extracted Not "Accidental."

A BILL in equity to recover under an accident policy showed that the insured died as a result of blood poisoning caused by the entry of bacteria or germs into his circulatory system through a "port of entry" located in the injured tissue or wall of his gum after he had a tooth extracted. The policy covered injuries through accidental means, exclusive of all other causes, and expressly included blood poisoning resulting directly from a bodily injury. A demurrer was sustained because the bill did not allege that the injury was caused by accidental means. The Supreme Court of Tennessee affirmed the decree in Ramsey vs. Fidelity and Casualty Co., 223 Southwestern Reporter, 841. Judge Hall, in discussing the case, said:

"We are of the opinion that there is no error in the holding of the Chancellor. The bill does not allege that the means causing the injury were accidental. The bill does not allege that the tooth was pulled by accident, nor does it allege that any accident happened while the tooth was being pulled. The means by which the gum was injured were intentional and purposely applied. The insured knew that the inevitable result of pulling the tooth would be to break down and lacerate the gum tissue. It was the result that followed the puling of the tooth and the laceration of the gum tissue that was unlooked for, unexpected and unforeseen. There can be no inference from the allegations of the bill that there was any accident in connection with the pulling of the tooth. The injury was the ordinary and natural result of such an operation."

TRACES of two vast lost continents, one of which formerly connected Asia with Australia, and the other of which is believed to have joined Africa to North and South America, will be sought by an expedition which is to sail from London next month. The commander is Sir Ernest Shackleton, chief of the British Antarctic expedition of 1907-09, which reached within 97 miles of the South Pole.

Whereas Columbus set forth to discover a new world, Sir Ernest's purpose is to discover two lost worlds. The memory of a land route across the Atlantic is perhaps perpetuated in the classic legend of Atlantis. On the other side of the world, the map shows a long chain of islands between Asia and Australia. It is thought that millions of years ago all this land was joined together in one mighty continent; but the land gradually sank and the sea rushed in, so that only the mountains remained visible, forming the islands of today.

Scientific proof of the former existence of these two continents is the object of the expedition, which is expected to cover 30,000 miles and consume two or three years. A small picked staff of scientists will accompany Sir Ernest, and a complete set of such instruments as are required will be taken.

SIR ERNEST SHACKLETON.

In a 200-ton ship, brigantine rigged and named "The Quest," the party will sail from London for its first objective, the Salvages, a group of rocky islands off the west coast of Morocco, between the Canary and Madeira Islands. Thence they will proceed to St. Paul's Rocks, a little-known island on the equator.

Crossing the Atlantic, the ship will sail to Trinidad, which is just north of the Tropic of Capricorn and lies east of Rio de Janeiro. Some 1500 miles southeast, the party will visit the island of Tristan da Cunha and Gough's Island; whence they will voyage northeast to Cape Town.

Soundings will be taken of the ocean plateau about Gough's Island, in an endeavor to settle surmises as to the existence of an underwater continental connection between Africa and America.

From Cape Town "The Quest" will plunge into the Antarctic wastes. A visit will be paid to Enderby Land, a large tract which may be a continent or an island, for all that anyone knows. The ship will emerge from the South Polar regions on the other side of the world. She will call at the South Sandwich and South Georgia Islands, make landings at Bouvet and Heard Islands, and then make for New Zealand. In that vicinity soundings will be made for the lost island of Tuanaki, which has been mentioned in old nautical records and in native legends, but has since disappeared.

An effort will also be made to find Dougherty Island, the position and even the existence of which are problematical. If discovered, the island may be made to serve as a wireless relay station between New Zealand and South America. Afterwards the route will be to the north of Australia, over the submerged plateau of what seems formerly to have been a land connection with Asia.

"The Quest," built in Norway in 1917, of oak, pine and fir, has sides two feet thick; her bows are of solid oak, sheathed with steel. She has been tested in heavy ice. Shackleton's companions will include Frank Etild, second in command; Commander Frank Worsley, Maj. A. H. Macklin, biologist; Lieutenant-Commander Stenhouse and Capt. L. Hussey, meteorologist.

In the fact that scientists can deliberately undertake this mission are implied cataclysms of such colossal violence as to stagger the imagination. Almost innate is our confidence in the eternal stability of the earth upon which we walk and live; and if a mere earthquake tremor is able to shock us for a moment out of this delusion, what of such cosmic catastrophes as would attend the swallowing up of continents and the rush of oceans to cover their grave?

Geologists tell us that not only have these losses of worlds often occurred in the history of our planet, but that the supposedly steadfast earth itself is incessantly rising and falling. How could it be otherwise, they ask, when we crawl about on a solid crust about 25 miles thick, which rests upon an internal core, thousands of miles in diameter, of liquid, incandescent rock and metal, which is forever racked by a titanic combat between gravitation and the eruptive force of its enormous heat?

Northern Sweden, we are informed, is rising so rapidly that we may calculate the time when the Gulf of Bothnia will be completely dry. Greenland, on the contrary, is sinking, at a

The entire continent of A we are told, is rising at a rate of four inches a year. T Melbourne rose six feet in 20 years, putting an end undations to which the city was formerly exposed. e observations taken in the Bay of Lacepede showe e coast here climbed 18 feet out of the sea in 56 year Australia, the geologists declare, must have been co the sea at a comparatively recent era. The evidence is conclusive.

Darwin, from a study of shell beds, concluded that there is in operation a general though very slow rising of the continent of South America. Darwin it was also who, finding coral formations at a depth of 225 meters, although the little animal cannot live at a depth of more than 34 to 42 meters, explained that only a sinking of the ocean's bed could explain the phenomenon.

In France, the shores at La Rochelle are rising, so much so that the wreck of a ship which lay on the beach in 1876 is now 13 1-2 feet above sea level. More than 1000 acres in this vicinity were reclaimed from the sea through the rising of the land. Normandy and Bretagne, on the other hand, are slowly sinking. Evidences of the alternate surging up and submergence of parts of the world are seen on every hand. At the time when Australia and Asia were one, and the Indian Ocean was covered by a continent, North America was the bed of a mighty sea. The Sahara Desert, we are informed, was not long ago the floor of an ocean, but rose and expelled the water into the Atlantic. The British Isles have several times been submerged; and at one time the Alps projected as islands from an ocean that covered Europe.

So that, whether by the slow action of many ages or by sudden catastrophes, the lands and waters of the globe are constantly changing places. To account for such phenomena as the "lost continents" of the Atlantic and Pacific, scientists bring forward three theories.

The first is the familiar one of the ageless conflict between the heat at the interior of the earth and the force of gravitation. In the struggle to keep a balance, heat is constantly losing, and with every loss of temperature there is a corresponding contraction of the mass of the globe. This contraction, it is calculated, equals a loss of one inch of the planet's diameter every 11 years.

When the fiery mass within contracts, the crust, supported by it, sinks. This fact alone, given countless aeons in which to work, would account for the submergence of immense tracts of land beneath the ocean. On the other hand, the plutonic substances sometimes gather force to heave themselves outwards, and then the crust is pushed farther from the center of the globe.

Another theory is that of denudation. The Mississippi River, according to estimates, sweeps a layer of earth a foot thick from its entire basin in 4566 years. At that rate it would require only 4,0[illegible],000 years for the Mississippi to level and bury in the sea the entire continent of North America—that is, if some force from within did not push the land upward again.

It can be imagined that the lost continents were drained by rivers as mighty as the Mississippi, which were busy through millions of years in cutting them down to sea level. We might presume that the outward push requisite to rescue them did not occur, while those lands now remaining did enjoy the upward thrust necessary to preserve them.

The most interesting theory of all, and one to which scientists are giving much attention, is that, owing to the procession of the equinoxes, there are periods when the waters of the sea flock toward the South Pole, and then periods when they reverse their direction and flow toward the North Pole.

We are at present in one of the former periods, they say. The ocean south of the equator is about three times as deep as it is toward the north. The great proportion of the earth's land surface is in the Northern Hemisphere, and the overwhelming proportion of its water is in the Southern Hemisphere. In so mighty an inundation, low-lying portions of the southern continents would, of course, be submerged.

But the time will come, it is prophesied, when the course of the waters will change. Then the submerged lands of the south will reappear, while the ocean will cover Paris and New York to a depth of hundreds of meters. This time will not only come, but has already been in the past, for North America, Europe and Asia once lay beneath the sea, while vast continents extended their bulk towards the South Pole.

A theoretical map of the world when one could walk dryshod from Africa to New York has been drawn by a scientist named Fecht. It reveals many strange features. In the first place, Spain is a part of Africa instead of Europe, a great sea covering France and the British Isles and severing Spain from Europe. Through Spain an isthmus runs north and west, connecting with a vast continent which covered nearly all of what is now the North Atlantic Ocean. The southern boundary of this continent was about level with New York; it swept northwards to include nearly all of Greenland.

All of North America was under water, save for a narrow peninsula which thrust itself northwest across Canada almost

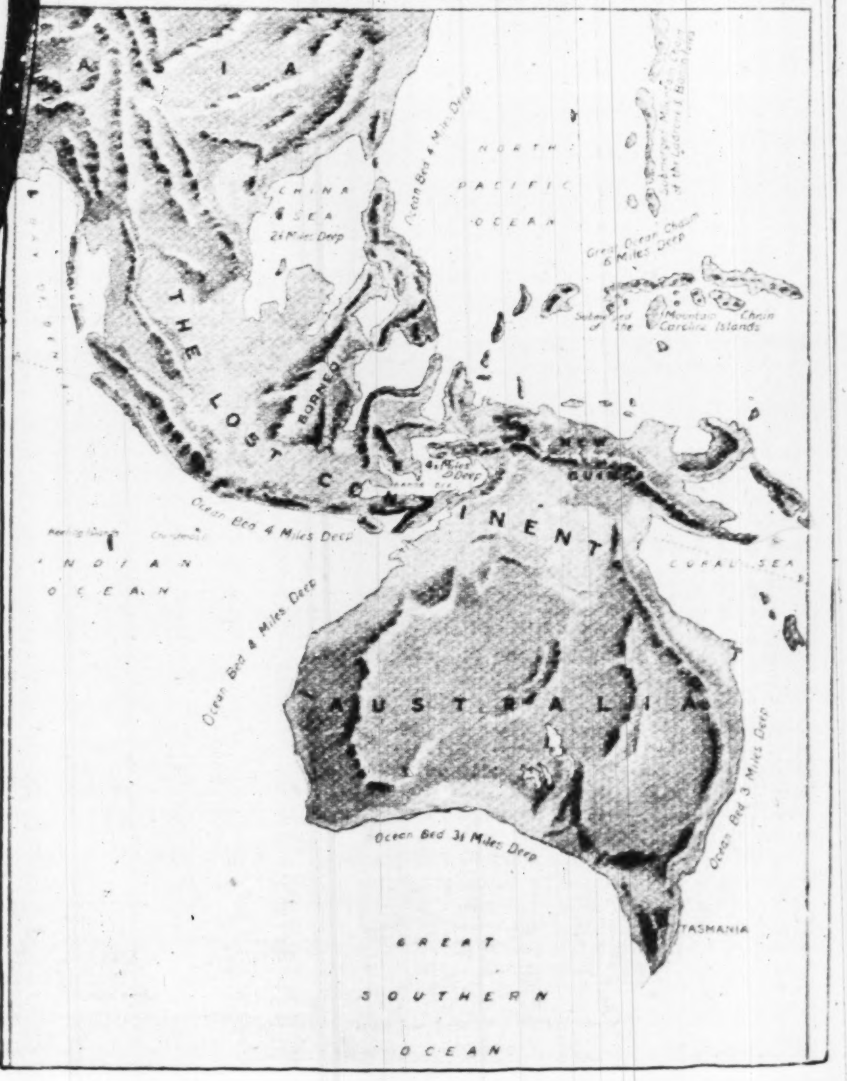
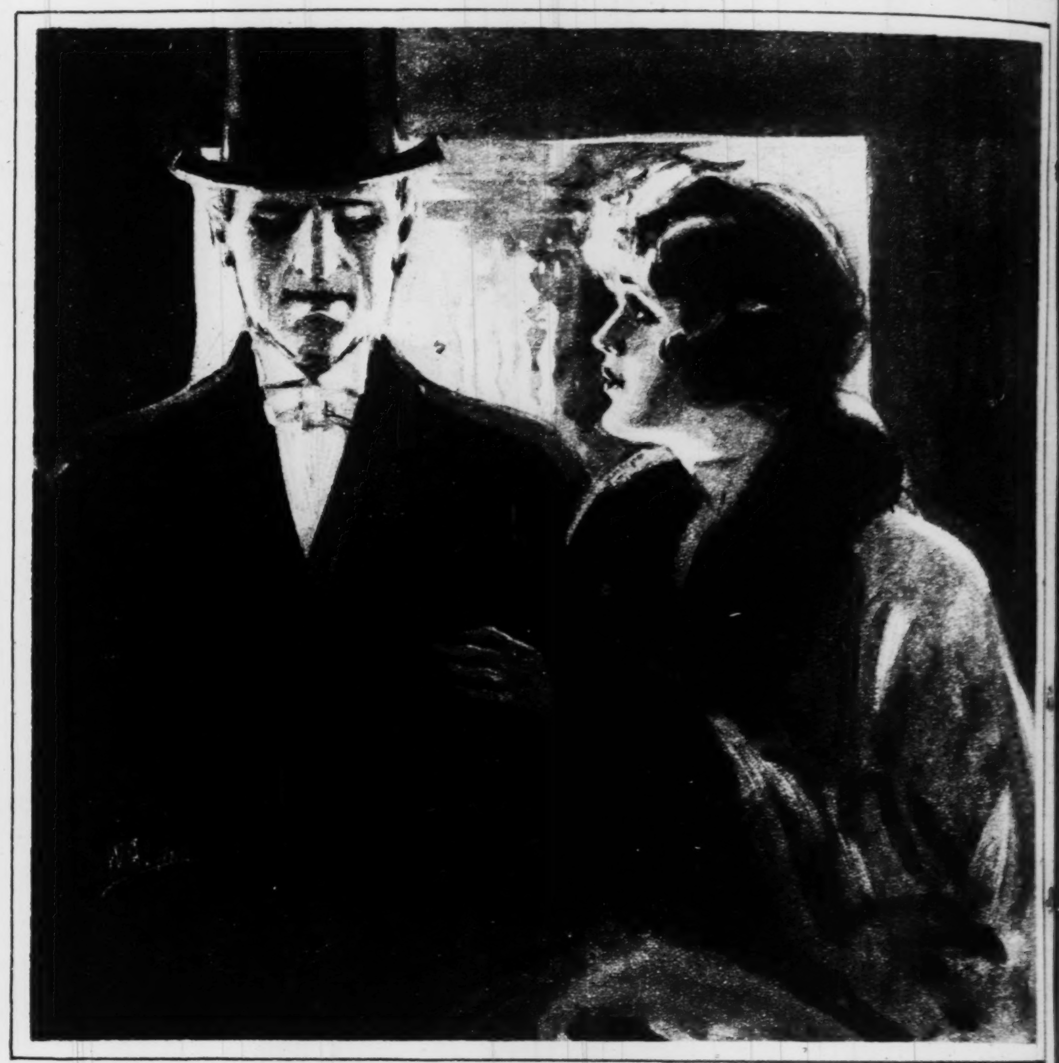
CONTINENT THAT HAS SUNK FROM SIGHT



The HONEYMOON

By GEORGE RANDOLPH CHESTER



"Don't you think it is about time to collect that kiss?" she tremblingly asked.

AND so they were married. The rain of the rice had scarcely ceased upon the roof of their carriage, and the echoes of the gay laughter behind them had scarcely died away, when Ralph Huntington turned to his bride with a boyish laugh and clasped her hand.

"At last, at last!" he breathed, and bent forward to place a kiss upon her lips.

"Wait!" she commanded, turning her face away and putting up her hand.

The man drew back, shocked.

"I must tell you something first," she went on, her voice lowered almost to a whisper and her face pale. "I feel it my duty to let you know just what you have bought."

"Bought!" he cried. "Grace!"

"Yes, bought," she answered; "purchased like any other expensive work of art. You knew this when I agreed to marry you, although you were not told quite so plainly; but I have seen as the days have gone by between our engagement and today's mockery, that you have been more and more inclined to forget it."

"I did, almost," replied the man evenly. "I hoped against hope until I almost began to believe."

"It is your own fault," she retorted. "You knew that I favored Gilbert. You knew that he had not a friend to plead his suit. You knew that he was poor, and could not afford me. You knew that everyone interested in seeing that I had a luxurious future brought me lying tales of him—tried to prove him unworthy."

"Absolve me, please," the man broke in. "I never raised a voice against him."

"No, you were too clever," she charged, cruelly, not caring to notice that he winced under the stroke. "Instead of that, you bought me. You helped my father out of his crisis and set him upon his feet again. You"——

"Purely in the way of business," interrupted the man. "It was no more than I might have done for any other friend of mine."

"Indeed!" she replied. "And was it purely business that made you secure my brother Will his appointment? That made you get Lon out of his college scrape? That made you—oh, your favors have been too many and too lavish to enumerate! They were part of the price you paid for me, calls upon my gratitude which I could not ignore. Well, I married you; I paid my debt and my family's debt to you, but I have made the whole transaction plain. There is no question of false pretense between us. My conscience is clean upon that score; but since the bargain is concluded, I will be 'game,' as Lon calls it. Now I will take your kiss," and she held up her pallid lips.

The man, laughed, but the laugh was not a particularly jovial one. He had to moisten his lips before he replied to her, and there was a trace of huskiness in his voice.

"Mrs. Huntington," he replied, "the only kiss I ever bought before was at a charity fair, and I did not even then accept the goods that I had paid for. The cheek that was held out to me was a beautiful one, but, in the circumstances, it repelled me. I have never been able to see the joke in these things. They—they are too sacred to me; so you must continue to remain in my debt."

"And so they were married and lived happily ever after." The old, old commonplace ending to the fairy stories recurred to him with crushing mockery. This, then, was the end of his daydreams; this the end of the impetuous wooing into which Grace Harding's beauty had drawn him. He knew of other marriages like this where the bargains were more coolly sealed, where the conventions were better observed and the hideous truth better glossed over, but he shuddered to think of them. This, after all, was better.

His wife presently complained of being chilly. He reflected grimly that the chill which had suddenly filled that carriage was one that no fire could drive out, but, nevertheless, he adjusted her wrap tenderly about her, touching her as gently as if she were some beautiful, fragile thing that must not be clumsily handled or rudely breathed upon, lest it crumble before his very eyes. He tried to be strictly impersonal, and he was almost angry with himself to find that, in spite of the cold dash she had given him, the mere touch of her garment thrilled him.

In the train his first impulse was to surround her with magazines and retire to the smoker, but even in his deep disappointment he could not forget what was due to her. With those white ribbons tied by prankish friends to their luggage, flaunting their new estate to the world, he could not leave her to seem as one neglected, even though it might be much more pleasant for her to be alone; so he sat beside her and gave himself up to the task of entertaining her. He could do that. He had traveled much, had seen much, and had read much, and now he set himself deliberately to interest her. He knew the things that she liked best—he had studied them long enough, and, heaven help him! earnestly enough—and all through that long, tiresome ride he exerted himself, with a success that surprised her. After all, if she had sold herself, she had gone to a pleasant market.

It was not until they had reached the city and the hotel where he had secured accommodations that the full sense of her loneliness and of the vast change that had come into her life flooded over her. At the door of the pretty suite he paused.

"My own apartments," he informed her, "are just across the hall there," and he pointed to the door. "The number is 102. Kindly telephone me when you are ready for dinner. I have ordered a maid sent right up to you."

Ten minutes later, when a maid knocked at the door, she was still standing looking blankly out of the window. She had not removed her hat nor her gloves.

Conventionality came to her rescue. She took pains, for the maid's benefit, to observe the dainty fittings of the suite, the flowers that he had ordered, the cheerful open fire that had been built against her coming. Books and magazines had been provided, even to a pretty diary, which was a reproach to her now, and stationery lay invitingly arranged upon the pretty desk. The flowers and the fire and the books and all were thoughtful of him—but—they only went to show what money could buy. It had even—she thought with bitter self-scorn—bought her.

There followed a tastefully ordered dinner. There followed gorgeous roses for the theater box, the play itself, a supper where soft music and tinted lights created a fairy world for the country-bred girl, and then a comfortable carriage ride back to the hotel. These were material pleasures to which Grace Harding had looked forward. She was of a family that had "skimped and scraped" most painfully, and she was starved for luxury; but now that it was hers she took no pleasure in it. She cried herself to sleep that night, and she dreamed of Gilbert. When she remembered the dream in the morning she was shocked. She had not meant to be dishonest or unfaithful even in her dreams. Oh, not that!

II.

THERE was to be a week of shopping before their steamer sailed, and it was a busy week—one that, in other circumstances, would have been a happy week to any woman. There were fresh flowers in her room every morning; there was a carriage always at her disposal; there was a slave—wealthy, devoted, and, yes, handsome—ready to dance at her every caprice, to satisfy her every whim.

As the days wore on she began to pity him. She had been so burdened with her own grievance that she had overlooked the fact of his deep hurt; and she began to admire the cheerfulness with which he took up his burden. He was always the same, he was always devising amusements and interesting side trips to keep her busy and to keep her from brooding; but he never, since that first ride with her alone in the carriage, presumed upon his conventional rights.

The last day before their sailing was the only one in which he left her absolutely to her own devices.

"I shall be engaged all day," he explained. "There are business matters that I must straighten up before I go away, and I have had no time for them as yet. You will find the carriage ready for you, and I am quite sure that you can make your way about now to clean up the little shopping that you have left."

She was surprised to find herself lonely. Of course, though, business could not be neglected. In fact she followed him to his offices. She had met his business associates. Some of them treated him with positive affection—all of them with respect. One could not see him in that environment without recognizing that he was a man of great ability, and a man of rigid uprightness, too. She was proud of him for that—naturally.

The forenoon was a slow one. She had suddenly lost interest in shopping, and she finished it up hastily, coming back to the hotel in time for luncheon. She seemed more at home there. Later in the afternoon a card was brought up to her room, and she turned quickly from the light lest the boy who had brought it should see her face.

"Where is the gentleman?" she asked the boy, struggling for her self-possession.

"In Parlor A, mum."

"Tell him I will be down presently," she said calmly, but when she had closed the door she dropped into a rocking chair and buried her face in her hands.

When she arose she looked about the apartments curiously. It seemed as if she had never seen them before, to appreciate them—the flowers, the books, the crackling wood fire, the many little evidences of care and thoughtfulness with which she had been surrounded; and when, after a while, she stepped out into the hall and closed the door, she seemed to be shutting in a world that was in some way suddenly different from any that she had known or dreamed of before.

Down in the parlor an eager young man sprang to his feet when she entered.

"Grace!" he cried, and caught her hand.

"Gilbert! What brings you here?" she asked, releasing her hand.

"I couldn't stay away any longer," he replied. "Grace, I couldn't. I understood that you were to sail tomorrow, and I had to see you. Thank God, my good luck came in time!"

"Good luck?" she repeated, groping confusedly for a solution to the strange new problem that she had

After 25 Centuries, Assyria Becomes Nation Again With a Modern Semiramis for Its Ruler

Land which strove with Babylon for mastery of the East is to be an independent country, under British protection—The editor of little Assyrian newspaper discusses long struggle for freedom and tells how the Lady Surma went to London and helped persuade Downing street to approve country's renaissance

-o- -o- -o-

AFTER being but a name and memory for 25 centuries, during which period it was overrun by countless enemies, repeatedly pillaged and laid waste and ground under the heel of one foreign master after another, ancient Assyria is to become a separate and independent country again.

The land which was famed for the wonderful palaces and temples of Nineveh, for the exploits of that great legendary Queen, Semiramis, for such later conquerors as Tiglath-pilaser, Sardanapalus and the Sargons, which at one time was mistress of the entire East, will take her place again among the nations of the earth.

The British Government has decided that an independent Assyrian nation shall be erected in Upper Mesopotamia, its old home. It will be a British protectorate, and, like many another revision of the world's map, is an echo of the World War. The capital will be at Mosul, near the gigantic ruins of Nineveh.

And as if this revival of one of the most famous nations of antiquity were not enough in itself, another ghost of the far-distant past is seemingly evoked in the figure of a modern Semiramis, for Assyria will enter upon its romantic renaissance with a woman for its ruler.

Lady Surma, brilliant and determined member of an Assyrian priestly family long eminent in the history of that tragic race, went herself to London and to Downing street, where she led the fight for the erection of her people into a nation again. She it is who has been chosen to be the ruler during the minority of the young patriarch, Mar Simoon.

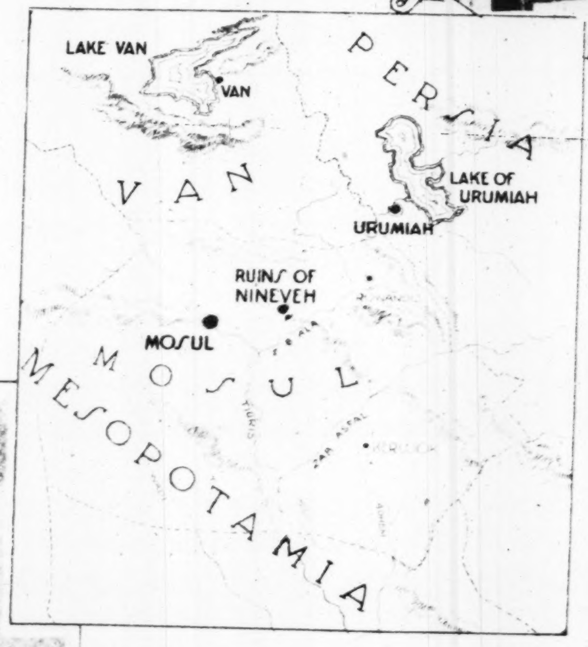
Already, this remarkable woman is being hailed as a new Semiramis, who already has won independence for a land which had been in subjection and in political eclipse practically since the mythical time when Rome itself was but a newly-founded and insignificant village. She will not lead to victory vast armies of chariots, spearmen and archers, like the famous Semiramis of legend, but hers will be the unparalleled task of building up and guiding to prosperity a nation, once rich and invincible, which has not existed as a nation for 2500 years.

To a reporter for the Post-Dispatch, the editor of a little Assyrian newspaper in New York talked of the jubilant tidings which had come by cable from London, and even then were being put into queer-looking Oriental print for circulation among the few thousands of Assyrians in America, mostly industrious workmen who live at Yonkers.

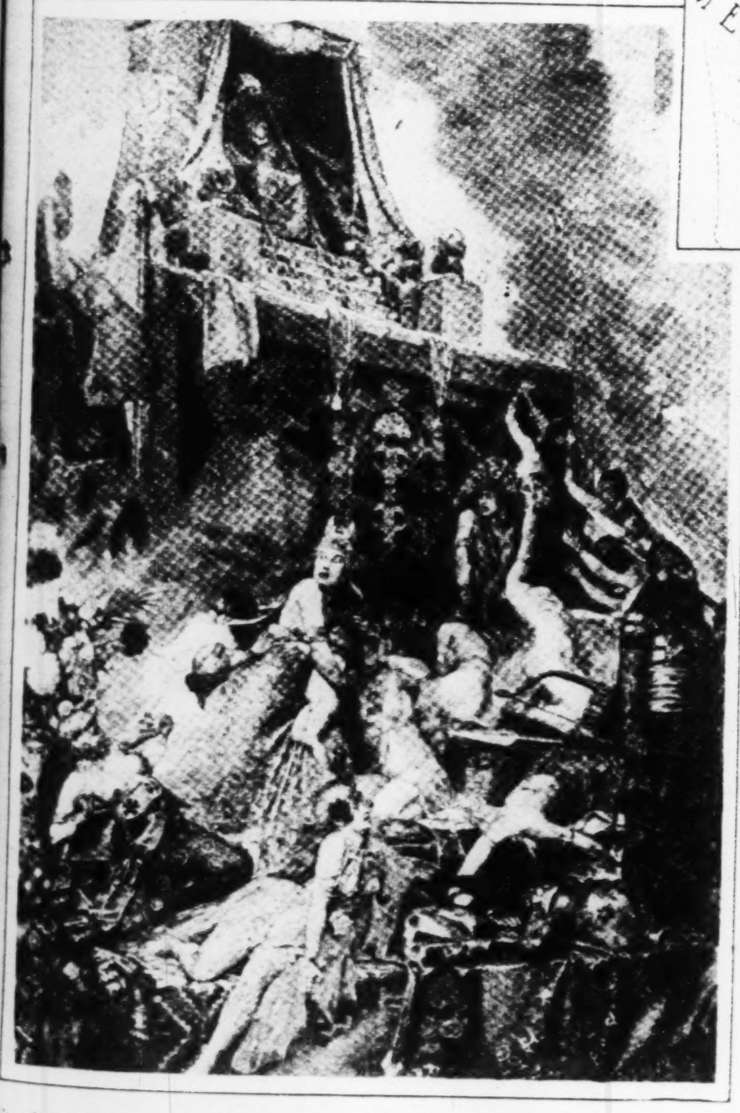
At the one desk sat a heavy, middle-aged man, whose face was more Latin or Levantine than Semitic—short, fleshy nose and small, black, heavy-lidded eyes. He was Joel T. Werda, a graduate of the University of Pennsylvania and one of the chief men among the Assyrians. He led the Assyrian delegation at the peace conference, and has been an active protagonist in the West for Assyrian independence. He directed an earnest gaze at the interviewer and waved a cablegram.

"Our representatives in London have cabled me," he began, in a slow, strong voice, "that the Downing street government has decreed an independent Assyrian nation, under a British protectorate, in Upper Mesopotamia. This is the triumph of our long struggle."

Lady Surma, who is to be Regent of Assyria, and is hailed as a new Semiramis.



Map of modern Assyria, showing Mosul, the capital, near ruins of Nineveh.



Sin-shar-ishkun, the last king of Assyria, followed the example of Sardanapalus and set fire to his palace during siege of Nineveh, 607 B. C., perishing in the flames. Above is the death of Sardanapalus, as conceived by the famous French painter, L. Chalon.

—From the "Book of History" (The Grolier Society).

A year ago the newspapers carried an account of the melodramatic killing of the religious and political ruler of the Assyrians, Mar Simoon, in the mountains of Northwestern Persia, near Urmia. The following historical background was detailed:

In the remote days before the triumph of Islam, the progeny of the Assyrians and Babylonians of heroic antiquity had taken the doctrine of the Bishop Nestorius, and the Nestorian Church had spread, a great Christian hierarchy, from Asia Minor to the confines of China. It had fallen in ruins before the wild, ephemeral empire of the Tartars, and had survived only in isolated communities, notably among the Assyrians of Mesopotamia. There these Nestorians had preserved their Christianity through the evil millennium and a quarter that had followed, much as the Armenians preserved theirs, except that the Assyrians, by retiring into the mountains for defense, had kept a semblance of national freedom. Communities of them, two centuries ago, had evaded Turkish pressure by migrating into Persia, but the body of the people had maintained themselves in the hills about the upper waters of the Tigris. When the World War broke out they, under the rulership of their Nestorian patriarch, Mar Simoon, had declared for the allies, had been attacked overwhelmingly, and had had to fight their way over a bitter odyssey to Persia, to their fellow Assyrians in Urmia. There the Kurdish tribes had fallen upon them.

Mar Simoon was killed by a stratagem, and when the rise of the Bolsheviki had cut away what help Russia had been giving them, the Assyrians were compelled to make another battle march, now together with their co-religionists of Urmia, back to Mesopotamia, which by that time was conquered by the British.

"We thought then that the rebirth of Assyria, after the 25 centuries since Cyrus the Persian, had finally been won," said Werda. "We did not know that another very different, but also very difficult, fight lay before us." The Assyrian leader at the desk spoke in tones of heavy decisiveness as he related a tale of curious diplomacy. Certain highly modernistic details attend the resurgence of the kingdom of royal Sardanapalus.

"We Assyrian Nestorians appealed to the West with great hope. There was great romance in our cause. Not only had we memories behind us of our empires in antiquity, but we stood the heirs of the grandiose Nestorian Church of old Christianity. The Council of Constantinople would be recalled by our state, and the epic controversies of the fourth century. We sent to London a vastly able and interesting protagonist.

"When the Kurds in Persia killed our Mar Simoon (all the Nestorian patriarchs take the name of Mar Simoon, after a great Bishop of the old days), he was succeeded by his brother, a young man who soon grew ill and died. The patriarchate is confined to an ancient ecclesiastical family, though the patriarchs do not marry, who select the best of themselves as Mar Simoon, and now the son (a boy) of a brother of the two dead Bishops was made the new Mar Simoon. In his minority the rulership devolved on his father and aunt, she the sister of the father and the dead Bishops. Thus we come to Lady Surma, a brilliant and heroic woman, who leads the Assyrians like a Semiramis returned to the world.

"More than 25 years ago the Church of England, noting the likeness of the Nestorian Church to itself, sent a group of ecclesiastics to observe our religious customs. These English Bishops came and were caught by the charm and brilliance of our patriarch, then only a child (it was he whose death later in the war we still lament), and of his sister, Lady Surma. They gained the friendship of our patriarchal family, and had English tutors instruct the two children in the arts and knowledge of the West.

"Thus Lady Surma learned to sit an English woman

WEBSTER—MAN'S MAN

By PETER B. KYNE

CHAPTER XXVI.

FOR half an hour after Webster had left her to assist the great-hearted Mother Jenks in her care of the wounded, Dolores, absorbed in her work of mercy, gave all of her thought to the grim task before her. The cries, followed by the sudden, savage outbreak of fire when the guards made their dash from the palace, brought Webster and Don Juan to mind instantly. In a quick access of terror and apprehension she clung, trembling, to stolid old Mother Jenks.

"Somebody's breakin' in or breakin' out," the veteran decided, calmly. "Come to the corner, dearie, an' 'ave a look."

She half dragged Dolores to the corner, from which they had an unobstructed view down the cross-street to its intersection three blocks distant with the Calle San Rosario; consequently they saw the dozen or more survivors of that ill-fated dash from the north gate of the palace flash for a second across their line of vision. Mother Jenks croaked dismally, like a disreputable old raven; she was trying to cheer.

"The rats are leavin' the sinkin' ship," she wheezed. "Come an' see them 'ike the devils as killed my sainted 'Enery." She broke eagerly from Dolores' detaining grasp and ran down the street. Dolores hesitated a moment; then, reasoning that her duty lay in pursuing Mother Jenks and preventing her from rushing headlong into the conflict, she followed.

Evidently the fleeing guards had scurried around a corner into a cross street shortly after Dolores and Mother Jenks had seen them gallop past, for the firing down the Calle San Rosario had ceased entirely by the time they reached it. They stood a moment at the corner, gazing up the street at the dead—men and beast—with the wounded crawling out of the shambles to the sidewalk.

Mother Jenks nodded approvingly as triumphant shouts from the north gate told her the Ruey men were pouring into the palace; with their arms about each other, the two women watched and waited—and presently the national flag on the palace came fluttering down from its staff, to be raised again with the red banner of revolution fluttering above it, the insignia of a nation reborn.

"My lamb," Mother Jenks said softly to Dolores, "the war is over. Wot's the matter with goin' in the south gate an' wytin' on the palace steps for the provisional President to make his grand entray? If we 'esitate five minutes they'll have a bloomin' guard on both gates, arskin' us 'oo we are an' wot we want."

"But Mr. Webster will come to that back street looking for me. I must go back and wait there for him."

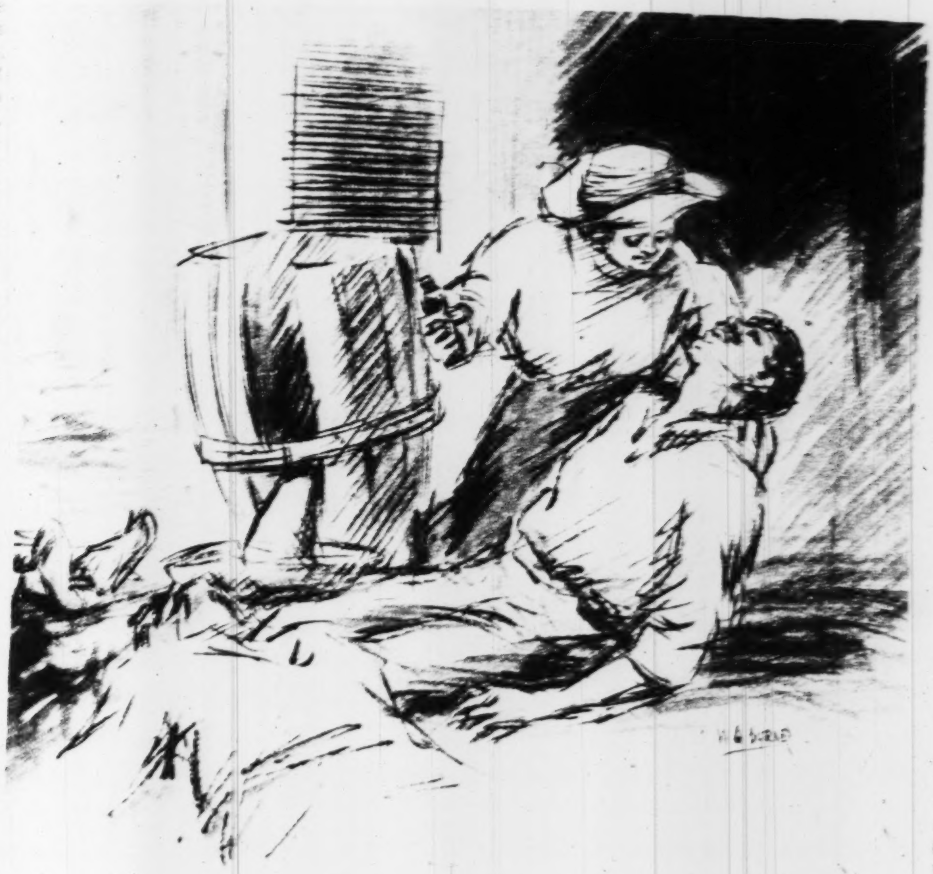
"Wyte, nothink!" Mother Jenks overruled the girl's protest, roughly. "'E'll 'ave gone into the palace with the crowd for a look-see; we'll meet 'im there an' syve 'im the trouble o' 'untin' for us. Come!" And she half dragged the shrinking girl toward the gate, a block distant, where only a few minutes before Webster and Don Juan Cafetero had made their ineffectual stand.

"Don't look at the blighters, honey," Mother Jenks warned Dolores, when, in approaching the gate, she caught sight of the bodies strewed in front of it. "My word! Regular bally mess—an' all spiggoties! Cawn't be. Must 'ave been some white meat on this bird, as my sainted 'Enery used s'y. Hey! Thought so. There's a red-headed 'un! Gawd's truth! An' 'e done all that—Gor' strike me pink! It's Don Juan Cafetero."

Mother Jenks stepped over the gory corpses ringed around Don Juan and knelt beside him. "Don Juan!" she cried. "You bally, interferin' blighter, you've gone an' got it!"

She ran her strong old arms under his dripping body, lifted him and laid his red head on her knee, while with her free hand she drew a small flask of brandy from her dress pocket.

Don Juan opened his buttermilk eyes and gazed up at her with slowly dawning wonder, then closed them again, drowsily, like a tired child. Mother Jenks pressed the flask to his blue lips; as the brandy bit his tongue he rolled his fiery head in feeble protest and weakly set his teeth against the lip of the flask.



"I give him me worrd av honor—not—to dhrink—till—he—give—permission."

Wonderingly, Mother Jenks withdrew it—and then Don Juan spoke.

"Have ye the masther's permission, allanah? I give him me worrd av honor—not—to dhrink—till—he—give—permission. He—was good—to me—troth he was—God love—me—boss"—

His jaw dropped loosely; his head rolled sideways; but ere his spirit fled, Don Juan Cafetero had justified the faith of his master. He had kept his word of honor; he had made good on his brag to die for John Stuart Webster and welcome the chance! Mother Jenks held his body a little while, gazing into the face no longer rubicund, then gently she eased it to the ground and for the first time was aware that Dolores knelt in the dirt opposite to her striving to lift the body upon which Don Juan had been lying.

The strength of Dolores was unequal to the task; so Mother Jenks, hardened, courageous, calm as her sainted 'Enery at his inglorious finish, rose and stepped around to her side to help her. She could see that this other was a white man, too; coolly she stooped and wiped his gory face with the hem of her apron. And then she recognized him!

"Lift him up! Give him to me!" Dolores sobbed. "Oh, Caliph, my poor, dear, big-hearted, blundering boy!"

She got her arm under his head; Mother Jenks aided her, and the limp body was lifted to a sitting position; then Dolores knelt on one knee, supporting him with the other, and drew his head over on her shoulder; with her white cheek cuddled against his, she spoke into his deaf ears the little, tender, foolish words that mothers have for children, that women have for the stricken men of their love. She pleaded with him to open his eyes, to speak to her and tell her he still lived; so close was his face to hers that she saw an old but very faint white scar running diagonally across his left eyebrow—and kissed it.

Presently strong arms took him from her; clinging to somebody—she knew not whom—she followed, moaning broken-heartedly, while eight men, forming a rude litter with four rifles passed under his body, bore Webster to the shade of a tufted palm inside the palace gate.

As they laid Webster down for a moment there Dolores saw a tall, youthful man, of handsome features and noble bearing, approach and look at him. In his eyes there were tears; a sob escaped him as, with a little, impulsive, affectionate movement, he patted John Stuart Webster's cheek.

"My friend!" the fainting Dolores heard him murmur. "My great-hearted, whimsical, lovable John Webster. You made it possible for me to meet you here tonight—and this is the meeting!"

CHAPTER XXVII.

WHILE Ricardo watched beside the unconscious Webster one of his aides galloped up the street, to return presently with a detachment with stretchers, into which Webster and Don Cafetero were laid and carried up the palace driveway into the huge, gilded reception hall, where only the night before Sarros had greeted the belles and beaux of the capital. In the meantime Mother Jenks had succeeded in restoring Dolores to consciousness; supported by the indomitable old woman the girl slowly followed the grim procession until, at the door of the reception room, they found their further progress barred by a sentry.

"The red-haired man is dead," he informed them, in response to their eager inquiries. "If you want his body," he concluded, hazarding a guess as to their mission, "I guess you can have it. There he is." And the sentry pointed to the stretcher which had been set down along the wall of the reception hall.

"'Ow about the other?" Mother Jenks demanded. Don Juan Cafetero had, unfortunately, been too much of a nuisance in her life that she was not minded to be troubled greatly over him in death, although the Spartanlike manner of his exit had thrilled the British bulldog blood in her.

"The big fellow isn't quite dead yet, but I'm afraid he's a goner. The surgeons have him in this room now. Friend of yours, miss?" he inquired, in tones freighted with neighborly sympathy.

Dolores nodded.

"Sorry I can't let you in, miss," he continued, "but the General ordered me to keep everybody out until the doctors have finished looking him over. If I was you, I'd wait in that room across the hall; then you can get the first news when the doctors come out."

Mother Jenks accepted his advice and steered her charge into the room indicated. And as they waited, Ricardo Ruey stood anxiously beside the table on which John Stuart Webster's big, limp body reposed, while Dr. Pacheco, assisted by a Sobrantean confrere, went deftly over him with surgical scissors and cut the blood-soaked clothing from his body.

"He breathes very gently," the rebel leader said presently. "Is there any hope?"

The little doctor shrugged. "I fear not. That bayonet-thrust in the left side missed his heart but not his lung."

"But apparently he hasn't bled much from that wound."

"The hemorrhage is probably internal. Even if that congestion of blood in the lungs does not prove fatal very shortly, he cannot, in his weakened state, survive the traumatic fever from all these wounds. It is bound—hello, how our poor friend still lives with the bayonet broken off in his body—for here is steel—hah! Not a bayonet, but a pistol."

He unbuttoned the wounded man's coat and found a strap running diagonally up across his breast and over the right shoulder, connecting with a holster under the left arm. The doctor unbuckled this strap and removed the holster, which contained Webster's spare gun. Ricardo, glancing disinterestedly at the sheathed weapon, noted a small, new, triangular hole in the leather holster. He picked it up, withdrew the pistol, and found a deep scratch, recently made, along the blued steel close to the vulcanite butt.

When Ricardo glanced at Pacheco after his scrutiny of the pistol and holster, the doctor's dark eyes were regarding him mirthfully.

"I have been unnecessarily alarmed, my General," said Pacheco. "Our dear friend has been most fortunate in his choice of wounds"—

"He's a lucky Yankee; that's what he is, my dear Pacheco. A lucky Yankee!" Ricardo leaned over and examined the bayonet wound in Webster's left side. "He took the point of the steel on this pistol he happened to be wearing under his left arm," he went on to explain. "That turned the bayonet and it slid along his ribs, making a superficial flesh wound."

Pacheco nodded. "And this bullet merely burned the top of his right shoulder, while another passed through his biceps without touching the bone. His most severe wound is this bayonet jab in the hip.'"

They stripped every stitch of clothing from Webster and went over him carefully. At the back of his head they found a little clotted blood from a small slit in the scalp; also they found a lump of generous proportions. Pacheco laughed briefly but contentedly.

"Then he is not even seriously injured?" Ricardo interrupted that laugh.

"I would die of fright if I had to fight this fine fellow a month from today," the little doctor chirped. "Look at that chest, mi General—and that flat abdomen. The man is in superb physical condition; it is the bump on the head that renders him unconscious—not loss of blood."

As if to confirm this expert testimony, Webster at that moment breathed long and deeply, screwed up his face and shook his head very slightly. Thereafter for several minutes he gave no further evidence of an active interest in life—seeing which Pacheco decided to take prompt advantage of his unconsciousness and probe the wounds in his arm and shoulder for the fragments of clothing which the bullets must have carried into them. After 10 minutes of probing Pacheco announced that he was through and ready to bandage; whereupon John Stuart Webster said faintly but very distinctly, in English:

"I'm awfully glad you are, Doc. It hurt like hell! Did you manage to get a bite on that fishing trip?"

"Jack Webster, you scoundrel!" Ricardo yelled, joyously, and he shook the patient, with entire disregard of the latter's wounds. "Oh, man, I'm glad you're not dead."

"Your sentiments appeal to me strongly, my friend. I'm—too—tired to look—at you. Who the devil—are you?"

"I'm Ricardo."

Fell a silence, while Webster prepared for another speech. "Where am I?"

"In the palace."

"Hum-m! Then it was a famous victory."

"One strong, decisive blow did the trick, old chap. We won pulled up, and that $40,000 bet of yours is safe. I'll cash the ticket for you tomorrow morning."

"Damn the forty thousand. Where's my Croppy boy?"

"Your what?"

"My wild Irish blackthorn, Don Juan Cafetero."

"I hope, old man, he has ere now that which all brave Irishmen and true deserve—a harp with a crown. In life the Irish have the harp without the crown, you know."

"How did he die?"

"He died hard, with the holes in front—and he died for you."

Two big tears trickled slowly through Webster's closed lids and rolled across his pale cheek. "Poor, lost, lonesome, misunderstood wreck," he murmured presently. "He was an extremist in all things. He used to sing those wonderfully poetic ballads of his people—I remember one that began: 'Green were the fields where my forefathers dwelt.' I think his heart was in Kerry—so we'll send him there. He's my dead, Ricardo; care for his body, because I'm—going to plant Don Juan with the—shamrocks. They didn't understand him here. He was an exile—so I'm going to send him—home."

"He shall have a military funeral," Ricardo promised.

"From the cathedral," Webster added. "And take a picture of it for his people. He told me about them. I want them to think he amounted to something, after all. And when you get this two-by-four republic of yours going again, Rick, you might have your Congress award Don Juan a thousand dollars oro for capturing Sarros. Then we can send the money to his old folks."

"But he didn't capture Sarros," Ricardo protested. "The man escaped when the guards cut their way through."

"He didn't. That was a ruse while he beat it out the gate where you found me. I saw Don Juan knock him cold with the butt of his rifle after I'd brought down his horse."

"Do you think he's there yet?"

"He may be—provided all this didn't happen the day before yesterday. If I wanted him, I'd go down and look for him, Rick."

"I'll go right away, Jack."

"One minute, then. Send a man around to that little back street where they have the wounded—it's a couple of blocks away from here—to tell Mother Jenks and the young lady with her I'll not be back."

"They're both outside now. They must have gone looking for you, because they found you and Don Juan first and then told me about it."

"Who told you?"

"Mother Jenks."

"Oh! Well, run along and get your man."

Ricardo departed on the run, taking the sentry at the door with him and in his haste giving no thought to Mother Jenks and her companion waiting for the doctor's verdict. In the palace grounds he gathered two more men and bade them follow him; leading by 20 yards, he emerged at the gate and paused to look around him.

Some hundred feet down the street from the palace gate Sarros' bay charger lay dead. When Webster's bullet brought the poor beast down, his rider had fallen clear of him, only to fall a victim to the ferocity of Don Juan Cafetero. Later, as Sarros lay stunned and bleeding beside his mount, the stricken animal in its death struggle had half risen, only to fall again, this time on the extended left leg of his late master; consequently, when Sarros recovered consciousness following the thoughtful attentions of his assailant, it was to discover himself a hopeless prisoner. The heavy carcass of his horse pinned his foot and part of his leg to the ground, rendering him as helpless and desperate as a trapped animal. For several minutes now he had been striving frantically to release himself; with his sound right leg pressed against the animal's backbone he tried to gain sufficient purchase to withdraw his left leg from the carcass.

As Ricardo caught sight of Sarros he instinctively realized that this was his mortal enemy. Motioning his men to stand back, he approached the struggling man on tiptoe and thoughtfully possessed himself of the dictator's pistol, which lay in back of him but not out of reach. Just as he did so, Sarros, apparently convinced of the futility of his efforts to free himself, surrendered to fate and commenced rather pitifully to weep with rage and despair.

Ricardo watched him for a few seconds, for there was just sufficient of the blood of his Castilian ancestors still in his veins to render this sorry spectacle rather an enjoyable one to him. Besides, he was 50 per cent Iberian, a race which can hate quite as thoroughly as it can love, and for a time Ricardo even nourished the thought of still further indulging his thirst for revenge by pretending to aid Sarros in his escape! Presently, however, he put the ungenerous thought from him; seizing the dead horse by the tail, he dragged the carcass off his enemy's leg, and while Sarros sat up, tailor fashion, and commenced to rub the circulation back into the bruised member, Ricardo seated himself on the rump of the dead horse and appraised his prisoner critically.

Sarros glanced up, remembered his manners and very heartily and gracefully thanked his deliverer.

"It is not a matter for which thanks are due me, Sarros," Ricardo replied, coldly. "I am Ricardo Luiz Ruey, and I have come back to Sobrante to pay my father's debt to you. You will remember having forced the obligation upon me in the cemetery some 15 years ago."

For perhaps 10 horrified seconds Sarros stared at Ricardo; then the dark blood in him came to his defense; his tense pose relaxed; the fright and despair left his swarthy countenance as if erased with a moist sponge, leaving him as calmly stoical and indifferent as a cigar-store Indian. He fumbled in his coat pocket for a gold cigarette case, selected a cigarette, lighted it and blew smoke at Ricardo. The jig was up; he knew it; and with admirable nonchalance he declined to lower his presidential dignity by discussing or considering it. He realized it would delight his captor to know he dreaded to face the issue, and it was not a Sarros practice to give aid and comfort to the enemy.

"Spunky devil!" Ricardo reflected, forced to admiration despite himself. Aloud he said: "You know the code of our people, Sarros. An eye for an eye and a tooth for a tooth."

Sarros bowed. "I am at your service," he replied, carelessly.

"Then at daylight tomorrow morning I shall make settlement." Ricardo beckoned his men to approach. "Take this man and confine him under a double guard in the arsenal," he ordered. "Present my compliments to the officer in charge there and tell him it is my wish that a priest be provided for the prisoner tonight, and that tomorrow morning, at 6 o'clock, a detail of six men and a Sergeant escort this man to the cemetery in the rear of the Catedral de la Cruz. I will meet the detail there and take command of it."

Two of Ricardo's imported fighting men stepped to the prisoner's side, seized him, one by each arm, and lifted him to his feet; supported between them, he limped away to his doom, while his youthful conqueror remained seated on the dead horse, his gaze bent upon the ground, his mind dwelling, not upon his triumph over Sarros, but upon the prodigious proportions of the task before him: the rehabilitation of a nation. After a while he rose and strolled over toward the gate, where he paused to note the grim evidences of the final stand of Webster and Don Juan Cafetero, before passing through the portal.

Ricardo had now, for the first time, an opportunity to look around him; so he halted to realize his homecoming, to thrill with this, the first real view of the home of his boyhood. The spacious lawn surrounding the palace had been plowed and scarred with bursting shrapnel from the field-guns captured in the arsenal, although the building itself had been little damaged, not having sustained a direct hit because of Ricardo's stringent orders not to use artillery on the palace unless absolutely necessary to smoke Sarros out. Scattered over the grounds Ricardo counted some twenty-odd Government soldiers, all wearing that pathetically flat, crumpled appearance which seems inseparable from the bodies of men killed in action. The first shrapnel had probably commenced to drop in the grounds just as a portion of the palace garrison had been marching out to join the troops fighting at the cantonment barracks. Evidently the men had scattered like quail, only to be killed as they ran.

From this grim scene Ricardo raised his eyes to the palace, the castellated towers of which, looming through the tufted palms, were reflecting the setting sun. Over the balustrade of one of the upper balconies the limp body of a Sarros sharpshooter, picked off from the street, drooped grotesquely, his arms hanging downward as if in ironical welcome to the son of Ruey the Beloved. The sight induced in Ricardo a sense of profound sadness; his Irish imagination awoke; to him that mute figure seemed to call upon him for pity, for kindness, for forbearance, for understanding and sympathy. Those outflung arms of the martyred peon symbolized to Ricardo Ruey the spirit of liberty, shackled and helpless, calling upon him for deliverance; they brought to his alert mind a clearer realization of the duty that was his than he had ever had before. He had a great task to perform, a task inaugurated by his father, and which Ricardo could not hope to finish in his lifetime. He must solve the agrarian problem; he must develop the rich natural resources of his country; he must provide free, compulsory education and evolve from the ignorance of the peon an intelligence that would build up that which Sobrante, in common with her sister republics, so woefully lacked—the great middle class that stands always as a buffer between the aggression and selfishness of the upper class and the helplessness and childishness of the lower.

Ricardo bowed his head. "Help me, O Lord," he prayed. "Thou hast given me in Thy wisdom a man's task. Help me that I may not prove unworthy."

CHAPTER XXVIII.

MOTHER JENKS, grown impatient at the lack of news concerning Webster, left Dolores to her grief in the room across the hall and sought the open air, for of late she had been experiencing with recurring frequency a slight feeling of suffocation. She sat down on the broad granite steps, helped herself to a much-needed "bracer" from her brandy flask and was gazing pensively at the scene around her when Ricardo came up the stairs.

"'Ello!" Mother Jenks saluted him. "W'ere 'ave you been, Mr. Bowers?"

"I have just returned from capturing Sarros, Mrs. Jenks. He is on his way to the arsenal under guard."

"Gor' strike me pink!" the old lady cried. "'Ave I lived to see this day!" Her face wreathed in a happy smile. "I wonder 'ow the beggar feels to 'ave the shoe on the other foot, eh—the 'eartless 'ound! I'm 'opin' this Gen. Ruey will 'ave the blighter shot."

"You need have no worry on that score, Mrs. Jenks. I'm Gen. Ruey. Andrew Bowers was just my summer name, as it were."

"Angels guard me! Wot the bloomin' 'ell surprise won't we 'ave next! Wot branch o' the Ruey tribe do you belong to? Are you a nephew o' him that was President before Sarros shot 'im? Antonio Ruey, who was 'arf brother to the President, 'ad a son 'e called Ricardo. Are you 'im, might I arsk?"

"I am the son of Ricardo the Beloved," he answered, proudly.

"Not the lad as was away at school when 'is father was hexecuted?"

"Yes," said Ricardo, nodding.

"I," the old publican replied, with equal pride, "am Mrs. Col. 'Enery Jenks, who was your father's chief of hartillery an' 'ad the hextreme honor o' dyin' in front o' the same wall with 'im. By the w'y, 'ow's Mr. Webster?" she added, suddenly remembering the subject closest to her heart just then.

"His wounds are trifling. He'll live, Mrs. Jenks."

"Well, that's better than gettin' poked in the eye with a sharp stick," the old dame decided philosophically.

"Do you remember my little sister, Mrs. Jenks?" Ricardo continued. "She was in the palace when Sarros attacked it; she perished there."

"I believe I 'ave got a slight recollection o' the nipper, sir," Mother Jenks answered cautiously. To herself she said: "I s'y, 'Enrietta, 'ere's a pretty go. 'E don't know the lamb is livin' an' in the next room! My word, wot a riot w'en 'e meets 'er!"

"I will see you again, Mrs. Jenks. I must have a long talk with you," Ricardo told her, and passed on into the palace; whereupon Mother Jenks once more fervently implored the Almighty to strike her pink, and the iron restraint of a long, hard, exciting day being realized at last, the good soul bowed her gray head in her arms and wept, moving her body from side to side the while and demanding, of no one in particular, a single legitimate reason why she, a blooming old baggage and not fit to live, should be the recipient of such manifold blessings as this day had brought forth.

In the meantime, Ricardo, with his hand on the knob of the door leading to the room where Webster was having his wounds dressed, paused suddenly, his attention caught by the sound of a sob, long-drawn and inexpressibly pathetic. He listened and made up his mind that a woman in the room across the entrance hall was bewailing the death of a loved one who answered to the name of Caliph and John, darling. Further eavesdropping convinced him that Caliph, John darling and Mr. John Stuart Webster were one and the same person, and so he tilted his head on one side like a cock-robin and considered.

"By jingo, that's most interesting," he decided. "The wounded hero has a sweetheart or a wife—and an American, too: She must be a recent acquisition, because all the time we were together on the steamer coming down here he never spoke of either, despite the fact that we got friendly enough for such confidences. Something funny about this."

He passed on into the room. John Stuart Webster had, by this time, been washed and bandaged, and one of the Sarros servants (for the ex-dictator's retinue still occupied the palace) had, at Dr. Pacheco's command, prepared a guest chamber upstairs and furnished a nightgown of ample proportions to cover Mr. Webster's rebandaged but otherwise naked person. A stretcher had just arrived, and the wounded man was about to be carried upstairs. The late financial backer of the revolution was looking very pale and dispirited; for once in his life his whimsical, bantering nature was subdued. His eyes were closed, and he did not open them when Ricardo entered.

"Well, I have Sarros," the latter declared.

Webster paid not the slightest attention to this announcement. Ricardo bent over him. "Jack, old boy," he queried, "do you know a person of feminine persuasion who calls you Caliph?"

John Stuart Webster's eyes and mouth flew wide open. "What the devil!" he tried to roar. "You haven't been speaking to her, have you? If you have, I'll never forgive you, because you've spoiled my little surprise party."

"No, I haven't been speaking to her, but she's in the next room crying fit to break her heart because she thinks you've been killed."

"You scoundrel! Aren't you human? Go tell her it's only a couple of punctures, not a blowout." He sighed. "Isn't it sweet of her to weep over an old hunk like me!" he added, softly. "Bless her tender heart!"

"Who is she?" Ricardo was very curious.

"That's none of your business. You wait and I'll tell you. She's the guest I told you I was going to bring to dinner, and that's enough for you to know for the present. Vayva, you idiot, and bring her in here, so I can assure her my head is bloody but unbowed. Doctor, throw that rug over my shanks and make me look pretty. I'm going to receive company."

to Alaska, and a peninsula which included the Atlantic coast states and the West Indies, and joined the South American continent. About where Nevada, Arizona and the State of Sonora, in Mexico, now lie, a huge island projected itself from the sea.

Very remarkable, on this map, is the revelation that Australia was at that distant time joined to Africa instead of Asia, most of which lay under the ocean. So that, if these theories are correct, it was possible at one era in the world's history to travel entirely by land from Alaska to Australia, walking across what are now the Atlantic and Indian Oceans.

The lost continent of the Pacific, according to the belief of geologists, ranged south and east from China to include the Philippine Islands, Sumatra, Borneo, Java, New Guinea, Australia and Tasmania.

After 25 Centuries Assyria Becomes Nation Again

among the English, but she vowed herself to a life of nunhood in devotion to her people and her church. It was she whom we sent to London as our Ambassadress. I went as a delegate to Paris.

"We met resistance before the allied council." A frown of Jovelike exasperation gathered on the speaker's brow. "We met resistance from an unexpected quarter—from American missionary interests. Their motives were interesting.

"There is a great missionary establishment in Persia, centering at Urmia. It has found its entire strength among the Assyrians. Without them the missionaries, never able to make much impression upon the Moslems, find their propaganda in Persia in a state of collapse. They must have an Assyrian colony in Persia. But if an Assyrian nation were established in the lands of old Assyria, it would mean a unification of the Assyrian race. It would mean that the Assyrians who migrated to the Urmia district 200 years ago, and who left Persia with the body of the people during the war troubles, would remain in Upper Mesopotamia as part of the nation. Thus, the missionaries looked upon the re-creation of Assyria with bitter hostility.

"They opposed us with their influence among the allied Governments. They incited their followers among us to demand Urmia from Persia, when Urmia is as Persian as Ispahan, and some of the Assyrians who owned vineyards back in Persia were moved by their counsel. Their reasonings were the more persuasive for their holding the American relief funds.

"The British authorities, planning to give us old Assyria, in Upper Mesopotamia, grew impatient at this missionary faction, who opposed the formation of Assyria and cried out for Urmia, and told them to go and take Urmia—if they could. This permission to march and conquer the Kurds and Persians worked hard against the missionaries. Lady Surma in London and we in other parts continued our labors, marshaling our own people and the Western Governments for a new Assyria on the lands of great Assyria, and finally, now, our petition has been granted."

Werda concluded with a canticle of triumph, not such a canticle as Shalmaneser might have addressed to the ever-victorious Marduk, or as the Bishop Nestorius might have composed in praise of a subtly defined Trinity, but one far more in the mood of this day.

"The land of Assyria," he related, "is vastly rich in buried wealth, not alone in the grandiose ruins of Nineveh and Babylon, but also in coal, iron, other minerals and oil. German enthusiasm for the subterranean wealth of Upper Mesopotamia was a large factor in the causation of the World War, and you will remember the recent American note to Great Britain over the Upper Mesopotamian oil question. We will build on the foundation of modern metallurgy and commerce, and the old empire that sent its spearmen from the Persian mountains to the delta of the Nile, the early church that set up a hierarchy across the width of Central Asia, will re-establish themselves in unison with a structure of modernistic industry."

And the new Semiramis will rule near the dust of Nineveh until her nephew takes lordship as Mar Simoon, the patriarch of the Nestorian Church.

Semiramis, the celebrated Queen of Assyria in its days of earliest glory, is now regarded as a legendary figure, although according to Herodotus there was a Semiramis, Queen of Babylon, in the first half of the eighth century, B. C. Babylon had been subject to Assyria more than once before the Babylonians, in conjunction with the Medes under Cyaxares, finally brought the Assyrians' proud history as a great, independent power to a close in 607 B. C.

According to the Greek historiographers (but uncorroborated by the cuneiform inscriptions) Semiramis was the daughter of the Syrian goddess, Derceto. First married to a General of Ninus, King of Assyria and founder of Nineveh, she later became the wife of the King and after the latter's death ruled the dominions for more than 40 years. She was said to have founded Babylon and to have built the city in all its magnificence, as well as many other cities, roads and canals, and to have carried out numerous great undertakings.

The legend sets forth that she conquered Persia, Egypt, Libya and Ethiopia and even invaded India, but there her army was defeated and she herself was wounded in a personal encounter with King Stabrobates. Ninyas, her son, finally became restive, plotted against her, and in the sixty-second year of her life and the forty-second of her reign, she disappeared. Some of these writers say she was changed into a dove and became a deity.

A DAY'S HAWKING

By E. V. LUCAS,

in the London Sphere.

ONE of my best days in India was that on which Col. Sir Umar Hayat Khan took us out a-hawking. Sir Umar is himself something of a hawk—an impressive figure in his great turban with long streamers, his keen aqueline features and blackest of hair. All sport comes naturally to him, whether hunting or shooting, pig-sticking, coursing or falconry; and the Great War found him with a sportsman's eagerness to rush into the fray, where he distinguished himself notably.

We found this gallant chieftain in the midst of his retainers on the further bank of the Jumna at Delhi, at the end of the long bridge. Here the plains begin—miles of fields of stubble, with here and there a tree, and here and there a pool or marsh, as far as eye can reach, an ancient walled city in the near distance being almost the only excrescence. Between the river and this city was our hunting ground.

With the exception of Sir Umar, two of his friends and ourselves, the company was on foot; and nothing more like the Middle Ages did I ever see. The retainers were in every kind of costume, one having an old pink coat and one a green; one leading a couple of grayhounds in case we put up a hare; others carrying guns (for we were prepared for all); while the chief falconer and his assistants had their hawks on their wrists, and one odd old fellow was provided with a net, in which a captive live hawk was to flutter and struggle to attract his hereditary foes the little birds, who, deeming him unable to hit back, were to swarm down to deride and defy and be caught in the meshes.

I may say at once that hawking, particularly in this form, does not give me much pleasure. There is something magnificent in the flight of the falcon when it is released and flung towards its prey, but the odds are too heavy in its favor, and the whimperings of the doomed quarry strike a chill in the heart. We flew our hawks at duck and plovers, and missed none. Often the first swoop failed, but the deadly, implacable pursuer was instantly ready to swoop again, and rarely was a third maneuver necessary. Man, under the influence of the excitement of the chase, is the same all the world over, and there was no difference between these Indians, moving swiftly to intervene between the hawk and its stricken prey, and an English boy running to retrieve his rabbit. Their animation and triumph—even their shouts and cries—were alike.

And so we crossed field after field on our gentle steeds—and no one admires gentleness in a horse more than I—stopping only to watch another tragedy of the air, or to look across the river to Delhi and see the fort under new conditions. All this country I had so often looked down upon from those high, massive walls, standing in one of the lovely windows of Shah Jahan's earthly paradise; and now the scene was reversed, and I began to take more delight in it than in the sport. But at a pond to which we next came there was enacted a drama so absorbing that everything else was forgotten, even the heat of the sun.

Upon this pond were three wild duck, at which a falcon was instantly flown. For a while, however, they kept their presence of mind and refused to leave the water, at the moment that the enemy was within a foot of them diving beneath the surface. On went the hawk, in its terrible, cruel onset, and up came the ducks, all ready to repeat these tactics when it turned and attacked again. But on one of the party (I swear it was not I), in order to assist the hawk, firing his gun, two of the ducks became panic-stricken and left the water, only, of course, to be quickly destroyed. It was on his return journey to the pond to make sure of the third that I saw for the first time in my life—and I hope the last—the expression on the countenance of a hawk in the execution of his duty: more than the mere execution of his duty, the determination to have no more nonsense, to put an end to anything so monstrous as self-protection in others: for my horse being directly in his way, the hawk flew under its neck, and for a moment I thought that he was confusing me and the desired mallard. Nothing more merciless or purposeful did I ever see.

Then began a really heroic struggle on the part of the victim. He timed his dives to perfection, and escaped so often that the spirit of chivalry would have decreed a truce. But blood had been tasted, and, the desire being for more, the guns were again discharged. Not even they, however, could divert the duck from his intention of saving his life, and he dived away from the shot too, or took so brief a flight that the hawk was baffled.

It was at this moment that assistance to the gallant little bird arrived—not from man, who was past all decency, but from brother feathers. Out of a clear sky suddenly appeared two tern, dazzling in their whiteness, and these did all in their power to infuriate the hawk and lure him from the water. They flew around him and over him; they called him names; they said he was a bully, and that all of us (which was true) ought to be ashamed of ourselves; they flaunted and challenged and attacked. But the enemy was too strong for them. A fusillade drove them off, and once again we were free to consider the case of the duck, who was still swimming anxiously about, hoping against hope. More shots were fired, one of the boys waded in with a stick, and the dogs were added to the assault; and in the face of so determined a bombardment the poor little creature at last flew up, to be killed within a few seconds by the insatiable avenger.

That was the crowning event of the afternoon. Thereafter we had only small successes, and some very pronounced failures, when, as happened several times, a bird flew for safety through a tree, and the hawk, following, was held up amid the branches. One of the birds thus to escape was a bluejay of brilliant beauty. We also got some hares. And then we loitered back under the yellowing sky, and Sir Umar Hayat Khan ceased suddenly to be a foe of fur and feathers and became a poet, talking of sunsets in India and in England as though the appreciation of tender beauty were his only pleasure.

suddenly become to herself. "I do not quite understand."

"No," he said, "nor I. I can scarcely realize it yet. Grace, dear, I have been left a legacy. I just got word of it last night and came right on. I am rich, girl, as rich as the man you married, and now this miserable mistake can be undone!"

He held out his arms to her and took an impetuous step forward, but she held up her hand and stopped him, as she had stopped her husband once before.

"I am so glad you came, Gilbert!" she said with the ring of a great new joy in her voice. "So glad! Otherwise, as you have pointed out, my miserable mistake might have gone on and on; but it is not the mistake you have in mind. I have spent a week with an honorable man, a man who, for all his thoughtfulness and all his devotion and all his love—his love, Gilbert!—has had not one caress in payment, not even gentle words, other than those that formal courtesy would bring from anyone.

"I have seen him morning, noon and night, and, without knowing that I was doing it, I have studied him well; and I know, sir, that under no circumstances could he have done this unworthy thing that you have done today; nor could he have offered to any woman, least of all the one he loved, the insult that you have offered to me. His only thought would be to shield me.

"Why, when I tell him of this, as I must, so that no shadow may fall between us, I know just what he will do. He will attach weight only to the fact that I have told him, and then he will never again refer to it—never. So good and kind and generous he is, and so made of honor. I don't think that I can make you understand the sort of man he is. I did not realize it myself until now. And to think that I might not have known! For this awakening I thank you; oh, Gilbert, how I do thank you! And good-by!"

Turning, she swept from the room, and when she had gained her own apartments and had closed the door behind her, she caught up the roses that he had provided for her and buried her face in them.

When she presently raised her head there were tears upon her lashes, but she was smiling, and as she went about dressing for dinner she found herself singing, for the first time in many, many days. There was a flush upon her cheeks, too, that did not go away.

III.

THAT was a long, long afternoon, but she had a splendid joke—oh, a grand, good joke!—to keep her company; one that made her laugh aloud time after time, but that nearly always brought the tears springing to her eyes.

It was not a joke, though, to be lightly frittered away at the first opportunity. Ah, no, it was one to be nursed and jealously guarded for the very joy of it, and when Ralph came to take her to dinner she was as gravely reserved with him as usual, though he thought her more beautiful and more vivacious in appearance than ever. That rich flush upon her face was becoming, too.

Throughout the dinner she preserved her grave formality, except that once or twice she startled him by breaking into happy chatter, apropos of nothing; but when he strove to seize upon this boon she grew reserved again and hid her eyes. She carried her calm graciousness through the performance at the theater, though once or twice he fancied that he detected her turning to him with twinkling eyes. Through the supper she was composed and primly formal, but when they had got into their closed carriage and were on the way home she turned to him with a question as to his own day.

"Did you conclude your business satisfactorily?" she asked him. It was elaborately prepared, this exquisite joke, and she was carrying it off splendidly—only she was afraid that he could hear the beating of her heart.

"Quite," he assured her.

"I don't feel exactly satisfied about that," she replied. "I think that someone ought to oversee your contracts, for, really, I'm afraid that you are a very poor business man."

"Indeed," he answered, smiling. "What makes you think that? I assure you that I have a very good reputation in that way among the people who know me."

"Well," she retorted, and now that the supreme joke was coming to its point she could hardly keep down that foolish flutter in her voice, "that may be, but I am quite certain that any man who buys expensive things and does not take them must have flaws in his business methods."

He turned in her direction with perplexity, but in the dim light that came through from the street he could not see the wonderful look that she turned up to him. He made no reply.

"Don't you think it is about time to collect that kiss?" she tremblingly asked.

"Please, Grace!" he remonstrated with more pain in his tone than she had ever heard there. He could not dare to believe yet, could not allow himself to catch at that wild hope that had suddenly sprung up within him.

She had intended to tease him a little longer, to have him perplexed, possibly half angry, but she could stand no more.

"Do take it," she pleaded. "As a gift."

The brief instant of his dazed joy that followed she took for hesitation.

"Oh, don't you see? Won't you see?" she cried. "Ralph, I—I love you!"

Her arms circled up around his neck, and she pressed her head, sobbing, upon his shoulder as he clasped her to him.

Problem of Husband Who Helped Wife to Die

Doubtless it all goes back to the question of the sacredness of human life, and that very element, perhaps, is what keeps it an open problem, as impossible of settlement, apparently, as the immemorial controversy over those eternal interrogations, "Whence?" and "Whither?"

Philosophy for centuries has racked its hoary head for the answer, and without success. Herbert Spencer, noted English philosopher and essayist, not only advocated euthanasia, but went so far as to suggest a singular contrivance for putting it into effect. He would have devised a round, revolving table, upon which the subject would have been strapped, with his head at the center. With the table revolving rapidly, centrifugal force, he reasoned, would gradually have drained the brain and heart of blood, sending it to the feet, so that the subject would have entered a gentle faintness, finally resulting in stoppage of the heart action.

Is this to be another instance of science finding a solution where abstract philosophy has failed? Or is it one of those questions the answer to which lies, if anywhere, beyond the sable veil of death. Only the advancing years can say. Certainly the Roberts case, so dramatically dug from beneath the covers of a prosaic lawyers' guide, will serve to renew the discussion that raged from beyond the memory of man.

Prickly Pear Pest in Australia

THE edges of the Downs (Australian cattle lands) have been suffering from the inroads of the prickly pear, or cactus. Around Chinchilla, 100 miles west of Toowomba, state the United States commerce reports, the pear pest is very bad and has extended over a large territory in all directions. Some of the finest of the old cattle stations have been quite ruined by it. The total area of pear-infested country in Queensland is estimated at 4,000,000 acres, and it is said that the pear is spreading at the rate of 1,000,000 acres a year. Sheep raising is impossible in the pear country, but cattle manage to exist along with the pear, and some graziers state that the cattle eat and thrive on it in times of drouth. However, the pastoralists generally consider it a curse and spare no pains to eradicate it from their freeholds.

HERE are four of fashion's quaint conceits. The frock pictured at the left is of gray crepe banded with dark blue and much adorned with pearl buttons and buckles. Just below is a strikingly patterned foulard further enlivened by a wool flower posy. At the right, printed terry cloth, such as recently has been used as drapery material, forgetting its humble beginnings in the role of bath towels, makes its first appearance in these parts as dress material. Red cherries on a band of fur encircling the crown of a broad-brimmed hat, and clusters of buttercups and other field flowers all over the crown of a navy taffeta hat, are further evidences that fashion is not napping.
